Hoffman Hails First Year's Progress With E.C.A. Funds

Marshall Plan Administrator Says It Would Be Disastrous To Quit Now

By Sterling F. Green

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—Marshall Plan Administrator Paul G. Hoffman hailed Europe's progress at tonight's close of one recovery year It would be disastrous, he said, "to let down in the middle of the fight."

The statement was issued as his economic cooperation administration waited for congress to decide the fate of the second year recovery program.

About $50,000,000 of aid funds remain, Hoffman has said—enough to last about four days at E. C. A.'s first-year spending rate. Congress provided $5,055,000,000.

The pending legislation carries spending authority for E. C. A. but no funds. It does provide, however, a $750,000,000 federal loan on which E. C. A. may draw until its appropriation is fixed and approved.

Falling prices have given rise to official hopes that E. C. A. will not need the full $5,580,000,000 which Hoffman and President Truman asked to run it for 15 months ending July 1, 1950. If prices drop sufficiently, Hoffman said, E. C. A. will accept less money "without argument," and in any case will turn back any funds not needed.

The Marshall plan nations, now grown to 19, have boosted industrial output and exports, cut their huge trade deficit and slowed inflation, Hoffman said. More importantly, he added, the new unity of the democratic nations has become "the world's best hope of enduring peace."

But the long range goals are difficult, he declared, adding: "Complacency at this point in the program would be disastrous."

"It isn't smart to let down in the middle of a fight. In this first year of E. C. A.'s operation a momentum has been attained that must not be lost.

"The emergency is not over. E. C. A., in fact, must always operate under emergency pressure if the objectives of the program are to be met by the deadline set in the foreign assistance act."

E. C. A. has committed $4,769,904,000 to the shipment of goods, services and production "know how" to Europe, exclusive of operating costs and some outlays still in the "paper work" stage. Actual checks written, treasury reports revealed, amount to $2,611,077,603.50. The difference represents the

Cab Strike Tension, Arrests Are Mounting

Threats Of Mass Disorder Have Yet Failed To Materialize; Police Keep Round-The-Clock Vigilance As New York Taxis Stay Still

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP)—Arrests increased sharply tonight in the second day of a strike for union recognition that has taken 100,000 cabs off New York City streets.

Although the day brought arrests in the strike of 37, there were only isolated instances of violence—one cab stoned, another partly wrecked, and two men reported beaten.

Most arrests were for disorderly conduct—they arose from altercations or attempts to force non-striking drivers to sides of streets.

At the usual peak of taxi traffic late in the day there were a police estimated 1,282 cabs operating throughout the five boroughs, 329 more than at the same time yesterday.

Normally nearly 10,000 cabs would be running.

Among those taken into custody were two men who identified themselves as officials of the striking union—the taxi workers organizing committee. The union is an affiliate of John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers.

Although threats of mass disorder still had failed to materialize, heavy guards of police, armed with anti-riot weapons, maintained their round-the-clock vigil.

Both sides have charged the other with importing "goons" and predicted a currence of the bloody battles that marked the taxi tieup of 1934.

The initial flurries of violence exploded amid conflicting reports as to the effectiveness of the strike, called to obtain employer recognition of the union.

A spokesman for the operators said 3,000 cabs rolled today over the special "safety" routes set up by police. The city has 11,500 licensed cabs.

But the claim was termed "fantastic," by Leon Zwicker, regional director for the union.

Zwicker said the operators' statement "is a continuation of their policy of lies, lies, and more lies in a desperate attempt to break the strike.

Mrs. George Varino, membership chairman of the P.-T. A. states: "The last count of P.-T. A. membership of the state gave around 51,000 as the number of parents in Louisiana who are aligned with the public schools in Parent-Teacher work. With that number of school-minded persons going 'all out' for the improvement of education in the state, we should be able to have a school system that would elevate our state literacy rating at least above its present very low standing in the lowest literacy group of the nation," she concluded.

That noted editor, Jimmy Arrington, humorist and man of brilliant achievements, publisher of the News-Commercial in Collins, Miss., had his fun on April 1. Incidentally, this paper, although a weekly, is widely circulated because of the fame of its publisher.

Arrington, an ardent states' right Democrat, came out with this glaring headline: "Harry Truman Resigns—Will Reopen Haberdashery in Missouri—John L. Lewis slated for Appointment."

The news story proceeded to state that "the president turned a deaf ear to pleas of close personal and political friends—among them Cong. John Rankin (D-Miss.), Senator Jim Eastland (D-Miss.), Gov. Fielding L. Wright of Mississippi and Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, who urged that he not quit.

Biggest Measures Of 81st Congress Awaiting Action

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—The biggest bills of the 81st congress awaited action today—some untouched—with three months past and signs that the sesion may run into July or August.

President Truman's legislative program was making slow progress.

And directly ahead lay the big job of stop-communism legislation—foreign aid and the Atlantic pact to be followed by a proposal of arms for America's free world partners.

There was some unofficial cloakroom talk that a special session might even be necessary later if the problem of arming European foes of communism proves too knotty.

Originally leaders aimed at a six-month session. They still hope to quit by the end of June but they aren't too optimistic.

Although the records show 30 bills enacted into law since congress met on January 3, only a few rate major classification. The others are in the non-controversial "minor bills" category.

Congress has enacted bills continuing the 80th congress anti-inflation program through voluntary controls; extending rent controls; raising the president's salary; giving emergency relief to storm-smitten western states; continuing the president's export control powers; authorizing the air force to build a radar warning network around the country, and furnishing financial aid to Palestine refugees of the Jewish-Arab fighting.

The record of major accomplishment comes to an abrupt end there.

PRISONER BEATEN BY CELL PARTNER

Milling Bernstein Hospitalized Following Attack In City Jail

Two prisoners in the Monroe city jail late last night created quite a disturbance during a brawl which resulted in one being hospitalized and the other being additionally charged with simple battery.

The hospitalized man, Milling Bernstein, of 1810 Island drive, was attacked by Hugh "Pee Wee" Johnson, of 3304 Harrison, shortly after the two men had been locked in the same cell. Other prisoners who witnessed the conflict, called firemen from nearby fire station No. 1 and yelled, "a man is being killed over here."

Firemen notified the desk sergeant who immediately investigated. No jailer is on duty at night.

Upon investigation, Bernstein was found lying on the cell floor with blood streaming from his head and face. Johnson sat calmly on a nearby bunk.

Other prisoners stated that Johnson attacked Bernstein and inflicted the injuries which consisted of lacerations of the head and face. Johnson denied that he attacked the man.

Bernstein was taken to the St. Francis Sanitarim where his injuries were reported as not serious.

Bernstein had been placed in jail on a charge of being drunk and disorderly and using profane language. Johnson was iriginally charged with being drunk and disorderly and fighting.

BLACK RIVER WILL CREST AT 53 FEET

JONESVILLE, La., April 2.—(AP)—Army engineers predict a crest of 53 feet on the Black river here by April 17 but no danger was expected.

Most of Catahoula parish is again under water in lower areas, after 13 1/2 inches of rain in the last 11 days.

Engineers said the river dropped 18 inches from its recent high of 51.75 feet before starting to rise again.

Meanwhile, Red Cross aid for the parish was reported at $14,084 from the beginning of high water on February 21 through March 28.

Of this amount, $10,030 went for stock feed, $3,178 for food and the remainder for medical attention and miscellaneous items.

W. G. Brown, Jonesville, parish member of the Tensas basin levee board, said the town could take the expected 53 feet river crest without additional filling in of gaps on the ring levee.

EVICTION METHODS UNDER NEW SETUP GIVEN LANDLORDS

ORDERS CONTROLS LIFTED OVER UNITS IN 4 STATES

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—The federal rent administrator today set up new nationwide eviction regulations. At the same time he removed the price ceilings from 16,500 dwelling units in four states.

These were the first in a series of actions slated by Housing Expediter Tighe E. Woods under the new 'home rule" rent control act which runs through June 30, 1950.

Woods acted swiftly on the eviction matter because such controls were not given him in the old law which placed this power in the hands of local authorities.

The new rules, which take precedence over local orders, set forth the steps landlords must take to qualify for the ouster action, and the safeguards to protect tenants against unwarranted eviction.

In ordering controls removed from 20 areas in Alabama, Indiana, New Jersey and Texas, Woods made it clear he would slap the ceilings back on if rent should rise there unduly. He told the local advisory boards to stay on the job, ready to enforce new ceilings "should the need arise."

Woods said more than 80 other areas would be taken off the controlled list within a week. This action was contemplated when the rent bill was before congress. Under the old law, Woods did not have power to recontrol an area once ceilings were removed.

The eviction regulations provide two different methods of handling such cases; one is by court action and the other is a certificate plan requiring approval by an area rent office.

Under the first method the landlord must give written notice to the

Mangham Man Charged With Negligent Homicide Will Be Tried In November

Tito Hits Both Ways With Defiant Speech

Accuses Western Powers And Russian-Dominated Neighbors Of Slandering Yugoslavia; Denies Having Made Contact With Capitalists

By Alex Singleton

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, April 2.—(AP)—In a defiant and independent speech, Premier Marshal Tito has accused both the western "capitalistic" powers and Russian-dominated Socialist satellites of "lies and slander" against Yugoslavia.

He spoke Thursday at Brioni Islands, where he is vacationing, to a group from Crotia, Slovenia, Istria and the Slovene coastal areas. The text was made public here tonight.

"The anti-Yugoslav propaganda will not bother us, nor will it make us digress from the road which we are following."

He added he was "laughing" at the campaign against his government.

"You have probably heard," he said, "various lies on the terrible 'plots' which are being made in Brioni, that I have had talks here with English and Americans.

"These lies are mostly being spread from Trieste but are also being spread through bourgeois-capitalist and Socialist countries.

"Naturally, I will not even need to tell you that this is not true, since it is the most ordinary nonsense."

The delegation which visited him was composed of 150 representatives of Yugoslavia's Croation, Slovene and Italian population.

In Trieste, Ultissime, a conservative newspaper, recently published a report that Tito soon would meet "some Western world personalities, in view of the international situation in Yugoslavia."

(A Trieste dispatch by Astra, Italian news agency, published two weeks ago in Rome, quoted the Istrian Italian Committee of National Liberation as reporting a meeting of Alexander Rankovic, Yugoslav vice-premier and interior minister, with Western power representatives at Brioni Jan. 25. The Italian committee said the meeting served as a cover for a meeting of Tito, himself, with British and American representatives on an island off Split.

(Brioni is just off the tip of the Istrian peninsula. This area wa transferred from Italy to Yugoslavia

CHURCHILL LEAVES U. S. FOR ENGLAND

Says He Is Friend Of Russian People But Not Of Their Leaders

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP)—Winston Churchill, sailing for home after a nine-day visit in the United States, declared today he is a friend of the Russian people if not of their government.

"It is a great grief of the British and American people that the valiant Rusian soldiers who fought so bravely in the war have been misled into the position their government has placed them," he told newsmen aboard the liner Queen Mary.

The war-time prime minister of Great Britain said he believed Soviet attitudes would change if there were an exchange of visitors between Russia and the outside world.

"It's extraordinary," he remarked, "that in this Communist paradise they are afraid to open the doors for fear that all the cherubs would fly out, at least those who have wings.

"It is a very dear wish in England to be friends with the Russian people. But you can't get near them."

Puffing a big black cigar, the 74-year-old Churchill appeared somewhat tired and pale but he was in a jocular mood at the news conference. He delivered a major address at Boston during his visit, went to Washing-

Paper Manufacturers Are Pinched By Short Orders

(By Associated Press)

Paper container manufacturers over the south are feeling the pinch of fewer and fewer orders. The blame was not precisely pinned down.

A complete report on all paper and pulp manufacturers was impossible over the week end because officials either could not be reached; refused to talk; or refused to be quoted by name.

However, some mills were shut or contemplating shutting. Some were curtailing operations. Others said operations were continued as usual.

Some of the mills have shut down at various times in the past, however, but are now operating.

Virtually nobody could be quoted on the future outlook.

The St. Joe Paper Company at Port St. Joe, Florida, employing 500, closed down Friday because of a lack of orders, according to a bulletin board notice. No announcement was made about reopening.

The National Container Corporation at Jacksonville, Fla., had closed for eight days recently but is again operating. The National Gypsum Mill at Mobile, Ala., which makes insulation board, has been closed for a week but reopens next week.

The International Paper Company at Mobile said it was closing its big plant at Mobile Sunday for a week. A company spokesman said branch plants in other sections of the country were closing or already had stopped for brief periods. He said "general economic conditions" were the cause. Several thousand employes were affected at the Mobile plant.

The Gaylord Container Corporation at Bogalusa, La., said some plants were hard hit due to uneven distribution.

At Natchez, Miss., the Johns Manville plant has been on a three-day basis since January but expects to go back on a five-day week this month if business picks up.

At Laurel, Miss., the Masonite Corporation has been on a curtailed schedule to allow adjustment of inventories but now is strikebound and closed.

A paper mill official at Panama City, Fla., said "all backlogs have been wiped out in Kraft and in most other grades of paper as well in the south." He said conditions were soft over the entire industry.

MONDAY SIGNING SET TO GO WITH USUAL DISPATCH

American, European Voices Blended In Reply To Russian Accusation

FORMAL REJECTION GIVEN AT LENGTH AND DETAILED

By John M. Hightower

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—All 12 Atlantic pact powers, speaking for the first time with a single voice, coldly accused Russia today of misinterpreting the "nature and intent" of their projected non-Communist alliance.

A formal statement issued here on the authority of the 12 foreign ministers virtually charged Russia with deliberatly distorting the purposes of the treaty. Moscow, in a note Thursday, called it an aggressive move against the Soviet Union.

Today's statement was a complete and sweeping rejection of the Soviet not. "The pact," it said, "is not directed against any nation or group of nations but only against armed aggression."

The statement was approved at the first meeting of the foreign ministers. They will gather again at 3 p. m. (E. S. T.) Monday to sign the historic document. Against it the Soviet Union has waged a campaign of denunciation for months.

In their meeting today, the foreign ministers of Belgium, Canada, Denmark, France, Iceland, Italy, Luxembourg, The Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, the United Kingdom and the U. S. secretary of state also took two other actions. An official communique reported them as follows:

1. They "formally approved" the text of the 20-year treaty. It would pledge the United States and each of the other powers to join in resisting an attack against any of the 12 nations.

2. They decided that an Atlantic council provided for in the treaty should be "composed of foreign ministers or other representatives of governments." They agreed it should meet as soon as the treaty goes into effect and should then set up a defense committee.

The top diplomats of the western world thus got of to a quick start on creating the peace machinery for the alliance.

It cannot come into actual existence until (1) the agreement is signed Monday, (2) it is approved by the U. S. senate and possibly other western parliaments and (3) it is formally ratified by the seven governments which originally drafted it.

Officials were obviously cheered by this progress. They realize that it will be several weeks at a minimum before the pact powers can officially work together to establish their defenses against any attack.

The statement of the foreign ministers in commenting on the formal Russian attack on the treaty Thursday had a cold and impersonal quality.

It was in contrast to the anger and excitement sometimes expressed in exchanges between the Soviet Union and some individual governments. It was designed primarily to make two points.

These were (1) that the Russians are misinterpreting the treaty instead of judging accurately by the treaty itself what it proposes to do, and (2) that the treaty is completely defensive, in conformity with the United Nations, and not directed against anybody.

"The foreign ministers' note," the statement said, "That the views expressed by the Soviet government on March 31 are identical in their misinterpretations of the nature and intent of this association with those published by the Soviet foreign office

At the usual peak of taxi traffic late in the day there were a police estimated 1,282 cabs operating throughout the five boroughs, 329 more than at the same time yesterday.

Normally nearly 10,000 cabs would be running.

Among those taken into custody were two men who identified themselves as officials of the striking union—the taxi workers organizing committee. The union is an affiliate of John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers.

Although threats of mass disorder still had failed to materialize, heavy guards of police, armed with anti-riot weapons, maintained their round-the-clock vigil.

Both sides have charged the other with importing "goons" and predicted a currence of the bloody battles that marked the taxi tieup of 1934.

The initial flurries of violence exploded amid conflicting reports as to the effectiveness of the strike, called to obtain employer recognition of the union.

A spokesman for the operators said 3,000 cabs rolled today over the special "safety" routes set up by police. The city has 11,500 licensed cabs.

But the claim was termed "fantastic," by Leon Zwicker, regional director for the union.

Zwicker said the operators' statement "is a continuation of their policy of lies, lies, and more lies in a desperate attempt to break the strike.

Jes' Ramblin'

Mrs. George Varino, membership chairman of the P.-T. A. states: "The last count of P.-T. A. membership of the state gave around 51,000 as the number of parents in Louisiana who are aligned with the public schools in Parent-Teacher work. With that number of school-minded persons going 'all out' for the improvement of education in the state, we should be able to have a school system that would elevate our state literacy rating at least above its present very low standing in the lowest literacy group of the nation," she concluded.

That noted editor, Jimmy Arrington, humorist and man of brilliant achievements, publisher of the News-Commercial in Collins, Miss., had his fun on April 1. Incidentally, this paper, although a weekly, is widely circulated because of the fame of its publisher.

Arrington, an ardent states' right Democrat, came out with this glaring headline: "Harry Truman Resigns—Will Reopen Haberdashery in Missouri—John L. Lewis slated for Appointment."

The news story proceeded to state that "the president turned a deaf ear to pleas of close personal and political friends—among them Cong. John Rankin (D-Miss.), Senator Jim Eastland (D-Miss.), Gov. Fielding L. Wright of Mississippi and Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, who urged that he not quit.

"Wright and Thurmond even flew

Biggest Measures Of 81st Congress Awaiting Action

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—The biggest bills of the 81st congress awaited action today—some untouched—with three months past and signs that the sesion may run into July or August.

President Truman's legislative program was making slow progress.

And directly ahead lay the big job of stop-communism legislation—foreign aid and the Atlantic pact to be followed by a proposal of arms for America's free world partners.

There was some unofficial cloakroom talk that a special session might even be necessary later if the problem of arming European foes of communism proves too knotty.

Originally leaders aimed at a six-month session. They still hope to quit by the end of June but they aren't too optimistic.

Although the records show 30 bills enacted into law since congress met on January 3, only a few rate major classification. The others are in the non-controversial "minor bills" category.

Congress has enacted bills continuing the 80th congress anti-inflation program through voluntary controls; extending rent controls; raising the president's salary; giving emergency relief to storm-smitten western states; continuing the president's export control powers; authorizing the air force to build a radar warning network around the country, and furnishing financial aid to Palestine refugees of the Jewish-Arab fighting.

The record of major accomplishment comes to an abrupt end there.

REVOLUTION HITS COSTA RICA ANEW

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, April 2.—(AP)—Edgar Cardona, Costa Rican war minister, launched a coup today against the military junta headed by Jose Figueres.

Cardona's supporters seized the artillery barracks, where government arms, ammunition and heavy weapons are stored.

Figueres has taken over the main strategic points in the city, making his headquarters at the Pacific Railroad depot.

TARVER, JUVENILE OFFICER, EXPIRES

One Of Monroe's Best Known Peace Officers Succumbs After Long Illness

L. V. Tarver, 65, one of Monroe's best known peace officers and in later years juvenile officer for Ouachita parish, died yesterday morning about 11 o'clock at his residence, 401 Speed Drive.

Mr. Tarver, who spent nearly 25 years with the Monroe police before his retirement from the department in 1936, had been in failing health for several months. He had been confined to his home since last January because of a heart ailment.

A rosary service will be conducted tonight at 8:30 o'clock at the residence.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow. A requeim mass will be said by Monsignor J. C. Marsh at St. Matthew's Catholic Church tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock, and interment will follow in the Monroe City Cemetery under the direction of Mulhearn Funeral Home.

Active pallbearers will be C. P. Hartley, City Commissioner Frank Cline, Everette Burgoyne, Walter

Milling Bernstein Hospitalized Following Attack In City Jail

Two prisoners in the Monroe city jail late last night created quite a disturbance during a brawl which resulted in one being hospitalized and the other being additionally charged with simple battery.

The hospitalized man, Milling Bernstein, of 1810 Eland drive, was attacked by Hugh "Pee Wee" Johnson, of 3304 Harrison, shortly after the two men had been locked in the same cell. Other prisoners who witnessed the conflict, called firemen from nearby fire station No. 1 and yelled, "a man is being killed over here."

Firemen notified the desk sergeant who immediately investigated. No jailer is on duty at night.

Upon investigation, Bernstein was found lying on the cell floor with blood streaming from his head and face. Johnson sat calmly on a nearby bunk.

Other prisoners stated that Johnson attacked Bernstein and inflicted the injuries which consisted of lacerations of the head and face. Johnson denied that he attacked the man.

Bernstein was taken to the St. Francis Sanitarim where his injuries were reported as not serious.

Bernstein had been placed in jail on a charge of being drunk and disorderly and using profane language. Johnson was originally charged with being drunk and disorderly and fighting.

BLACK RIVER WILL CREST AT 53 FEET

JONESVILLE, La., April 2.—(AP)—Army engineers predict a crest of 53 feet on the Black river here by April 17 but no danger was expected.

Most of Catahoula parish is again under water in lower areas, after 13 1/2 inches of rain in the last 11 days.

Engineers said the river dropped 18 inches from its recent high of 51.75 feet before starting to rise again.

Meanwhile, Red Cross aid for the parish was reported at $14,084 from the beginning of high water on February 21 through March 28.

Of this amount, $10,030 went for stock feed, $3,178 for food and the remainder for medical attention and miscellaneous items.

W. G. Brown, Jonesville, parish member of the Tensas basin levee board, said the town could take the expected 53 feet river crest without additional filling in of gaps on the ring levee.

EVICTION METHODS UNDER NEW SETUP GIVEN LANDLORDS

ORDERS CONTROLS LIFTED OVER UNITS IN 4 STATES

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—The federal rent administrator today set up new nationwide eviction regulations. At the same time he removed the price ceilings from 36,500 dwelling units in four states.

These were the first in a series of actions slated by Housing Expediter Tighe E. Woods under the new "home rule" rent control act which runs through June 30, 1950.

Woods acted swiftly on the eviction matter because such controls were not given him in the old law which placed this power in the hands of local authorities.

The new rules, which take precedence over local orders, set forth the steps landlords must take to qualify for the ouster action, and the safeguards to protect tenants against unwarranted eviction.

In ordering controls removed from 20 areas in Alabama, Indiana, New Jersey and Texas, Woods made it clear he would slap the ceilings back on if rent should rise there unduly. He told the local advisory boards to stay on the job, ready to enforce new ceilings "should the need arise."

Woods said more than 80 other areas would be taken off the controlled list within a week. This action was contemplated when the rent bill was before congress. Under the old law, Woods did not have power to recontrol an area once ceilings were removed.

The eviction regulations provide two different methods of handling such cases; one is by court action and the other is a certificate plan requiring approval by an area rent office.

Under the first method the landlord must give written notice to the

PLEA OF INNOCENT ENTERED BY HARDY

Mangham Man Charged With Negligent Homicide Will Be Tried In November

WINNSBORO, La., April 2.—(Special)—James P. Hardy, 28, of Mangham, charged with negligent homicide, pleaded innocent at arraignment here today before District Judge Carry Ellis.

The judge set Hardy's trial for November 14.

Hardy was charged in connection with the death of little nine-year-old Warren Causey, Jr., who was seriously injured last Dec. 14th when Hardy's gravel truck rammed into the rear of a school bus injuring seven Gilbert school children and the bus driver. The incident occurred eight miles south of Winnsboro on Highway 15.

The case of Mack Buston, also taken up in district court here today, was nolle prossed. Buston was charged with the theft of property valued at $344.

Of 22 true bills returned by the Franklin parish grand jury Tuesday, 16 were arraigned in district court Thursday.

One of the Thursday cases was that of Sherwood Futch, 25-year-old West Monroe man charged with negligent injury. Futch waived arraignment and plead guilty as charged. Judge Ellis sentenced him to 30 days in jail and fined him $125 and cost of court, with an additional 90 days to serve in default of payment of the fine.

Futch was charged as an aftermath

A coroner's inquest into the Thursday afternoon automobile-motorbike collision which claimed the life of 16-year-old William Stanley, Jr., will be conducted at 2 p.m., Tuesday, Dr. J. T. French, parish coroner, reported last night.

Young Stanley died enroute to the St. Francis Sanitarium shortly after the accident occurred six miles west of West Monroe on Highway 80.

Driver of the automobile was identified by state police officers as C. H. Crain, 47-year-old Sikes, La., farmer.

Funeral services for Stanley will be conducted at 2 p.m. today at the Hall Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. F. L. Hearne officiating. Interment will follow in the Hasley Cemetery.

Besides his parents of near West Monroe, he is survived by a sister, Jewell Stanley, of near West Monroe; an uncle, L. Stanley, Calhoun and a grandmother, Mrs. J. Stanley, also of Calhoun.

Pallbearers will be Bobby Norris, Roy Barr, Jack Bell, Dan Barr, Jimmy Vaughn and Ernest Causey.

Tito Hits Both Ways With Defiant Speech

By Alex Singleton

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, April 2.—(AP)—In a defiant and independent speech, Premier Marshal Tito has accused both the western "capitalistic" powers and Russian-dominated Socialist satellites of "lies and slander" against Yugoslavia.

He spoke Thursday at Brioni Islands, where he is vacationing, to a group from Crotia, Slovenia, Istria and the Slovene coastal areas. The text was made public here tonight.

"The anti-Yugoslav propaganda will not bother us, nor will it make us digress from the road which we are following."

He added he was "laughing" at the campaign against his government.

"You have probably heard," he said, "various lies on the terrible 'plots' which are being made in Brioni, that I have had talks here with English and Americans.

"These lies are mostly being spread from Trieste but are also being spread through bourgeois-capitalist and Socialist countries.

"Naturally, I will not even need to tell you that this is not true, since it is the most ordinary nonsense."

The delegation which visited him was composed of 150 representatives of Yugoslavia's Croation, Slovene and Italian population.

In Trieste, Ultissime, a conservative newspaper, recently published a report that Tito soon would meet "some Western world personalities, in view of the international situation in Yugoslavia."

(A Trieste dispatch by Astra, Italian news agency, published two weeks ago in Rome, quoted the Istrian Italian Committee of National Liberation as reporting a meeting of Alexander Rankovic, Yugoslav vice-premier and interior minister, with Western power representatives at Brioni Jan. 25. The Italian committee said the meeting served as a cover for a meeting of Tito, himself, with British and American representatives on an island off Split.

(Brioni is just off the tip of the Istrian peninsula. This area was transferred from Italy to Yugoslavia

Paper Manufacturers Are Pinched By Short Orders

(By Associated Press)

Paper container manufacturers over the south are feeling the pinch of fewer and fewer orders. The blame was not precisely pinned down.

A complete report on all paper and pulp manufacturers was impossible over the week end because officials either could not be reached; refused to talk; or refused to be quoted by name.

However, some mills were shut or contemplating shutting. Some were curtailing operations. Others said operations were continued as usual.

Some of the mills have shut down at various times in the past, however, but are now operating.

Virtually nobody could be quoted on the future outlook.

The St. Joe Paper Company at Port St. Joe, Florida, employing 500, closed down Friday because of a lack of orders, according to a bulletin board notice. No announcement was made about reopening.

The National Container Corporation at Jacksonville, Fla., had closed for eight days recently but is again operating. The National Gypsum Mill at Mobile, Ala., which makes insulation board, has been closed for a week but reopens next week.

The International Paper Company at Mobile said it was closing its big plant at Mobile Sunday for a week. A company spokesman said branch plants in other sections of the country were closing or already had stopped for brief periods. He said "general economic conditions" were the cause. Several thousand employes were affected at the Mobile plant.

The Gaylord Container Corporation at Bogalusa, La., said some plants were hard hit due to uneven distribution.

At Natchez, Miss., the Johns Manville plant has been on a three-day basis since January but expects to go back on a five-day week this month if business picks up.

At Laurel, Miss., the Masonite Corporation has been on a curtailed schedule to allow adjustment of inventories but now is strikebound and closed.

A paper mill official at Panama City, Fla., said "all backlogs have been wiped out in Kraft and in most other grades of paper as well in the south." He said conditions were soft over the entire industry.

MONDAY SIGNING SET TO GO WITH USUAL DISPATCH

American, European Voices Blended In Reply To Russian Accusation

FORMAL REJECTION GIVEN AT LENGTH AND DETAILED

By John M. Hightower

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—All 12 Atlantic pact powers, speaking for the first time with a single voice, coldly accused Russia today of misinterpreting the "nature and intent" of their projected non-Communist alliance.

A formal statement issued here on the authority of the 12 foreign ministers virtually charged Russia with deliberatly distorting the purposes of the treaty. Moscow, in a note Thursday, called it an aggressive move against the Soviet Union.

Today's statement was a complete and sweeping rejection of the Soviet not. "The pact," it said, "is not directed against any nation or group of nations but only against armed aggression."

The statement was approved at the first meeting of the foreign ministers. They will gather again at 3 p. m. (E. S. T.) Monday to sign the historic document. Against it the Soviet Union has waged a campaign of denunciation for months.

In their meeting today, the foreign ministers of Belgium, Canada, Denmark, France, Iceland, Italy, Luxembourg, The Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, the United Kingdom and the U. S. secretary of state also took two other actions. An official communique reported them as follows:

1. They "formally approved" the text of the 20-year treaty. It would pledge the United States and each of the other powers to join in resisting an attack against any of the 12 nations.

2. They decided that an Atlantic council provided for in the treaty should be "composed of foreign ministers or other representatives of governments." They agreed it should meet as soon as the treaty goes into effect and should then set up a defense committee.

The top diplomats of the western world thus got of to a quick start on creating the peace machinery for the alliance.

It cannot come into actual existence until (1) the agreement is signed Monday, (2) it is approved by the U. S. senate and possibly other western parliaments and (3) it is formally ratified by the seven governments which originally drafted it.

Officials were obviously cheered by this progress. They realize that it will be several weeks at a minimum before the pact powers can officially work together to establish their defenses against any attack.

The statement of the foreign ministers in commenting on the formal Russian attack on the treaty Thursday had a cold and impersonal quality.

It was in contrast to the anger and excitement sometimes expressed in exchanges between the Soviet Union and some individual governments. It was designed primarily to make two points.

These were (1) that the Russians are misinterpreting the treaty instead of judging accurately by the treaty itself what it proposes to do, and (2) that the treaty is completely defensive, in conformity with the United Nations, and not directed against anybody.

"The foreign ministers' note," the statement said, "That the views expressed by the Soviet government on March 31 are identical in their misinterpretations of the nature and intent of this association with those published by the Soviet foreign office

Says He Is Friend Of Russian People But Not Of Their Leaders

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP)—Winston Churchill, sailing for home after a nine-day visit in the United States, declared today he is a friend of the Russian people if not of their government.

"It is a great grief of the British and American people that the valiant Rusian soldiers who fought so bravely in the war have been misled into the position their government has placed them," he told newsmen aboard the liner Queen Mary.

The war-time prime minister of Great Britain said he believed Soviet attitudes would change if there were an exchange of visitors between Russia and the outside world.

"It's extraordinary," he remarked, "that in this Communist paradise they are afraid to open the doors for fear that all the cherubs would fly out, at least those who have wings.

"It is a very dear wish in England to be friends with the Russian people. But you can't get near them."

Puffing a big black cigar, the 74-year-old Churchill appeared somewhat tired and pale but he was in a jocular mood at the news conference. He delivered a major address at Boston during his visit, went to Washing-

to Washington to beg the president to stay in office."

Arrington filled his entire front page with the joke and included a heading, "Income Tax Suspended," "City of Jackson to Move Gulf of Mexico to Make Room for Expansion," etc. etc. All the stories were continued on the back page and on this there appeared one word, "APRIL FOOL."

Two weeks from today, there will be an Easter sunrise service held in Memorial Park Cemetery, directed by the Christian Youth Association of Monroe and West Monroe of which Vernon Sanders is president. These young people plan to present some classic masterpieces of song at this time such as snatches of "Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's "Messiah," and other choice selections. The group is drilling frequently and has as its leader, E. W. Edwards, director of music at the Monroe First Baptist Church. The early morning cemetery service will be the third one in as many years to be given here. Similar services are held in many large cities and are brilliant and inspiring.

The Intercouncil of Service Clubs is starting something. This new group, made up of representatives from the three principal women's service clubs, the Pilot Club, Altrusa and Quota Clubs, will present a contest to discover the "Woman of the Year." The public will be the judge and a lively contest is anticipated. Plans are still to be completed and when ready will be announced in detail.

The work of starting North Third street widening, from Washington to Louisville, will be initiated Monday, it was stated at the city hall Saturday. The first work will be done on the west side of North Third street at Louisville avenue. All property owners in this block, which is between Arkansas avenue and Louisville on the west side of North Third street, are asked to remove flowers from the neutral zone so that workmen can proceed with street widening. Many have choice plants and flowers and the city officials do not want to cause unnecessary loss of plants provided they are at once removed.

Monroe is a friendly city, many acts of neighborliness are recorded day after day. Especially is a large degree of friendliness shown out in the Cole addition, where some residents enjoy to have it known as College Heights, which is in fact the name of a garden club there. One new resident of this section, finding his new home devoid of some of the trees and shrubs he desired, was informed by an adjacent neighbor that he was welcome to a good-sized fig tree in her yard. She had two of these she said and the she would gladly part with the second tree. But delay in transplanting the past week made it too late to preserve the life of the tree. Then she came forward with another neighborly offer. "That tree is yours even if it stands in my yard. All the figs that it raises this summer are YOURS," she declared, "next fall or winter you can remove the tree successfully." Who could ask for better neighbors than this???

Just read of a human interest story for it ended quite successfully a 15-year search prosecuted by a son seeking to find his father. When Herbert W. Berthold was six months old his parents separated. His mother went to live in Raton, N. M., and his father took up residence in Denver, later settling in Los Angeles.

Fifteen years ago, Herbert began to seek his father. His method was that of going through telephone books in cities visited. The other day he studied the Los Angeles directory in search of the name of his father, William Arthur Berthold. Amazed he found this name in the book! Quite excitedly he called the number and asked: "Is this William A. Berthold?" He got an affirmative reply. "Did you ever live in Denver and were you married to Bonnie Dowell?" he was next interrogated. When the answer was "Yes," he fairly screamed out: "Then you are my FATHER!" There was a happy reunion. Incidentally the father had only a few days prior had a telephone installed in his home.

lag between order-placing and final payment and delivery.

Hoffman has dashed hopes that the full four-year plan, ending in mid-1952, can be completed for less than $17,000,000,000, the maximum amount foreseen when former Secretary of State Marshall conceived the vast mutual-aid and self-help effort.

Latest reports from Europe indicated great strides, however, toward cutting the dollar gap between Europe's exports and imports."

An informal checkup of recovery progress, compiled from official reports and data given congress, showed these trends:

Industry—Production up to pre-war 1938; excluding ravaged Germany, Europe is 14 per cent above pre-war. The goal for 1952 is 30 per cent. It will not restore pre-war living standards but will, it is hoped, end the need for "extraordinary" outside help.

Farming: Harvests in 1948 were equal to pre-war and 25 per cent greater than 1947. The 1952 target is 10 to 15 per cent higher.

Exports: They rose last year 21 per cent above 1947 totals. All but three countries have cut their trade defitits. But dollars earned from exports will pay only about half the cost of needed imports this year.

Inflation: Most countries have launched anti-inflation programs and some already have shown effect. Black markets have dwindled. Hoffman said: "Prospects for financial and monetary stability in the participating countries continued to improve."

Investment: E. C. A. so far has failed to encourage substantial American investment abroad. Hoffman has urged congress to permit this country to make long-term contracts with firms which enter foreign countries and produce needed strategic materials. The assurance of a long-term market, he holds, is the only "guarantee" which will attract U. S. risk money.

Strategic materials: E. C. A.'s efforts to stimulate shipment of vital defense materials, as a partial return benefit, have had small success. Only minor quantities of rubber, fiber, industrial diamonds and a few other items have been contracted for.

Communism: E. C. A. believes the Marshall plan has prevented three countries from going Communist and has definitely turned the tide of the cold war in favor of America throughout Europe. If the plan is a success, Hoffman predicts, the politburo will decide to abandon efforts to Sovietize western Europe.

VAIN MOVE IS TRIED BY REDS IN BERLIN

BERLIN, April 2.—(AP)—The Russians tried vainly today to inch onto American soil in Berlin.

They even brought along their own maps of the quartered city in an effort to redraw the boundary lines by a matter of inches. Like everything else in the East-West dispute, their maps disagreed with the American maps.

The arguments involved only one yard of territory in one case and a matter of inches in another, but it made Germans living nearby restive and nervous.

Russians maintaining the blockade of western Berlin tried to arrest several Germans filling in a ditch. American police arrived and argued with the Russians. Both pulled out maps. The American map showed the Germans were one yard inside the U. S. sector. The Russian map disagreed. The Germans dropped their ditch-filling task and there the matter stood without further trouble.

Meanwhile, in another border area, Soviet sector police tried to seize a German truck loaded with tires and invaded a warehouse where it was loaded. The Germans summoned American military police and then a Russian officer joined in. The dispute involved inches of soil. The road the Russian blockaders were patroling was in the Russian sector, but the warehouse and the sidewalk, by American reckoning, were in the U. S. territory.

Again, the argument was a standoff.

Both cases were referred to higher levels.

under the Italian peace treaty. Split is about 140 miles southeast down the Yugoslav Adriatic coast from Istria).

Tito told the delegation visiting him at Brioni that he is forming a special ministry to deal with Istria and the Slovene coastal areas.

"When we have liberated these regions," he said, "we laid down the same principles for the peoples of other nationalities which hold good for all other of our regions — the principle of national equality."

Tito denied specifically what he said were reports there had been uprisings in Istria, that there had been uprisings on the peninsula, that the people had destroyed railway lines, gunfiring had been heard in the area, and that his supporters and anti-Tito forces had fought.

"I laugh at these lies," he said, "the same as the people in our villages."

"Yesterday, for example, I read that a Moscow radio commentator said there was a paradise in our country for kulaks (rich peasants).

"It is not difficult to suppose what will our rich peasants think about it, whom we have prevented by various measures from getting rich at the cost of the working people.

"In all this that is now being talked and written about us and our country, there are so many absurdities that one must burst out laughing on hearing them.

"We do not mind this. They cannot deceive anyone in our country, but they may deceive some among themselves."

bills, most of them on the Truman program:

Repealing the Taft-Hartley labor act; awaiting both senate and house action and cleared by committees.

Boosting existing minimum age levels; approved by the house labor committee.

Veterans pensions; rejected by the house, but now back again in revised form.

Continuing the foreign aid program, known as the Marshall Plan, to halt the spread of communism abroad; scheduled for house debate next week as the senate strove for a vote on it.

Stand-by price control and inflation curb powers for the president; no committee action taken.

Tax increases; nothing done and nothing in sight at least for the present.

Federal aid to education; approved by committee and awaiting senate action.

Pre-paid government health program; no committee action.

Extension of the reciprocal trade program; passed by the house and slated for senate debate next week.

Oleomargarine tax repeal: Passed by the house; senate hearing due next week.

Long-range housing, provided for construction of 810,000 low-cost housing units in six years; approved by senate committee, awaiting senate action, but not yet considered by the house or its committees.

Postal pay raises: Being considered by house postoffice committee; no other action.

Extension and liberalization of social security program: Subject of hearings in house ways and means committee; no senate action.

70-group air force; passed the house and awaiting senate committee action.

$54,000,000 in aid to China; on house schedule for vote next week; no senate action.

The house is well-alead of its normal past schedules on money bills.

The senate still feeling the delaying effect on a three-weeks filibuster over civil rights legislation, has passed no appropriation bills. But it usually clears them up in a hurry once it gets under way.

'Secret Seven' Undertake War On Truman's Program

By Jack Bell

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—A group of Republican senators who half-jokingly are known as the "secret seven" apparently have undertaken full scale warfare on the whole range of President Truman's legislative program.

With Senators Wherry of of Nebraska, the G. O. P. floor leader, and Brewster of Maine, head of the party's senatorial campaign committee, among its members, this group operates independently of the Republican policy committee in swinging its meat axe at Democratic proposals.

Other members of the lineup were reported to include senators Jenner of Indiana, Bricker of Ohio, Malone of Nevada, Kem of Missouri and Martin of Pennsylvania.

Meeting informally for lunch and at other times, the "secret seven" is said to map its strategy largely on the basis that Republicans won't get anywhere politically by adopting a "mee-too" attitude.

They represent a different viewpoint from the rebellious group of 14 senators who tried unsuccessfully last January to unseat Senator Taft of Ohio as chairman of the policy committee.

The 14 contended that the Republicans ought to stand for some social welfare and other measures similar to those proposed in the past by New Dealers.

Senator Morse (R.-Ore.), one of the group, classed himself and his colleagues as "liberals." But Senator Lodge (R.-Mass.), another of the 14 objected to any labelling of the group.

Although they started out bravely with the avowed purpose of remaking Republican policy, this group apparently hasn't held together too close. Senator Tobey (R.-N. H.), one of the original 14, said if there have been any meetings he hasn't heard of them.

Senators Taft and Vandenberg (R.-Mich.) apparently stand apart from both groups. Taft is described as sometimes "too New Dealish" for the "secret seven" and sometimes too conservative for the 14.

Because of his leadership in foreign affairs issues, Vandenberg apparently isn't tabbed on domestic questions by either side.

The "secret seven" meanwhile have been active in trying to stir up trouble for the Democrats. They haven't always stuck together, but most of them usually are around when they think there's an opportunity to lure the Democrats into a pitfall.

Bricker took the lead, for instance, in an unsuccessful effort to send the rent control bill back to a senate-house conference committee. All seven voted for Bricker's motion, which was beaten, 53 to 33.

Vandenberg and Taft went along with Bricker. Five of the group of 14 were for, and four were against. The others didn't vote.

When Wherry tried unsuccessfully to lop 5 per cent off the $5,580,000,000 European recovery authorization Friday, he and five of his colleagues voted for the motion. Senator Malone, who wasn't present, was paired in favor of it.

Taft and Vandenberg opposed this move. Ten of the 14 January rebels also voted against it.

Senator Lucas of Illinois, the Democratic leader, called the Wherry proposal "a meat axe" reduction.

Last month, when the senate overturned a ruling by Vice-President Barkley which might have cleared the way for curbing debate on President Truman's civil rights proposals, five of the "secret seven" voted against the Barkley ruling, one supported it and one didn't vote.

Thus the "secret seven," sticking together closely, seem on the way toward compiling a record of their own for the 1950 campaign although none of them is a candidate next year.

OLEO FIGHT SLATED TO OPEN IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—A fight to prohibit the interstate shipment of yellow oleomargarine—lost in the house—will go on in the senate.

A number of dairy states senators intend to introduce legislation Monday to repeal all federal taxes on oleomargarine, but to bar interstate traffic in the colored product. It also would let individual states decide whether they will permit the sale of oleomargarine.

A similar bill was lost in the house yesterday. Then the house went on to pass a substitute measure calling for repeal of the federal oleomargarine taxes but stipulating that restaurants serving it cut it into triangular pats.

The senate finance committee is to begin hearings on the house bill next week. Chairman George (D.-Ga.) said he anticipates they will be short.

EVICTION

tenant and the area rent office, stating the reasons for eviction and the date the renter is required to move out.

These are the acceptable grounds for court action and the waiting period:

1. Non-payment of rent—not less than three days.

2. Violation of "substantial obligation of tenancy," such as conducting a business in part of the premises contrary to the rental contract—not less than 10 days.

3. Nusiance or illegal or immoral use—not less than 10 days.

4. Refusing access to landlord to inspect premises or to show it to a prospective buyer—one month's notice.

5. If tenant sublets the dwelling unit and lease expires or is otherwise terminated — not less than two months.

6. If a state or political subdivision acquires the housing accommodations to make a public improvement, but wishes to rent them temporarily pending construction of new project, the notice period is not less than two months.

7. If tenant occupies part of company housing development customarily limited to employes, but no longer works for the company, the notice period is not less than two months.

When the landlord starts court action on any of the above grounds, he must give written notice to the area rent office stating the title of the case, the court in which it is filed, the name and address of the tenant and the ground for eviction.

Under the rules for the second method of handling evictions, the landlord must petition the area rent office for a certificate, which if approved, will permit him then to take whatever steps are necessary under local law to obtain possession of his property.

These are the acceptable grounds and waiting periods:

1. If the landlord is also the owner and wants to occupy the dwelling himself or let his "immediate family" use it, he must show that such action is taken in "good faith." The tenant is allowed three months to vacate, after which time the landlord may take such steps as are permitted under local law.

If the housing accommodations change ownership after April 1 and the new owner, or his immediate family, wishes to occupy the place, he must show proof that (a) he has a valid purchase contract (b) the right to immediate possession and (c) that he has made the necessary down payment. Three months is allowed the tenant to vacate. However, if the sale contract does not give the right to immediate possession, the certificate will not be issued until after the title has been transferred. In this case, the tenant is allowed two months after the certificate is issued.

2. Alterations or remodeling—the landlord must show proof that such changes cannot be made with the tenant in occupancy. In these cases, the renter is given three months to vacate.

3. If the property owner is a tax-exempt organization, such as a religious, educational or charitable group—and wishes to use the accommodations to house its staff, the tenant is given three months in which to vacate.

COMMITTEE INSPECTS 'OLD' WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—The house public works committee—20 strong—tramped through the decrepit White House on an inspection tour today.

After the legislators had looked over the building from cellar to roof, Chairman Whittington (D.-Miss.) predicted congress will move promptly to foot a $5,400,000 bill to put the home of presidents in first class shape.

After President Truman and his family moved to nearby Blair House, the interior walls of the White House were stripped down to show the extent of the wear and tear damage of decades. The building was ruled unsafe for the presidential family.

Whittington said nothing will be done to the outer walls, but the interior will be completely rebuilt and restored to its original appearance. He told reporters:

"Ther members have obtained a thorough understanding of the magnitude of the job as well as the importance of an immediate appropriation to start the rebuilding.

"I anticipate that both senate and house will act at an early date to pay the bill. All our members agreed it is necessary. The trip was very revealing."

MONDAY SIGNING

in January before the text was even in existence."

The text of the treaty was released to the world on March 18.

"It would thus appear," the Atlantic powers declared, "that the views of the Soviet government on this subject do not arise from an examination of the character and text of the North Atlantic pact but from other considerations. The treaty itself is the best answer to such misrepresentations and allegations.

"The text makes clear the completely defensive nature of this pact, its conformity with both the spirit and letter of the charter of the United Nations and also the fact that the pact is not direced against any nation or group of nations but only against armed aggression.

Diplomats did not explain what "other considerations" the Russians might have in misrepresenting the Atlantic pact as noted in the statement. The general impression of western authorities is that the Soviet Union has been using the treaty as a means of building up its "peace offensive warmongering campaign." The aim of this is to prove that the western nations are planning war with Russia and that only Russia wants peace.

One of the big questions in the minds of western experts on Russia is whether the Russian leader really believe this and if so what they may actually do about it. It the moment, none of the experts here appears to believe that the Russians would risk war against the west. Some fear, however, that the Soviets may be slow in realizing the determination with which the western powers are pooling their strength through the treaty.

The communique on the meeting and the statement on the Russian protest were released through the state department.

Plans for the signing ceremony Monday call for Secretary of State Acheson to act as formal host and a kind of master of ceremonies. Acheson will sign for the United States. President Truman, speaking 10 or 15 minutes, will make the chief address.

In addition, each of the foreign ministers probably will make a brief statement. The formal starting time is 3 p. m. The audience will consist of between 1,300 and 1,400 persons in the high vaulted departmental auditorium on Constitution avenue.

TARVER

Savage, Judge W. M. Harper, Judge David I. Garrett, Sheriff Bailey Grant, and P. A. Poag. Honorary pallbearers will be State Police Captain Rex Ensminger, W. L. Etheridge, Glyn Rogers, Chief Jeff Caldwell, of West Monroe police, Mayor George Breece, City Commissioner Johnny Simmons, and Bill Jackson.

Mr. Tarver is survived by his wife, Mrs. Zephyr Ware Tarver, whom he married here in 1921; three brothers, I. O. Tarver and E. C. Tarver, Olla and Rush Tarver, Grayson; a sister, Mrs. Fred Greenlee, Grayson; and the following nephews and nieces: Mike Tarver, Monroe; Mrs. Fred Stewart, Monroe; Alford Tarver, Jena; Godfrey Tarver, Olla; Mrs. Robert Babcock, Olla, and Mrs. Duane Courtney, Orange, Texas.

He was a son of the late S. T. Tarver and Rose Lively Tarver, pioneer settlers of LaSalle parish and owners of the old Chickasaw homestead. His father was a prominent farmer and cattleman of LaSalle for many years.

A native of LaSalle parish where he was born Dec. 28, 1883, Mr. Tarver left the home of his birth at the age of 20 years to join a logging camp near Olla, later becoming a logging contractor in Caldwell parish. He contracted for teams and equipment used in building the old Iron Mountain Railroad (now Missouri Pacific) through Caldwell and adjoining parishes, and then came to Monroe in the early 1900s to work in the car shops of the railroad company.

Mr. Tarver's career as a peace officer began Jan. 1, 1912, when he joined the Monroe department as a patrolman during the administration of the late Mayor A. A. Forsythe.

He became Monroe's first city detective in 1915 upon appointment by the late Mayor H. D. Apgar who later was also superintendent of police. Tarver remained chief of the city's detectives until the death of Superintendent Apgar on Labor Day, 1930, when he ascended to the position he held until June 19, 1936, when he retired after 24 and a half years as a law enforcer.

Later, for a short time, he served as Ouachita parish jailer, and then accepted an appointment as juvenile officer for the parish, a position he held at the time of his death.

Mr. Tarver was credited with aiding in the great strides made in improvement of the police department during his term as superintendent. The use of fingerprints in crime detection was first introduced here by Tarver, and he effected the first arrest here by that means.

The death of Mr. Tarver reduced the number of living former police superintendents or chiefs of Monroe to four. They are L. M. Lanier, El Paso, Texas, and C. R. Tidwell, F. V. Reitzell, and J. D. Busby, Monroe.

CAB STRIKE

The union's answer to their figures is 'just look for yourself.'"

Police reported a total of 1,072 cabs operating at noon. Between 6,000 and 7,000 normally operate on Saturday—a light traffic day for taxis. Police said a maximum of 953 cabs operated yesterday.

In another development, a supreme court justice signed an order temporarily restraining the union from using more than three pickets in front of the struck Bell Transportation System's garage.

The order, signed by Justice Morris Eder, also forbade pickets from carrying signs bearing the word "strike."

The company, which operates one of the city's numerous cab fleets, told the court that its drivers were not members of the striking union.

Four men were arrested in Brooklyn early this morning in the day's first flareup of violence. Police said the four, non-striking drivers, boarded a cruising cab and that one of them slapped the driver, causing him to lose control of his machine. The cab was partly wrecked when it struck two parked cars.

One hour later, Arthur Brantham, who said he was an organizer for the striking union, was arrested on an assault charge. Police said he punched a garageman employed by one of the struck fleets.

Another man was arrested after a non-striking driver said he hurled rocks at his cab. The accused, Peter Landino, 32, identified himself as an international representative for the union.

In outlying Queens, another driver told police several men halted his cab, then punched and pummeled him. Police said they arrested one of the assailants.

Crux of the dispute is the union's demand that it be recognized as bargaining representative for the cab firms' 36,000 drivers and garagemen. The union also had asked a nine-hour day, $9 day and $11 night scales, a closed shop, and other contract benefits. Present wage scales have not been disclosed.

Operators said they declined to discuss the demands until the union proved by a state-supervised election it represents a majority of the drivers.

According to men in the field, more salesmen earn $10,000 or more a year than do members of any other profession.

ton for dinner with President Truman, and was entertained at several dinners in New York.

As he boarded the huge British liner, the former prime minister wore his "siren suit"—a one-piece coverall garment with a zipper. He had on a white sport shirt open at the collar.

This outfit, he told reporters, will be the costume of the future. He commented "I am more comfortable than you gentlemen with your ties and collars."

The suit was worn by Churchill during air raids in England.

Churchill said he had found "a tremendous awakening to realities" of international affairs in America since his last visit here three years ago.

"I think events are the teacher far more than the words of men," he added.

Asked whether he thought Pacific ocean and Mediterranean pacts should be developed to supplement the North Atlantic pact which he has strongly endorsed, Churchill said:

"I think it ought to be looked into but we must be careful not to spread our resources unduly."

Accompanying Churchill were his wife, his son-in-law and daughter, Capt. and Mrs. Christopher Soames, and his son, Randolph, and the latter's wife. Mrs. Soames was slightly ill but the ship's doctor said it was not serious.

Randolph Churchill has been in this country some time writing and lecturing.

to Washington to beg the president to stay in office."

Arrington filled his entire front page with the joke and included a heading, "Income Tax Suspended," "City of Jackson to Move Gulf of Mexico to Make Room for Expansion," etc. etc. All the stories were continued on the back page and on this there appeared one word, "APRIL FOOL."

Two weeks from today, there will be an Easter sunrise service held in Memorial Park Cemetery, directed by the Christian Youth Association of Monroe and West Monroe of which Vernon Sanders is president. These young people plan to present some classic masterpieces of song at this time such as snatches of "Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's "Messiah," and other choice selections. The group is drilling frequently and has as its leader, E. W. Edwards, director of music at the Monroe First Baptist Church. The early morning cemetery service will be the third one in as many years to be given here. Similar services are held in many large cities and are brilliant and inspiring.

The Intercouncil of Service Clubs is starting something. This new group, made up of representatives from the three principal women's service clubs, the Pilot Club, Altrusa and Quota Clubs, will present a contest to discover the "Woman of the Year." The public will be the judge and a lively contest is anticipated. Plans are still to be completed and when ready will be announced in detail.

The work of starting North Third street widening, from Washington to Louisville, will be initiated Monday, it was stated at the city hall Saturday. The first work will be done on the west side of North Third street at Louisville avenue. All property owners in this block, which is between Arkansas avenue and Louisville on the west side of North Third street, are asked to remove flowers from the neutral zone so that workmen can proceed with street widening. Many have choice plants and flowers and the city officials do not want to cause unnecessary loss of plants provided they are at once removed.

Monroe is a friendly city, many acts of neighborliness are recorded day after day. Especially is a large degree of friendliness shown out in the Cole addition, where some residents enjoy to have it known as College Heights, which is in fact the name of a garden club there. One new resident of this section, finding his new home devoid of some of the trees and shrubs he desired, was informed by an adjacent neighbor that he was welcome to a good-sized fig tree in her yard. She had two of these she said and the she would gladly part with the second tree. But delay in transplanting the past week made it too late to preserve the life of the tree. Then she came forward with another neighborly offer. "That tree is yours even if it stands in my yard. All the figs that it raises this summer are YOURS," she declared, "next fall or winter you can remove the tree successfully." Who could ask for better neighbors than this???

Just read of a human interest story for it ended quite successfully a 15-year search prosecuted by a son seeking to find his father. When Herbert W. Berthold was six months old his parents separated. His mother went to live in Raton, N. M., and his father took up residence in Denver, later settling in Los Angeles.

Fifteen years ago, Herbert began to seek his father. His method was that of going through telephone books in cities visited. The other day he studied the Los Angeles directory in search of the name of his father, William Arthur Berthold. Amazed he found this name in the book! Quite excitedly he called the number and asked: "Is this William A. Berthold?' He got an affirmative reply. "Did you ever live in Denver and were you married to Bonnie Dowell?" he was next interrogated. When the answer was "Yes," he fairly screamed out: 'Then you are my FATHER!" There was a happy reunion. Incidentally the father had only a few days prior had a telephone installed in his home.

lag between order-placing and final payment and delivery.

Hoffman has dashed hopes that the full four-year plan, ending in mid-1952, can be completed for less than $17,000,000,000, the maximum amount foreseen when former Secretary of State Marshall conceived the vast mutual-aid and self-help effort.

Latest reports from Europe indicated great strides, however, toward cutting the dollar gap between Europe's exports and imports."

An informal checkup of recovery progress, compiled from official reports and data given congress, showed these trends:

Industry—Production up to pre-war 1938; excluding ravaged Germany, Europe is 14 per cent above pre-war. The goal for 1952 is 30 per cent. It will not restore pre-war living standards but will, it is hoped, end the need for "extraordinary" outside help.

Farming: Harvests in 1948 were equal to pre-war and 25 per cent greater than 1947. The 1952 target is 10 to 15 per cent higher.

Exports: They rose last year 21 per cent above 1947 totals. All but three countries have cut their trade deficits. But dollars earned from exports will pay only about half the cost of needed imports this year.

Inflation: Most countries have launched anti-inflation programs and some already have shown effect. Black markets have dwindled. Hoffman said: "Prospects for financial and monetary stability in the participating countries continued to improve."

Investment: E. C. A. so far has failed to encourage substantial American investment abroad. Hoffman has urged congress to permit this country to make long-term contracts with firms which enter foreign countries and produce needed strategic materials. The assurance of a long-term market, he holds, is the only "guarantee" which will attract U. S. risk money.

Strategic materials: E. C. A.'s efforts to stimulate shipment of vital defense materials, as a partial return benefit, have had small success. Only minor quantities of rubber, fiber, industrial diamonds and a few other items have been contracted for.

Communism: E. C. A. believes the Marshall plan has prevented three countries from going Communist and has definitely turned the tide of the cold war in favor of America throughout Europe. If the plan is a success, Hoffman predicts, the politburo will decide to abandon efforts to Sovietize western Europe.

VAIN MOVE IS TRIED BY REDS IN BERLIN

BERLIN, April 2.—(AP)—The Russians tried vainly today to inch onto American soil in Berlin.

They even brought along their own maps of the quartered city in an effort to redraw the boundary lines by a matter of inches. Like everything else in the East-West dispute, their maps disagreed with the American maps.

The arguments involved only one yard of territory in one case and a matter of inches in another, but it made Germans living nearby restive and nervous.

Russians maintaining the blockade of western Berlin tried to arrest several Germans filling in a ditch. American police arrived and argued with the Russians. Both pulled out maps. The American map showed the Germans were one yard inside the U. S. sector. The Russian map disagreed. The Germans dropped their ditch-filling task and there the matter stood without further trouble.

Meanwhile, in another border area, Soviet sector police tried to seize a German truck loaded with tires and invaded a warehouse where it was loaded. The Germans summoned American military police and then a Russian officer joined in. The dispute involved inches of soil. The road the Russian blockaders were patrolling was in the Russian sector, but the warehouse and the sidewalk, by American reckoning, were in the U. S. territory.

Again, the argument was a standoff. Both cases were referred to higher levels.

under the Italian peace treaty. Split is about 140 miles southeast down the Yugoslav Adriatic coast from Istria).

Tito told the delegation visiting him at Brioni that he is forming a special ministry to deal with Istria and the Slovene coastal areas.

"When we have liberated these regions," he said, "we laid down the same principles for the peoples of other nationalities which hold good for all other of our regions — the principle of national equality."

Tito denied specifically what he said were reports there had been uprisings in Istria, that there had been uprisings on the peninsula, that the people had destroyed railway lines, gunfiring had been heard in the area, and that his supporters and anti-Tito forces had fought.

"I laugh at these lies," he said, "the same as the people in our villages."

"Yesterday, for example, I read that a Moscow radio commentator said there was a paradise in our country for kulaks (rich peasants).

"It is not difficult to suppose what will our rich peasants think about it, whom we have prevented by various measures from getting rich at the cost of the working people.

"In all this that is now being talked and written about us and our country, there are so many absurdities that one must burst out laughing on hearing them.

"We do not mind this. They cannot deceive anyone in our country, but they may deceive some among themselves."

Repealing the Taft-Hartley labor act; awaiting both senate and house action and cleared by committees.

Boosting existing minimum age levels; approved by the house labor committee.

Veterans pensions; rejected by the house, but now back again in revised form.

Continuing the foreign aid program, known as the Marshall Plan, to halt the spread of communism abroad; scheduled for house debate next week as the senate strove for a vote on it.

Stand-by price control and inflation curb powers for the president; no committee action taken.

Tax increases; nothing done and nothing in sight at least for the present.

Federal aid to education; approved by committee and awaiting senate action.

Pre-paid government health program; no committee action.

Extension of the reciprocal trade program; passed by the house and slated for senate debate next week.

Oleomargarine tax repeal: Passed by the house; senate hearing due next week.

Long-range housing, provided for construction of 810,000 low-cost housing units in six years; approved by senate committee, awaiting senate action, but not yet considered by the house or its committees.

Postal pay raises: Being considered by house postoffice committee; no other action.

The house is well-alead of its normal past schedules on money bills.

The senate still feeling the delaying effect on a three-weeks filibuster over civil rights legislation, has passed no appropriation bills. But it usually clears them up in a hurry once it gets under way.

'Secret Seven' Undertake War On Truman's Program

By Jack Bell

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—A group of Republican senators who half-jokingly are known as the "secret seven" apparently have undertaken full scale warfare on the whole range of President Truman's legislative program.

With Senators Wherry of of Nebraska, the G. O. P. floor leader, and Brewster of Maine, head of the party's senatorial campaign committee, among its members, this group operates independently of the Republican policy committee in swinging its meat axe at Democratic proposals.

Other members of the lineup were reported to include senators Jenner of Indiana, Bricker of Ohio, Malone of Nevada, Kem of Missouri and Martin of Pennsylvania.

Meeting informally for lunch and at other times, the "secret seven" is said to map its strategy largely on the basis that Republicans won't get anywhere politically by adopting a "mee-too" attitude.

They represent a different viewpoint from the rebellious group of 14 senators who tried unsuccessfully last January to unseat Senator Taft of Ohio as chairman of the policy committee.

The 14 contended that the Republicans ought to stand for some social welfare and other measures similar to those proposed in the past by New Dealers.

Senator Morse (R.-Ore.), one of the group, classed himself and his colleagues as "liberals." But Senator Lodge (R.-Mass.), another of the 14 objected to any labelling of the group.

Although they started out bravely with the avowed purpose of remaking Republican policy, this group apparently hasn't held together too close. Senator Tobey (R.-N. H.), one of the original 14, said if there have been any meetings he hasn't heard of them.

Senators Taft and Vandenberg (R.-Mich.) apparently stand apart from both groups. Taft is described as sometimes "too New Dealish" for the "secret seven" and sometimes too conservative for the 14.

Because of his leadership in foreign affairs issues, Vandenberg apparently isn't tabbed on domestic questions by either side.

The "secret seven" meanwhile have been active in trying to stir up trouble for the Democrats. They haven't always stuck together, but most of them usually are around when they think there's an opportunity to lure the Democrats into a pitfall.

Bricker took the lead, for instance, in an unsuccessful effort to send the rent control bill back to a senate-house conference committee. All seven voted for Bricker's motion, which was beaten, 53 to 33.

Vandenberg and Taft went along with Bricker. Five of the group of 14 were for, and four were against. The others didn't vote.

When Wherry tried unsuccessfully to lop 5 per cent off the $5,580,000,000 European recovery authorization Friday, he and five of his colleagues voted for the motion. Senator Malone, who wasn't present, was paired in favor of it.

Taft and Vandenberg opposed this move. Ten of the 14 January rebels also voted against it.

Senator Lucas of Illinois, the Democratic leader, called the Wherry proposal "a meat axe" reduction.

Last month, when the senate overturned a ruling by Vice-President Barkley which might have cleared the way for curbing debate on President Truman's civil rights proposals, five of the "secret seven" voted against the Barkley ruling, one supported it and one didn't vote.

Thus the "secret seven," sticking together closely, seem on the way toward compiling a record of their own for the 1950 campaign although none of them is a candidate next year.

OLEO FIGHT SLATED TO OPEN IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—A fight to prohibit the interstate shipment of yellow oleomargarine—lost in the house—will go on in the senate.

A number of dairy states senators intend to introduce legislation Monday to repeal all federal taxes on oleomargarine, but to bar interstate traffic in the colored product. It also would let individual states decide whether they will permit the sale of oleomargarine.

A similar bill was lost in the house yesterday. Then the house went on to pass a substitute measure calling for repeal of the federal oleomargarine taxes but stipulating that restaurants serving it cut it into triangular pats.

The senate finance committee is to begin hearings on the house bill next week. Chairman George (D.-Ga.) said he anticipates they will be short.

EVICTION

tenant and the area rent office, stating the reasons for eviction and the date the renter is required to move out.

These are the acceptable grounds for court action and the waiting period:

1. Non-payment of rent—not less than three days.

2. Violation of "substantial obligation of tenancy," such as conducting a business in part of the premises contrary to the rental contract—not less than 10 days.

3. Nusiance or illegal or immoral use—not less than 10 days.

4. Refusing access to landlord to inspect premises or to show it to a prospective buyer—one month's notice.

5. If tenant sublets the dwelling unit and lease expires or is otherwise terminated — not less than two months.

6. If a state or political subdivision acquires the housing accommodations to make a public improvement, but wishes to rent them temporarily pending construction of new project, the notice period is not less than two months.

7. If tenant occupies part of company housing development customarily limited to employes, but no longer works for the company, the notice period is not less than two months.

When the landlord starts court action on any of the above grounds, he must give written notice to the area rent office stating the title of the case, the court in which it is filed, the name and address of the tenant and the ground for eviction.

Under the rules for the second method of handling evictions, the landlord must petition the area rent office for a certificate, which if approved, will permit him then to take whatever steps are necessary under local law to obtain possession of his property.

These are the acceptable grounds and waiting periods:

1. If the landlord is also the owner and wants to occupy the dwelling himself or let his "immediate family" use it, he must show that such action is taken in "good faith." The tenant is allowed three months to vacate, after which time the landlord may take such steps as are permitted under local law.

If the housing accommodations change ownership after April 1 and the new owner, or his immediate family, wishes to occupy the place, he must show proof that (a) he has a valid purchase contract (b) the right to immediate possession and (c) that he has made the necessary down payment. Three months is allowed the tenant to vacate. However, if the sale contract does not give the right to immediate possession, the certificate will not be issued until after the title has been transferred. In this case, the tenant is allowed two months after the certificate is issued.

2. Alterations or remodeling—the landlord must show proof that such changes cannot be made with the tenant in occupancy. In these cases, the renter is given three months to vacate.

3. If the property owner is a tax-exempt organization, such as a religious, educational or charitable group—and wishes to use the accommodations to house its staff, the tenant is given three months in which to vacate.

COMMITTEE INSPECTS 'OLD' WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—The house public works committee—20 strong—tramped through the decrepit White House on an inspection tour today.

After the legislators had looked over the building from cellar to roof, Chairman Whittington (D.-Miss.) predicted congress will move promptly to foot a $5,400,000 bill to put the home of presidents in first class shape.

After President Truman and his family moved to nearby Blair House, the interior walls of the White House were stripped down to show the extent of the wear and tear damage of decades. The building was ruled unsafe for the presidential family.

Whittington said nothing will be done to the outer walls, but the interior will be completely rebuilt and restored to its original appearance. He told reporters:

"Ther members have obtained a thorough understanding of the magnitude of the job as well as the importance of an immediate appropriation to start the rebuilding.

"I anticipate that both senate and house will act at an early date to pay the bill. All our members agreed it is necessary. The trip was very revealing."

in January before the text was even in existence."

The text of the treaty was released to the world on March 18.

"It would thus appear," the Atlantic powers declared, "that the views of the Soviet government on this subject do not arise from an examination of the character and text of the North Atlantic pact but from other considerations. The treaty itself is the best answer to such misrepresentations and allegations.

"The text makes clear the completely defensive nature of this pact, its conformity with both the spirit and letter of the charter of the United Nations and also the fact that the pact is not directed against any nation or group of nations but only against armed aggression.

Diplomats did not explain what "other considerations" the Russians might have in misrepresenting the Atlantic pact as noted in the statement. The general impression of western authorities is that the Soviet Union has been using the treaty as a means of building up its "peace offensive warmongering campaign." The aim of this is to prove that the western nations are planning war with Russia and that only Russia wants peace.

One of the big questions in the minds of western experts on Russia is whether the Russian leader really believe this and if so what they may actually do about it. It the moment, none of the experts here appears to believe that the Russians would risk war against the west. Some fear, however, that the Soviets may be slow in realizing the determination with which the western powers are pooling their strength through the treaty.

The communique on the meeting and the statement on the Russian protest were released through the state department.

Plans for the signing ceremony Monday call for Secretary of State Acheson to act as formal host and a kind of master of ceremonies. Acheson will sign for the United States. President Truman, speaking 10 or 15 minutes, will make the chief address.

In addition, each of the foreign ministers probably will make a brief statement. The formal starting time is 3 p. m. The audience will consist of between 1,300 and 1,400 persons in the high vaulted departmental auditorium on Constitution avenue.

Savage, Judge W. M. Harper, Judge David I. Garrett, Sheriff Bailey Grant, and P. A. Poag. Honorary pallbearers will be State Police Captain Rex Ensminger, W. L. Etheridge, Glyn Rogers, Chief Jeff Caldwell, of West Monroe police, Mayor George Breece, City Commissioner Johnny Simmons, and Bill Jackson.

Mr. Tarver is survived by his wife, Mrs. Zephyr Ware Tarver, whom he married here in 1921; three brothers, I. O. Tarver and E. C. Tarver, Olla and Rush Tarver, Grayson; a sister, Mrs. Fred Greenlee, Grayson; and the following nephews and nieces: Mike Tarver, Monroe; Mrs. Fred Stewart, Monroe; Alford Tarver, Jena; Godfrey Tarver, Olla; Mrs. Robert Babcock, Olla, and Mrs. Duane Courtney, Orange, Texas.

He was a son of the late S. T. Tarver and Rose Lively Tarver, pioneer settlers of LaSalle parish and owners of the old Chickasaw homestead. His father was a prominent farmer and cattleman of LaSalle for many years.

A native of LaSalle parish where he was born Dec. 28, 1883, Mr. Tarver left the home of his birth at the age of 20 years to join a logging camp near Olla, later becoming a logging contractor in Caldwell parish. He contracted for teams and equipment used in building the old Iron Mountain Railroad (now Missouri Pacific) through Caldwell and adjoining parishes, and then came to Monroe in the early 1900s to work in the car shops of the railroad company.

Mr. Tarver's career as a peace officer began Jan. 1, 1912, when he joined the Monroe department as a patrolman during the administration of the late Mayor A. A. Forsythe.

He became Monroe's first city detective in 1915 upon appointment by the late Mayor H. D. Apgar who later was also superintendent of police. Tarver remained chief of the city's detectives until the death of Superintendent Apgar on Labor Day, 1930, when he ascended to the position he held until June 19, 1936, when he retired after 24 and a half years as a law enforcer.

Later, for a short time, he served as Ouachita parish jailer, and then accepted an appointment as juvenile officer for the parish, a position he held at the time of his death.

Mr. Tarver was credited with aiding in the great strides made in improvement of the police department during his term as superintendent. The use of fingerprints in crime detection was first introduced here by Tarver, and he effected the first arrest here by that means.

The death of Mr. Tarver reduced the number of living former police superintendents or chiefs of Monroe to four. They are L. M. Lanier, El Paso, Texas, and C. R. Tidwell, F. V. Reitzell, and J. D. Busby, Monroe.

CAB STRIKE

The union's answer to their figures is 'just look for yourself.'"

Police reported a total of 1,072 cabs operating at noon. Between 6,000 and 7,000 normally operate on Saturday—a light traffic day for taxis. Police said a maximum of 953 cabs operated yesterday.

In another development, a supreme court justice signed an order temporarily restraining the union from using more than three pickets in front of the struck Bell Transportation System's garage.

The order, signed by Justice Morris Eder, also forbade pickets from carrying signs bearing the word "strike."

The company, which operates one of the city's numerous cab fleets, told the court that its drivers were not members of the striking union.

Four men were arrested in Brooklyn early this morning in the day's first flareup of violence. Police said the four, non-striking drivers, boarded a cruising cab and that one of them slapped the driver, causing him to lose control of his machine. The cab was partly wrecked when it struck two parked cars.

One hour later, Arthur Brantham, who said he was an organizer for the striking union, was arrested on an assault charge. Police said he punched a garageman employed by one of the struck fleets.

Another man was arrested after a non-striking driver said he hurled rocks at his cab. The accused, Peter Landino, 32, identified himself as an international representative for the union.

In outlying Queens, another driver told police several men halted his cab, then punched and pummeled him. Police said they arrested one of the assailants.

Crux of the dispute is the union's demand that it be recognized as bargaining representative for the cab firms' 36,000 drivers and garagemen. The union also had asked a nine-hour day, $9 day and $11 night scales, a closed shop, and other contract benefits. Present wage scales have not been disclosed.

Operators said they declined to discuss the demands until the union proved by a state-supervised election it represents a majority of the drivers.

According to men in the field, more salesmen earn $10 000 or more a year than do members of any other profession.

N.A.A.C.P. MEETING IS PLANNED FOR TODAY

A mass meeting of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People will be held at 3:30 p. m. today at the Zion Traveller Baptist Church, 202 North Eleventh street.

Rev. P. E. Pierce, pastor of the church and president of the local N. A. A. C. P., said all members of the organization and the general public are cordially invited to attend.

ton for dinner with President Truman, and was entertained at several dinners in New York.

As he boarded the huge British liner, the former prime minister wore his "siren suit"—a one-piece coverall garment with a zipper. He had on a white sport shirt open at the collar.

This outfit, he told reporters, will be the costume of the future. He commented "I am more comfortable than you gentlemen with your ties and collars."

The suit was worn by Churchill during air raids in England.

Churchill said he had found "a tremendous awakening to realities" of international affairs in America since his last visit here three years ago.

"I think events are the teacher far more than the words of men," he added.

Asked whether he thought Pacific ocean and Mediterranean pacts should be developed to supplement the North Atlantic pact which he has strongly endorsed, Churchill said:

"I think it ought to be looked into but we must be careful not to spread our resources unduly."

Accompanying Churchill were his wife, his son-in-law and daughter, Capt. and Mrs. Christopher Soames, and his son, Randolph, and the latter's wife. Mrs. Soames was slightly ill but the ship's doctor said it was not serious.

Randolph Churchill has been in this country some time writing and lecturing.

You can usually count on a pound of fresh shrimp to make a main dish to serve three when it is coupled with a creole or curry sauce; if the shrimp is to be used for a first-course cocktail a pound will serve four easily.

We're Lagging Woefully

The annual drive for funds of the American Red Cross has been conducted for the past month—a much longer period than we thought would be necessary to raise money needed to carry on the program here in Ouachita parish—and the community is still far short of its goal.

The Red Cross this year asked only $38,000 from the parish, an amount that seems most reasonable in view of the many services rendered by that organization. Those directing the campaign expected the quota to be reached within a week, but instead it still hasn't been approached even in four weeks. That isn't like Ouachita parish.

Appeals have been made by parish Red Cross officials for renewed effort and the other day the publisher of these newspapers received a letter from Wright Bryan, editor of the Atlanta Journal, who is vice-chairman of the national Red Cross campaign fund, urging our continued cooperation in this worthy cause, pointing out that newspapers have "a very great influence and responsibility in the areas which they serve." We appreciate the compliment and pledge to Mr. Bryan that we will continue to open our columns for news stories, pictures and editorials supporting the campaign, as we have done during the past month and a half.

The very great assistance given disaster victims during the past few days should further emphasize the inestimable service rendered by the Red Cross. The tornadoes which struck our neighboring states of Arkansas, Texas, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Mississippi, and the flood which resulted when a levee broke at Port Allen in our own state resulted in the pouring of thousands of dollars as well as clothing, food and other essentials into the affected areas by the Red Cross. Certainly this was a demonstration of material service brought home to us.

We cannot fail in this offering of relief to our fellowmen. Let's conclude this campaign at once by completing the job of financing that has been assigned to us.

Danger From Within

Congressional reports on activities of Communists in the United States is little short of alarming. The house committee on un-American activities, emerging from the siesta in which it has been indulging since it was reformed at the inception of the new congress, reveals there are 825,000 Communists and fellow travelers who will be either spies, traitors or saboteurs in case of war.

In the event of a national crisis, there would be a potential army nearly 1,000,000 strong within the borders of the United States, capable of doing great damage and endangering national security. These statistics are based upon facts given by J. Edgar Hoover of the F. B. I.

The United States is the No. 1 target in the war between communism and civilization. The thousands of spies now in this country take orders directly from Moscow. Washington has been slow to move against these conspirators, and only the other day Russians came to New York from Moscow and urged 18,000 wildly cheering adherents to stand up for Soviet Russia.

The states are showing more alarm over Communist propaganda in the United States than Washington has. The lower house of the Kansas legislature has voted, 94 to 4, to demand a loyalty oath from every public official, teacher, college instructor or legislator.

The action was prompted by the charge that communism was being preached by certain members of the faculty at the state university.

Air Force Academy

Now that the air force is one of three separate divisions in the department of national defense, it is in the cards that it ultimately will have a training institution of its own comparable to that of the army at West Point and of the navy at Annapolis.

That much conceded—and it is—it does not follow that creation of such an institution is a "must" of the current session of congress.

There is some prospect that the service academy board will recommend establishment of the air force academy at Randolph Field, Tex., for which climatic reasons are emphasized on the basis of all-year flying by learners.

No fewer than 14 separate bills for establishment of such an academy are before the senate and house armed services committees, and many states will crave the honor of being chosen for its site.

Probable cost of such an academy has been estimated at $90,000,000, a sizable figure even in this era of gigantic spending. That, it is asserted, is less than it would cost to construct such an academy at either West Point or Annapolis. Even at a lesser cost, neither of these places would be acceptable to the air force.

Were either selected, there might be a popular inference that the air force was somehow tied to the army or the navy, instead of being independent as it is now by statute.

Meanwhile, at different training schools, the air force is turning out good pilots, navigators, bombers, gunners and radio men, as well as capable ground crews, on which the safety of fliers depends. Therefore it is better that there be a reasonable delay than that a site be selected that is not adequate for a long time to come.

English woman who found a baseball cap in a can of lend-lease dried eggs could easily solve her problem, any GI will tell her. Simply fry the cap and throw the eggs away.

Russians were flying airplanes back in 1882, according to Moscow scientists. Strange what the Muscovites accomplished before the bolsheviki took over.

What Others Say: EDITORS' ROUNDTABLE

PROPAGANDA WAR

Editors, in very large majority, approve the admission of delegates from Iron-Curtain countries to America for the recently-concluded cultural and scientific conference for world peace in New York; they feel that the state department blundered in barring "unofficial" left-wing delegates from other countries. A few editors defend this distinction. While a small minority of the press places the whole issue on a basis of visa reciprocity. Aside from the issue of who should have been admitted, agreement is general, The Daily Worker excepted, that the net propaganda result of the conference favors the non-Communist nations.

Nashville (Tenn.) Tennessean (Dem.): "It has been known from the start the so-called National Council of Arts, Sciences and Professions (sponsoring the conference) would be a sounding board for Communist propaganda. . . . The state department and Governor Dewey of New York were asked to prohibit the session. Both, however, took the stand that the American people, forewarned of the course to be followed, had nothing to fear by any outpouring of Soviet-controlled delegates."

Dallas (Texas) Morning News (Ind.-Dem.): "Best way to appraise the 'peace' conference in New York is to turn back the pages of the newspapers and read what some of the same people were saying about Russia a few years ago. . . . The Communist party members are hewing to the line. The fellow travelers are everything from dubious to dismayed. . . . It is encouraging that some of our American ultraliberals in session at New York have got around to the point where they can at least see Russia equally at fault with their own country."

Philadelphia (Pa.) Inquirer (Ind.-Rep.): "Whatever propaganda advantage there was in the . . . conference . . . is clearly on the side of the non-Communist nations. . . . The salient fact about this party of left-wing 'intellectuals' is that it was held without interference from the government of the United States. Delegates were permitted to express their views freely, no matter how illogical or lacking in factual support."

Des Moines (Iowa) Register (Ind.-Rep.): "Under a stupid law passed away back during the Red scare of 1918, the state department refused visas to a good many of the invited guests (from Britain, western Europe and Latin America), including a French Catholic priest, on the ground that they are Communists. But the department gave visas to delegates from Iron Curtain countries—who really are Communists—because it considers them 'official representatives' of their governments—which they are not, except indirectly."

St. Louis (Mo.) Globe-Democrat (Ind.): "It seems to us that the state department's middle course is . . . right . . . . It merely says the accredited representatives of any foreign government shall not be barred from seeing and sharing America's tradition of free speech and exchange of ideas. But . . . neither will the excursion train be permitted to be loaded with irresponsible propagandists who have no open standing with their governments nor freedom to change their preconceived notions of democracy."

Evansville (Ind.) Press (Ind.): "The state department is inconsistent. . . . We should welcome visitors from countries where Americans are welcomed. . . . Could a similar group of Americans get visas to visit Russia and her satellites? If Communists, probably yes. If non-Communists, almost certainly no. Last year American congressmen weren't allowed to enter the Soviet Union. . . . Why shouldn't we deal with this problem exactly on that basis?"

St. Louis (Mo.) Star-Times (Ind.): "This reaction is understandable. It is the instinctive tendency to retaliate in kind. But second thought reveals the fallacy. . . . The Communists are afraid to permit Americans to visit and speak in Russia because they are afraid of free speech. . . . Americans should not be afraid to permit foreign Communists to visit and speak in the United States, because our way of life will stand up and be strengthened by free speech."

New Orleans (La.) Times-Picayune (Ind.-Dem.): "The principle is sound. But . . . its abuse by a Red 'wrecking crew' such as functioned at the Wroclaw (Poland) conference last year raises grave doubts regarding the wisdom of granting American hospitality to Moscow propagandists at this critical time."

FALLACIES OR COMMON SENSE?

Another serious depression at the present time would find this nation unprepared. There is every likelihood in the world that it would bankrupt the nation, destroy all confidence in the nation's financial responsibility, and in the end bring about the overthrow of our traditional form of government.

Yet if we do not take steps in this country to place our economic house on a sounder foundation, it is exceedingly possible that such a depression will descend upon us and we shall pull the house down on our heads.

There are many signs now that we are facing a considerable recession in our economic activity. Whether that recession shall extend itself into a real depression depends upon how we meet it. As things now stand, we are not ready for it. We could have been ready. Almost four years have passed since the end of the war. Much could have been done during those four years, but instead of taking common sense steps to make our economy sound during those years, our whole policy has been based on political expediency and wild-eyed fallacies in economic thinking. Our leadership still refuses to face the facts of life.

First and foremost among the things that we should do now—and that should have been done when the war ended—if we are to avoid a ruinous depression in the near future or inevitably eventually, are: (1) reduce government expenses (2) reduce taxes (3) systematically pay off the national debt, and (4) return to a sound currency. These basic steps toward a sound economy have either been directly contradicted or ignored since the war's end.

As a matter of fact, of course, a considerable reduction in our high level of economic activity was to have been expected by this time, and we should have been ready for it. The demands of the war and the economic gaps left by the war naturally called for extraordinary activity in the production and distribution of material goods following the war, but simple common sense would tell us that this unusual situation would not last forever. There was bound to come a time when these gaps would be filled and there would be a leveling off and even a considerable reduction in the activity that it took to fill them.

This situation should not have meant, however, that there should be any lessening in the prosperity of the people. In fact, it should have meant that there would be an even greater increase in the standard of living. Under sound economic practices, it would mean that it would give us a chance to produce more things and better things for more people at lower prices. That is the way the standard of living has always been bettered in this country and that is the way it must always be bettered —not by subsidies or doles or pump-priming and other false supports to our economy that cannot possibly last or improve conditions long.

Instead of taking the sound economic steps mentioned, however—which any sensible business concern would have taken under similar circumstances—the government proposes just the opposite. The government proposes (1) to increase the budget (2) to increase taxes (3) no systematic plan for payment of the debt, and (4) no return to a sound currency. It thereby proposes to use the people's money for increased cost of government rather than their own welfare; it thereby places itself in position where it may not be able to meet the interest charges on the national debt; it thereby proposes to continues with a currency that could easily lead to run-away inflation. The government must have continued high economic activity to remain solvent itself, yet through higher taxes and higher spending it kills the incentive of the people to earn and to invest, the only ways in which this high activity can be maintained. If we are not careful, we shall wake up some morning and find we have no "seed corn" left!

Will we come to our senses before it is too late?

DeWitt Mackenzie: MACKENZIE'S COLUMN

If Russia is right in protesting the North Atlantic pact as an offensive instrument, then we—the people—of the signatory countries are being buncoed by our governments.

We are assured that the alliance is purely defensive. It is designed to act as a deterrent to any nation which might have aggressive ideas. In that sense it is an instrument of peace.

A lot of us believe that.

Unity and preparedness among peace-loving nations is the only "peace pact" worth the paper it is written on. Might doesn't necessarily make right, but it wields an impressive authority.

Winston Churchill said in his Boston speech Thursday night that western Europe would have been communized and London would have been bombed before this but for the deterrent of the atomic bomb in American control. That's an assumption which might be hard to prove. However, if Russia did have aggressive designs it's probable that the atom bomb would restrain her.

This power-packed peace alliance doesn't alter the unhappy picture of a Europe divided against itself. It only means that the western allies are pooling their resources and getting organized defensively for contingencies. It means that they are establishing a defensive front-line running from northern Norway down through central Germany to southern Italy. That's a line which aggression must not cross. Meantime the "cold" war will go on.

Washington observers understand that rejection of the Russian protest against the alliance is a foregone conclusion.

Naturally Moscow expects a rejection of this protest which presumably was made largely for propaganda purposes. She also must expect a firm reply to the effect that the allies mean business and are standing pat.

It's given to wonder, however, whether this wouldn't be a good time for the western allies to reiterate and emphasize that they are out for peace. It is unwise to assume that all eastern Europe knows we intend no aggression.

Undoubtedly there are plenty of folk behind the iron curtain who do believe the western powers are planning war. Denials probably won't dispel that belief, but they may do some good and in any event should be on the record.

Such a reiteration of peaceful intentions might fit well with the view said to be held by British Foreign Secretary Bevin and some other western officials. John Hightower, Associated Press diplomatic expert, says this view is that, once the Atlantic pact comes into force, Moscow may decide Russia's European expansion has come to an end and that the Kremlin may seek a truce in the cold war.

This wouldn't mean that the Bolshevist world revolution for the spread of Communism had been abandoned. But it would relieve some of the strain in a Europe still suffering grievously from effects of the late world conflict.

Personal Application Best Way To Judge Inflation

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP)—How can you tell when inflation stops and deflation begins? How can you know when business is normal, or if it ever was, or will be?

Maybe economists can point out the exact spots on their charts where inflation started and ended—but usually only months after these things occurred. As with most of us, their hindsight is pretty good.

Right now things are confused. Most other industries think it certainly has now. Only a few are still going strong.

In this jig-saw business pattern, just where is the point that the nation's economic picture as a whole changed?

Look at it personally. If you have your old job, aren't worried about losing it or having your pay cut, you may not have noticed whether inflation has gone and deflation come. You may spend a little less for groceries, but not much. And you are paying more for the new car than you expected when you got on the list months ago. Your rent may be higher.

But if you have been laid off at the mill, work fewer days a week, or know someone in a job like yours who was laid off, the present situation may look like more than deflation to you—it may look like a real depression.

Perhaps the way you feel about it is the best way to judge.

It's inflation—if you, yourself, always seem to be getting a little more money but also spending more than expected for what you want and need, or never able to find these goods in the market because someone with more cash gobbled them up. You jingle more coins, but you have no more left at the end of the week.

Does it still seem that way to you now?

It's deflation—if you pay a little less for goods than you did, find the stores overstocked with everything you need, but at the same time find that: as a worker, you have less take home pay than you did and therefore can't buy as much anyway; as a merchant, you have less profit, or none at all left after you meet your expenses, which go on and on; as a manufacturer or farmer or miner, you have more and more unsold goods piling up on your hands, and losing value as they grow.

That's the personal way to judge whether it's inflation or deflation.

Angelo Patri: OUR CHILDREN

THE GROWING GIRL

An ache comes to every mother's heart when she sees that the little girl she has been babying, loving, rearing toward womanhood is about to arrive at that wonderful age. All mothers know with their brains that girls become women, but they never know it with their emotions. When the day comes for the child to cross the brook of time, few mothers go through the day without tears. "Of course," they tell themselves, "she must grow up—but—"

It is graduation time in more sense than one when the girl graduate says, "Mother, Dick has asked me for the senior prom. May I have a new dress?"

"Of course," replies Mother. "We will go shopping for it this week end."

Between periods, at every intermission, knots of girls gather and the talk is all about the dresses to be worn and the boys who are to escort them. Each

George E. Sokolsky: THESE DAYS

ALL KINDS OF LIBERALS

A reader of the picture book, "Life," was angered over the continued preeminence of one of its editors whose political history he did not like. So he wrote to the editor of "Life," Henry R. Luce. The reply to that letter did not come from the aforesaid Harry Luce but from John Shaw Billings, who signs himself as editorial director. The reader gave me the correspondence, which I find extraordinary interesting.

In the first place, John Shaw Billings thinks of editors and writers as of janitors or elevator boys without regard to opinions, character or relations to the community. For this is what Mr. Billings has to say on the subject.

"It has always been a working rule at 'Time, Inc.' that a man's private life was his own and that his politics outside the office was not a company concern. He was judged on his professional performance here and his compatability with the general journalistic purposes of our magazines. In the case of Communists, our rule naturally does not apply, as a matter of self-protection."

Of course, "Time, Inc." is entitled to manage its own affairs and "Life" is a popular and successful publication. Mr. Billings' objectivity is, however, exciting. Apparently a thief, a murderer, a marijuana addict could be a "Life" editor as long as he did not do it in the office. But can a man be one thing at home and another in the office? Can a man, for instance, be a fellow-traveler at home and a loyal American in the office?

Mr. Billings' only objection to Communists, in spite of all that has been disclossed in the Chambers-Hiss case, in the investigations of the house committee on un-American activities, etc., has to do with "self-protection." It is a little hard to understand what self-protection has to do with a man's private life being his own and "his politics outside the office" "not a company concern."

Maybe, John Shaw Billings is right that a man who writes opinions, views, ideas, may have private opinions at home and "compatability with the general journalistic purposes" in the office. It is a little difficult to understand how a man can use his mind with such flexibility, particularly when the intellectual attitudes at home and in office are in conflict.

There are men and women who say that they can see all sides of a question. They usually regard the person who adheres to a doctrine as a bigot. They look upon themselves as liberals and by liberalism they mean not the search for human liberty, but rather for a soft attitude, a willingness to avoid decisions, a rejection of the positive. John Shaw Billings, in this curious letter, writes:

". . . . Liberalism is largely a matter of degree and his has never gone to such an extreme that we were embarrassed by his outside activities or distrustful of his journalistic judgments."

(The person referred to is not indicated in this discussion because his name is of no interest.)

What are the degrees of liberalism? What an inderinable word is this liberalism. I presume from the context of the correspondence that by liberalism is meant the range of ideas and conflicts from slightly off-color to communism or fascism or anarchism. It is difficult to decide what so misused and mangled a word has come to mean. Perhaps it means nothing.

Alexander Hamilton wrote in the first "Federalist" paper:

". . . . History will teach us . . . that of those men who have overturned the liberties of republics, the greatest number have begun their career by paying an obsequious court to the people; commencing demagogues and ending tyrants."

If for demagogues he had said liberals, he would have fitted his sentence to the year 1949, when liberals met in session at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York to plead peace while advocating slavery; shouting popular slogans while pursuing a cowardly subservience to a foreign foe. When liberalism approaches treason, how is it to be defined?

I thank Mr. Billings for having given me an opportunity to expose the fallacy of using words without meaning so that ideas may be without precision. Perhaps his liberalism represents a total nihilism.

Charles B. Driscoll NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

HOUSTON, Texas.—The average cost per room in this Shamrock hotel, at which I am staying while exploring this area of Texas, is $17,000. That's the room, built, finished, and furnished. All beds have rubber foam mattresses, and they cost $50 apiece. I believe the rooms cost a little more here than they used to cost in the best hotels when hotels were being built.

I had a long talk with Mr. George Lindholm, manager of the house, a pleasant New Yorker of Swedish parentage. With 1,100 rooms and a great many customers to handle you might think Lindholm would be hard to see. Not at all. He's right there, panting to hear customer's ideas about how to run a hotel.

My first complaint was that I could find no place to put used razor blades, and I never put them into waste baskets, to cut somebody's hands.

Mr. Lindholm said I would find the blade slot inside the medicine cabinet in the bathroom, and, sure enough, I did. Queer place for it, to be sure, but there it is.

The furniture and furnishings are about the best I have seen in any hotel, and I've stopped in most of them. Of course, this is about the only first class hotel built in recent years, and that accounts for some of its modernity. For instance, all light switches are noiseless mercury switches. No pistol snap, no sound, and each switch can be found in the dark by a small, almost invisible light built into the mechanism.

Glenn McCarthy, oilking about whom all the world knows by this time, spent, according to rumor, from 20 million to 22 million dollars on the 18-story building and its furnishings. Mr. McCarthy has plenty of money left, and more is spouting out of his oil wells.

The hotel is six miles out in the country from the center of the business area, about $1.50 by taxi, I discovered.

The grounds of the hotel comprise 15 acres, which was waste land until earth was stirred for the foundation of this building, three years ago.

McCarthy is only 41 years old, and Lindholm about 50. Everybody else around here looks as young as most university graduates are these days.

McCarthy has become a legend already. He is credited with miracles of many kinds, mostly financial. Ten years ago he was broke, but flat, and owed a million and a half.

One of the interesting features of the hotel is that it has a television viewing panel in every room, although there is no television to be had. McCarthy owns a television broadcasting station, but he hasn't been able to get permission from Washington start it vizing.

I like the quietness of the rooms. The walls are of hollow tile, exteriorly faced with brick, with painted plaster walls and ceilings, within. Thick carpets, heavy upholstery, drapes and bedding all serve as noise deadeners. If anybody holds a high-pitched party next door, you don't hear a sound.

Some suspect that Mr. McCarthy may have roots in Ireland, at least ancestral. Most of the decor of the hotel is carried out in harmonious shades of green, there is a shamrock on every wastebasket and every bedsheet, but I have not seen the flag of the Irish Republic anywhere. An enormous American flag flies from the top staff, and the flag of Texas is prominently displayed.

Hal Boyle's NOTEBOOK

NEW YORK, —(AP)—To "Mrs. Heart," general delivery, Oklahoma City:

The newspapers say you are a middle-aged widow, dying of ticker trouble. And you have asked for advice on how to spend the last year of your life—and the $10,000 you have.

Don't worry. You'll get plenty of advice. And most of the letters will end up with a request for some of your $10,000.

I've got an idea for you, too.

You say you want a plan or a purpose. You say everything you think of seems "silly or useless." And you are lonely, and the doctor's death sentence—"prognosis, unfavorable"—has left you with "a reckless kind of feeling."

Well, Mrs. Heart, why don't you do something that many might regard as silly, reckless and perhaps useless? Death is a voyage of discovery. Why don't you make the last months of your life a voyage of discovery, too?

You've provided for your daughter out of the moderate fortune you built as a business woman after your husband died in the first World War. That leaves you with no family responsibility. For the first time in your life you are footloose and fancy free.

Since you are going soon on a long journey along not of your choosing, why don't you go on a long journey now of your own choice—around the world? And share it. Take along as companion a poor young girl or boy of character and promise. Be that young person's window to the wonders and tragedies of earth, and you will live longer than you think. For no one dies who is remembered gratefully.

There is so much to see and learn, and no reason ever to stop learning. They say Goethe found a fresh new world by taking up the study of Greek at 80.

Where to go? Only a year—and a world to view.

Go first to England and France and look at their famous cathedrals by dawn and twilight. These tall towers of the spirit have eased many hearts through centuries.

If your husband was killed in France, go see where he fell and how time heals the countryside. Then go to war-marked Berlin. Watch the old women as they stand in the rubble of their homes, salvaging unbroken bricks and passing them along the human chain of rubble with a "danke schoen" and "bitte schoen"—"thanks you," "you're welcome." This sight will teach you what your husband's death helped prevent happening to this country.

See Italy for sure, Mrs. Heart. It has a warmth you'll like. Go to the Isle of Capri and sit at an outdoor cafe and watch the sweep of light and shadow across Naples bay. There are people who have spent their whole lives watching the play of light and shadow on Naples bay—and never felt restless. The Emperor Tiberius gave up the Court of Rome for that tremendous view.

Visit the Holy Land, and see the old ache and new hope there in that flowering desert of ancient awe. You say travel by plane doesn't make you ill any more? Then ride a camel around the pyramids outside Cairo and know the strange sensation of being seasick on dry land.

There's India, old as the eldest god, fresh as revolution. The shriveled, sightless beggars crawling on the sidewalks of Calcutta will make you appreciate your own thirfty foresight.

And then China, where Civil War, poverty, wealth—and a sense of humor—have existed as long as men have put seeds into the earth. And Japan, where the brown race won by Grant the liberty it is seeking to win on other islands by the gun.

End up, Mrs. Heart, by going around America, broad enough for all the virtues—and the vices—of the rest of the world. But you'll know by then where it is fine, where it falls.

You'll have eaten strange food and seen strange ways. You'll have made your journey to Mecca, for Mecca today is the world village groping for peace and order. Your $10,000 will be gone, your year will be up—but death won't seem so new or strange.

For you will have know life, full circle. And there will be one behind to remember what you so kindly shared.

BIBLE THOUGHTS

And he spake many things unto them in parables, saying, Behold, a sower went forth to sow.—Matthew 13.3.

The law of harvest is to reap more than you sow. Sow an act, and you reap a habit; sow a habit, and you reap a character; sow a character and you reap a destiny.—G. D. Boardman.

We're Lagging Woefully

The annual drive for funds of the American Red Cross has been conducted for the past month—a much longer period than we thought would be necessary to raise money needed to carry on the program here in Ouachita parish—and the community is still far short of its goal.

The Red Cross this year asked only $38,000 from the parish, an amount that seems most reasonable in view of the many services rendered by that organization. Those directing the campaign expected the quota to be reached within a week, but instead it still hasn't been approached even in four weeks. That isn't like Ouachita parish.

Appeals have been made by parish Red Cross officials for renewed effort and the other day the publisher of these newspapers received a letter from Wright Bryan, editor of the Atlanta Journal, who is vice-chairman of the national Red Cross campaign fund, urging our continued cooperation in this worthy cause, pointing out that newspapers have "a very great influence and responsibility in the areas which they serve." We appreciate the compliment and pledge to Mr. Bryan that we will continue to open our columns for news stories, pictures and editorials supporting the campaign, as we have done during the past month and a half.

The very great assistance given disaster victims during the past few days should further emphasize the inestimable service rendered by the Red Cross. The tornadoes which struck our neighboring states of Arkansas, Texas, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Mississippi, and the flood which resulted when a levee broke at Port Allen in our own state resulted in the pouring of thousands of dollars as well as clothing, food and other essentials into the affected areas by the Red Cross. Certainly this was a demonstration of material service brought home to us.

We cannot fail in this offering of relief to our fellowmen. Let's conclude this campaign at once by completing the job of financing that has been assigned to us.

Danger From Within

Congressional reports on activities of Communists in the United States is little short of alarming. The house committee on un-American activities, emerging from the siesta in which it has been indulging since it was reformed at the inception of the new congress, reveals there are 825,000 Communists and fellow travelers who will be either spies, traitors or saboteurs in case of war.

In the event of a national crisis, there would be a potential army nearly 1,000,000 strong within the borders of the United States, capable of doing great damage and endangering national security. These statistics are based upon facts given by J. Edgar Hoover of the F. B. I.

The United States is the No. 1 target in the war between communism and civilization. The thousands of spies now in this country take orders directly from Moscow. Washington has been slow to move against these conspirators, and only the other day Russians came to New York from Moscow and urged 18,000 wildly cheering adherents to stand up for Soviet Russia.

The states are showing more alarm over Communist propaganda in the United States than Washington has. The lower house of the Kansas legislature has voted, 94 to 4, to demand a loyalty oath from every public official, teacher, college instructor or legislator.

The action was prompted by the charge that communism was being preached by certain members of the faculty at the state university.

Air Force Academy

Now that the air force is one of three separate divisions in the department of national defense, it is in the cards that it ultimately will have a training institution of its own comparable to that of the army at West Point and of the navy at Annapolis.

That much conceded—and it is—it does not follow that creation of such an institution is a "must" of the current session of congress.

There is some prospect that the service academy board will recommend establishment of the air force academy at Randolph Field, Tex., for which climatic reasons are emphasized on the basis of all-year flying by learners.

No fewer than 14 separate bills for establishment of such an academy are before the senate and house armed services committees, and many states will crave the honor of being chosen for its site.

Probable cost of such an academy has been estimated at $90,000,000, a sizable figure even in this era of gigantic spending. That, it is asserted, is less than it would cost to construct such an academy at either West Point or Annapolis. Even at a lesser cost, neither of these places would be acceptable to the air force.

Were either selected, there might be a popular inference that the air force was somehow tied to the army or the navy, instead of being independent as it is now by statute.

Meanwhile, at different training schools, the air force is turning out good pilots, navigators, bombers, gunners and radio men, as well as capable ground crews, on which the safety of fliers depends. Therefore it is better that there be a reasonable delay than that a site be selected that is not adequate for a long time to come.

English woman who found a baseball cap in a can of lend-lease dried eggs could easily solve her problem, any GI will tell her. Simply fry the cap and throw the eggs away.

Russians were flying airplanes back in 1882, according to Moscow scientists. Strange what the Muscovites accomplished before the bolsheviki took over.

What Others Say:

EDITORS' ROUNDTABLE

PROPAGANDA WAR

Editors, in very large majority, approve the admission of delegates from Iron-Curtain countries to America for the recently-concluded cultural and scientific conference for world peace in New York; they feel that the state department blundered in barring "unofficial" left-wing delegates from other countries. A few editors defend this distinction. While a small minority of the press places the whole issue on a basis of visa reciprocity. Aside from the issue of who should have been admitted, agreement is general, The Daily Worker excepted, that the net propaganda result of the conference favors the non-Communist nations.

Nashville (Tenn.) Tennessean (Dem.): "It has been known from the start the so-called National Council of Arts, Sciences and Professions (sponsoring the conference) would be a sounding board for Communist propaganda. . . . The state department and Governor Dewey of New York were asked to prohibit the session. Both, however, took the stand that the American people, forewarned of the course to be followed, had nothing to fear by any outpouring of Soviet-controlled delegates."

Dallas (Texas) Morning News (Ind.-Dem.): "Best way to appraise the 'peace' conference in New York is to turn back the pages of the newspapers and read what some of the same people were saying about Russia a few years ago. . . . The Communist party members are hewing to the line. The fellow travelers are everything from dubious to dismayed. . . . It is encouraging that some of our American ultraliberals in session at New York have got around to the point where they can at least see Russia equally at fault with their own country."

Philadelphia (Pa.) Inquirer (Ind.-Rep.): "Whatever propaganda advantage there was in the . . . conference . . . is clearly on the side of the non-Communist nations. . . . The salient fact about this party of left-wing 'intellectuals' is that it was held without interference from the government of the United States. Delegates were permitted to express their views freely, no matter how illogical or lacking in factual support."

Des Moines (Iowa) Register (Ind.-Rep.): "Under a stupid law passed away back during the Red scare of 1918, the state department refused visas to a good many of the invited guests (from Britain, western Europe and Latin America), including a French Catholic priest, on the ground that they are Communists. But the department gave visas to delegates from Iron Curtain countries—who really are Communists—because it considers them 'official representatives' of their governments—which they are not, except indirectly."

St. Louis (Mo.) Globe-Democrat (Ind.): "It seems to us that the state department's middle course is . . . right . . . . It merely says the accredited representatives of any foreign government shall not be barred from seeing and sharing America's tradition of free speech and exchange of ideas. But . . . neither will the excursion train be permitted to be loaded with irresponsible propagandists who have no open standing with their governments nor freedom to change their preconceived notions of democracy."

Evansville (Ind.) Press (Ind.): "The state department is inconsistent. . . . We should welcome visitors from countries where Americans are welcomed. . . . Could a similar group of Americans get visas to visit Russia and her satellites? If Communists, probably yes. If non-Communists, almost certainly no. Last year American congressmen weren't allowed to enter the Soviet Union. . . . Why shouldn't we deal with this problem exactly on that basis?"

St. Louis (Mo.) Star-Times (Ind.): "This reaction is understandable. It is t' instinctive tendency to retaliate in kind. But second thought reveals the fallacy. . . . The Communists are afraid to permit Americans to visit and speak in Russia because they are afraid of free speech. . . . Americans should not be afraid to permit foreign Communists to visit and speak in the United States, because our way of life will stand up and be strengthened by free speech."

New Orleans (La.) Times-Picayune (Ind.-Dem.): "The principle is sound. But . . . its abuse by a Red 'wrecking crew' such as functioned at the Wroclaw (Poland) conference last year raises grave doubts regarding the wisdom of granting American hospitality to Moscow propagandists at this critical time."

DOWN SOUTH

FALLACIES OR COMMON SENSE?

Another serious depression at the present time would find this nation unprepared. There is every likelihood in the world that it would bankrupt the nation, destroy all confidence in the nation's financial responsibility, and in the end bring about the overthrow of our traditional form of government.

Yet if we do not take steps in this country to place our economic house on a sounder foundation, it is exceedingly possible that such a depression will descend upon us and we shall pull the house down on our heads.

There are many signs now that we are facing a considerable recession in our economic activity. Whether that recession shall extend itself into a real depression depends upon how we meet it. As things now stand, we are not ready for it. We could have been ready. Almost four years have passed since the end of the war. Much could have been done during those four years, but instead of taking common sense steps to make our economy sound during those years, our whole policy has been based on political expediency and wild-eyed fallacies in economic thinking. Our leadership still refuses to face the facts of life.

First and foremost among the things that we should do now—and that should have been done when the war ended—if we are to avoid a ruinous depression in the near future or inevitably eventually, are: (1) reduce government expenses (2) reduce taxes (3) systematically pay off the national debt, and (4) return to a sound currency. These basic steps toward a sound economy have either been directly contradicted or ignored since the war's end.

As a matter of fact, of course, a considerable reduction in our high level of economic activity was to have been expected by this time, and we should have been ready for it. The demands of the war and the economic gaps left by the war naturally called for extraordinary activity in the production and distribution of material goods following the war, but simple common sense would tell us that this unusual situation would not last forever. There was bound to come a time when these gaps would be filled and there would be a leveling off and even a considerable reduction in the activity that it took to fill them.

This situation should not have meant, however, that there should be any lessening in the prosperity of the people. In fact, it should have meant that there would be an even greater increase in the standard of living. Under sound economic practices, it would mean that it would give us a chance to produce more things and better things for more people at lower prices. That is the way the standard of living has always been bettered in this country and that is the way it must always be bettered —not by subsidies or doles or pump-priming and other false supports to our economy that cannot possibly last or improve conditions long.

Instead of taking the sound economic steps mentioned, however—which any sensible business concern would have taken under similar circumstances—the government proposes just the opposite. The government proposes (1) to increase the budget (2) to increase taxes (3) no systematic plan for payment of the debt, and (4) no return to a sound currency. It thereby proposes to use the people's money for increased cost of government rather than their own welfare; it thereby places itself in position where it may not be able to meet the interest charges on the national debt; it thereby proposes to continues with a currency that could easily lead to run-away inflation. The government must have continued high economic activity to remain solvent itself, yet through higher taxes and higher spending it kills the incentive of the people to earn and to invest, the only ways in which this high activity can be maintained. If we are not careful, we shall wake up some morning and find we have no "seed corn" left!

Will we come to our senses before it is too late?

DeWitt Mackenzie:

MACKENZIE'S COLUMN

If Russia is right in protesting the North Atlantic pact as an offensive instrument, then we—the people—of the signatory countries are being buncoed by our governments.

We are assured that the alliance is purely defensive. It is designed to act as a deterrent to any nation which might have aggressive ideas. In that sense it is an instrument of peace.

A lot of us believe that.

Unity and preparedness among peace-loving nations is the only "peace pact" worth the paper it is written on. Might doesn't necessarily make right, but it wields an impressive authority.

Winston Churchill said in his Boston speech Thursday night that western Europe would have been communized and London would have been bombed before this but for the deterrent of the atomic bomb in American control. That's an assumption which might be hard to prove. However, if Russia did have aggressive designs it's probable that the atom bomb would restrain her.

This power-packed peace alliance doesn't alter the unhappy picture of a Europe divided against itself. It only means that the western allies are pooling their resources and getting organized defensively for contingencies. It means that they are establishing a defensive front-line running from northern Norway down through central Germany to southern Italy. That's a line which aggression must not cross. Meantime the "cold" war will go on.

Washington observers understand that rejection of the Russian protest against the alliance is a foregone conclusion.

Naturally Moscow expects a rejection of this protest which presumably was made largely for propaganda purposes. She also must expect a firm reply to the effect that the allies mean business and are standing pat.

It's given to wonder, however, whether this wouldn't be a good time for the western allies to reiterate and emphasize that they are out for peace. It is unwise to assume that all eastern Europe knows we intend no aggression.

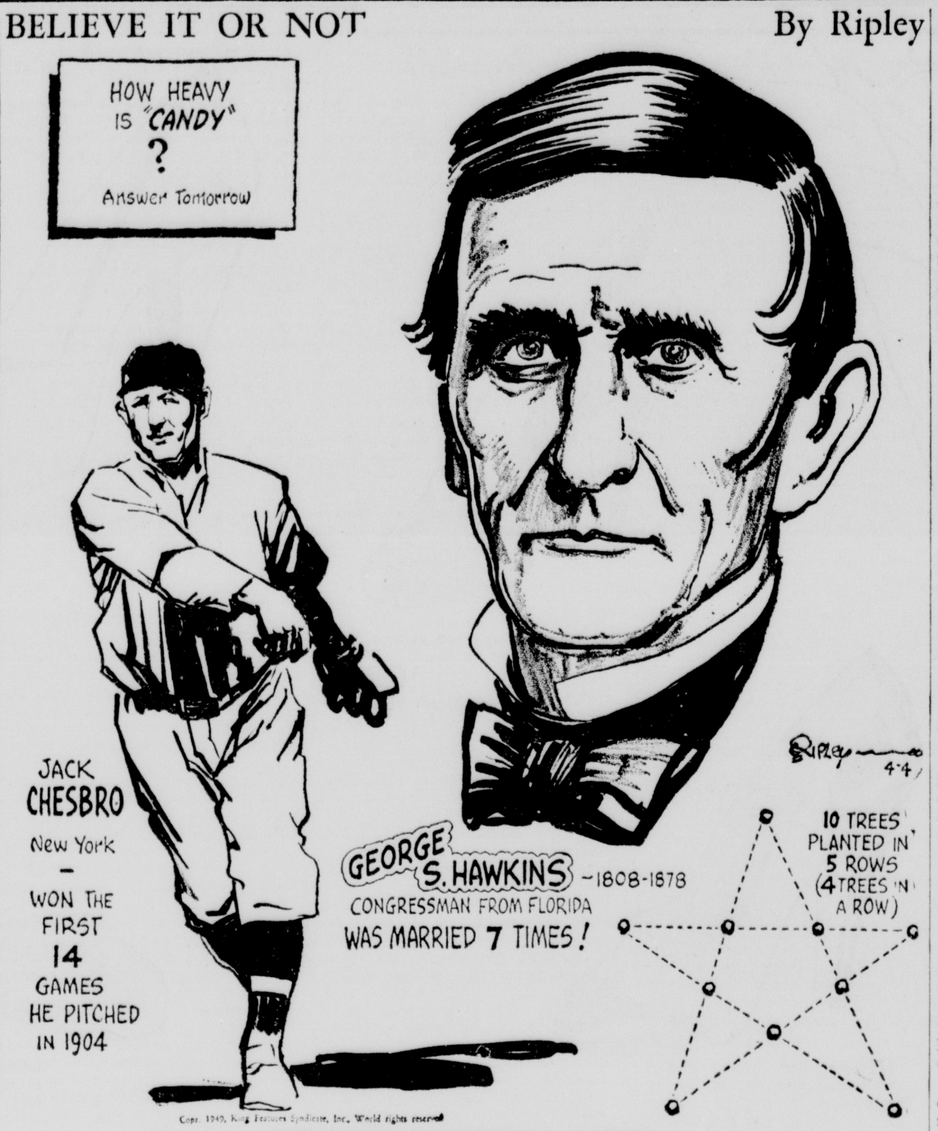

Undoubtedly there are plenty of folk behind the iron curtain who do believe the western powers are planning war. Denials probably won't dispel that belief, but they may do some good and in any event should be on the record.

Such a reiteration of peaceful intentions might fit well with the view said to be held by British Foreign Secretary Bevin and some other western officials. John Hightower, Associated Press diplomatic expert, says this view is that, once the Atlantic pact comes into force, Moscow may decide Russia's European expansion has come to an end and that the Kremlin may seek a truce in the cold war.

This wouldn't mean that the Bolshevist world revolution for the spread of Communism had been abandoned. But it would relieve some of the strain in a Europe still suffering grievously from effects of the late world conflict.

OUR CHILDREN

THE GROWING GIRL

An ache comes to every mother's heart when she sees that the little girl she has been babying, loving, rearing toward womanhood is about to arrive at that wonderful age. All mothers know with their brains that girls become women, but they never know it with their emotions. When the day comes for the child to cross the brook of time, few mothers go through the day without tears. "Of course," they tell themselves, "she must grow up—but—"

It is graduation time in more sense than one when the girl graduate says, "Mother, Dick has asked me for the senior prom. May I have a new dress?"

"Of course," replies Mother. "We will go shopping for it this week end."

Between periods, at every intermission, knots of girls gather and the talk is all about the dresses to be worn and the boys who are to escort them. Each

George E. Sokolsky:

THESE DAYS

ALL KINDS OF LIBERALS

A reader of the picture book, "Life," was angered over the continued preeminence of one of its editors whose political history he did not like. So he wrote to the editor of "Life," Henry R. Luce. The reply to that letter did not come from the aforesaid Harry Luce but from John Shaw Billings, who signs himself as editorial director. The reader gave me the correspondence, which I find extraordinary interesting.

In the first place, John Shaw Billings thinks of editors and writers as of janitors or elevator boys without regard to opinions, character or relations to the community. For this is what Mr. Billings has to say on the subject.

"It has always been a working rule at 'Time, Inc.' that a man's private life was his own and that his politics outside the office was not a company concern. He was judged on his professional performance here and his compatability with the general journalistic purposes of our magazines. In the case of Communists, our rule naturally does not apply, as a matter of self-protection."

Of course, "Time, Inc." is entitled to manage its own affairs and "Life" is a popular and successful publication. Mr. Billings' objectivity is, however, exciting. Apparently a thief, a murderer, a marijuana addict could be a "Life" editor as long as he did not do it in the office. But can a man be one thing at home and another in the office? Can a man, for instance, be a fellow-traveler at home and a loyal American in the office?

Mr. Billings' only objection to Communists, in spite of all that has been disclossed in the Chambers-Hiss case, in the investigations of the house committee on un-American activities, etc., has to do with "self-protection." It is a little hard to understand what self-protection has to do with a man's private life being his own and "his politics outside the office" "not a company concern."

Maybe, John Shaw Billings is right that a man who writes opinions, views, ideas, may have private opinions at home and "compatability with the general journalistic purposes" in the office. It is a little difficult to understand how a man can use his mind with such flexibility, particularly when the intellectual attitudes at home and in office are in conflict.

There are men and women who say that they can see all sides of a question. They usually regard the person who adheres to a doctrine as a bigot. They look upon themselves as liberals and by liberalism they mean not the search for human liberty, but rather for a soft attitude, a willingness to avoid decisions, a rejection of the positive. John Shaw Billings, in this curious letter, writes:

". . . . Liberalism is largely a matter of degree and his has never gone to such an extreme that we were embarrassed by his outside activities or distrustful of his journalistic judgments."

(The person referred to is not indicated in this discussion because his name is of no interest.)

What are the degrees of liberalism? What an inderinable word is this liberalism. I presume from the context of the correspondence that by liberalism is meant the range of ideas and conflicts from slightly off-color to communism or fascism or anarchism. It is difficult to decide what so misused and mangled a word has come to mean. Perhaps it means nothing.

Alexander Hamilton wrote in the first "Federalist" paper:

". . . History will teach us . . . that of those men who have overturned the liberties of republics, the greatest number have begun their career by paying an obsequious court to the people; commencing demagogues and ending tyrants."

If for demagogues he had said liberals, he would have fitted his sentence to the year 1949, when liberals met in session at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York to plead peace while advocating slavery; shouting popular slogans while pursuing a cowardly subservience to a foreign foe. When liberalism approaches treason, how is it to be defined?

I thank Mr. Billings for having given me an opportunity to expose the fallacy of using words without meaning so that ideas may be without precision. Perhaps his liberalism represents a total nihilism.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

HOUSTON, Texas.—The average cost per room in this Shamrock hotel, at which I am staying while exploring this area of Texas, is $17,000. That's the room, built, finished, and furnished. All beds have rubber foam mattresses, and they cost $50 apiece. I believe the rooms cost a little more here than they used to cost in the best hotels when hotels were being built.

I had a long talk with Mr. George Lindholm, manager of the house, a pleasant New Yorker of Swedish parentage. With 1,100 rooms and a great many customers to handle you might think Lindholm would be hard to see. Not at all. He's right there, panting to hear customer's ideas about how to run a hotel.

My first complaint was that I could find no place to put used razor blades, and I never put them into waste baskets, to cut somebody's hands.

Mr. Lindholm said I would find the blade slot inside the medicine cabinet in the bathroom, and, sure enough, I did. Queer place for it, to be sure, but there it is.

The furniture and furnishings are about the best I have seen in any hotel, and I've stopped in most of them. Of course, this is about the only first class hotel built in recent years, and that accounts for some of its modernity. For instance, all light switches are noiseless mercury switches. No pistol snap, no sound, and each switch can be found in the dark by a small, almost invisible light built into the mechanism.

Glenn McCarthy, oilking about whom all the world knows by this time, spent, according to rumor, from 20 million to 22 million dollars on the 18-story building and its furnishings. Mr. McCarthy has plenty of money left, and more is spouting out of his oil wells.

The hotel is six miles out in the country from the center of the business area, about $1.50 by taxi, I discovered.

The grounds of the hotel comprise 15 acres, which was waste land until earth was stirred for the foundation of this building, three years ago.

McCarthy is only 41 years old, and Lindholm about 50. Everybody else around here looks as young as most university graduates are these days.

McCarthy has become a legend already. He is credited with miracles of many kinds, mostly financial. Ten years ago he was broke, but flat, and owed a million and a half.

One of the interesting features of the hotel is that it has a television viewing panel in every room, although there is no television to be had. McCarthy owns a television broadcasting station, but he hasn't been able to get permission from Washington start it vizing.

I like the quietness of the rooms. The walls are of hollow tile, exteriorly faced with brick, with painted plaster walls and ceilings, within. Thick carpets, heavy upholstery, drapes and bedding all serve as noise deadeners. If anybody holds a high-pitched party next door, you don't hear a sound.

Some suspect that Mr. McCarthy may have roots in Ireland, at least ancestral. Most of the decor of the hotel is carried out in harmonious shades of green, there is a shamrock on every wastebasket and every bedsheet, but I have not seen the flag of the Irish Republic anywhere. An enormous American flag flies from the top staff, and the flag of Texas is prominently displayed.

Watch the old women as they stand in the rubble of their homes, salvaging unbroken bricks and passing them along the human chain of rubble with a "danke schoen" and "bitte schoen"—"thanks you," "you're welcome." This sight will teach you what your husband's death helped prevent happening to this country.

See Italy for sure, Mrs. Heart. It has a warmth you'll like. Go to the Isle of Capri and sit at an outdoor cafe and watch the sweep of light and shadow across Naples bay. There are people who have spent their whole lives watching the play of light and shadow on Naples bay—and never felt restless. The Emperor Tiberius gave up the Court of Rome for that tremendous view.

Visit the Holy Land, and see the old ache and new hope there in that flowering desert of ancient awe. You say travel by plane doesn't make you ill any more? Then ride a camel around the pyramids outside Cairo and know the strange sensation of being seasick on dry land.

There's India, old as the eldest god, fresh as revolution. The shriveled, sightless beggars crawling on the sidewalks of Calcutta will make you appreciate your own thirfty foresight.

And then China, where Civil War, poverty, wealth—and a sense of humor—have existed as long as men have put seeds into the earth. And Japan, where the brown race won by Grant the liberty it is seeking to win on other islands by the gun.

End up, Mrs. Heart, by going around America, broad enough for all the virtues—and the vices—of the rest of the world. But you'll know by then where it is fine, where it falls.

You'll have eaten strange food and seen strange ways. You'll have made your journey to Mecca, for Mecca today is the world village groping for peace and order. Your $10,000 will be gone, your year will be up—but death won't seem so new or strange.

For you will have know life, full circle. And there will be one behind to remember what you so kindly shared.

Personal Application Best Way To Judge Inflation

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP)—How can you tell when inflation stops and deflation begins? How can you know when business is normal, or if it ever was, or will be?

Maybe economists can point out the exact spots on their charts where inflation started and ended—but usually only months after these things occurred. As with most of us, their hindsight is pretty good.

Right now things are confused. Most other industries think it certainly has now. Only a few are still going strong.

In this jig-saw business pattern, just where is the point that the nation's economic picture as a whole changed?

Look at it personally. If you have your old job, aren't worried about losing it or having your pay cut, you may not have noticed whether inflation has gone and deflation come. You may spend a little less for groceries, but not much. And you are paying more for the new car than you expected when you got on the list months ago. Your rent may be higher.

But if you have been laid off at the mill, work fewer days a week, or know someone in a job like yours who was laid off, the present situation may look like more than deflation to you—it may look like a real depression.

Perhaps the way you feel about it is the best way to judge.

It's inflation—if you, yourself, always seem to be getting a little more money but also spending more than expected for what you want and need, or never able to find these goods in the market because someone with more cash gobbled them up. You jingle more coins, but you have no more left at the end of the week.

Does it still seem that way to you now?

It's deflation—if you pay a little less for goods than you did, find the stores overstocked with everything you need, but at the same time find that: as a worker, you have less take home pay than you did and therefore can't buy as much anyway; as a merchant, you have less profit, or none at all left after you meet your expenses, which go on and on; as a manufacturer or farmer or miner, you have more and more unsold goods piling up on your hands, and losing value as they grow.

That's the personal way to judge whether it's inflation or deflation.

How does Uncle Sam pay his way?

Income taxpayers who have just finished their annual March 15 chore may think the answer obvious, but hard though the tax bite it that time may be, the government meets its month-by-month bills on a 40-billion dollar budget from a host of taxes which pour money daily into the treasury in an unseen stream.

A typical view of government finance is provided by the figures on tax collections during the month of February, 1949. During those 28 days the government dipped into the taxpayers' pockets for $4,669,000,000, an average of 165 million dollars a day, or about $120,000 a minute or $2,000 a second.

How does the government raise this much money? Well, nearly half of it came from income taxes that are withheld by employers, two and one-quarter billion dollars. Another one billion came from income taxpayers who were settling up early for March 15 or making their first quarterly payments on 1949. (That put the total tax collections for February up a little higher than for the ordinary month.)

Corporations chipped in 326 million dollars on their income taxes. Social security taxes produced 258 million dollars. Other employment taxes brought in 155 million more. Taxes on estates of persons who died amounted to 50 million during the 28-day period. Alcohol taxes brought in a robust 162 million dollars.

Cigarettes were taxes to the tune of 81 million and gasoline 36 million, while admissions to theaters and concerts brought in 25 million—nearly a million dollars a day—even though these are small items of revenue.

The "luxury" taxes brought in returns like these: furs, 11 million; jewelry, 35 million; luggage, 11 million; toilet articles, 12 million. Taxes on phone calls and telegrams brought in nearly 40 million.

Night clubs taxes produced a little over four million and club dues and initiations produced two million dollars more.

The federal government got six million dollars in taxes on electric energy, nearly three million more from the excise tax on the light bulbs and tubes that use it, and seven million in taxes on electric and gas appliances.

Taxes collected on automobiles, motorcycles, tires, and accessories amounted to 44 million dollars. Radio sets and phonographs were taxed six million and phonograph records $75,000. Musical instruments were taxed one million dollars and refrigerators better than six million. Camera fans paid four million dollars on the photographic apparatus they bought.

On down the line the government goes, collecting 21 million dollars on tickets for trains and busses, and 26 million on "transportation of property." The tax of safety deposit boxes produced one million dollars, but pin-ball machines turned in only $257,000 in license taxes while bowling alleys and pool rooms, paying a fixed fee per installation paid $50,000 to Uncle Sam.

Even if taxes were repealed a long time ago, Uncle Sam is still collecting what is due him. The capital stock tax, repealed, turned in $8,005.06 in delayed returns, while an excise tax on luggage manufacturers, repealed way back in 1944, still produced a delinquent $162.82 of which Uncle Sam took careful note in his bookkeeping.

The above list which covers just one 28-day period in the life of United States Treasury, gives a pretty good picture of the magnitude of Uncle Sam's financial operations. They money may drop out of sight relativcly painlessly, but it sure goes.

Two freshman congressmen from Ohio were discussing the hard work that they have to do for constituents.

Representative Edward Breen declared to a group of colleagues, "If Flo Ziegfield were alive today he would consider me the world's most glorified errand boy."

To which Representative Earl T. Wagner rejoined, "Look at these letters from job-seekers. They must think I'm the world's most glorified employment agency."

There's considerable irony in the report that Marlene Dietrich is having trouble getting acting jobs in Hollywood, and that she, as a consequence, will probably make her next two pictures in Europe. When asked about it, Marlene said: "In Hollywood, you must have either a writer, a director or a producer—or all three—interested in you in order to get good roles." It seems to me that in Marlene Dietrich's case, the writer, director or producer could be waived, since she happens to have interested in her a couple of million ex-G. I.'s who remember the swell job she did entertaining them during the war. And that's the kind of interest which would pay dependable dividends at the box office!

I was delighted by the news that Irene Dunne had been given the Laetare Medal by Notre Dame University as the outstanding Catholic layman of the year. Certainly she deserves the honor. But the news story carried by one Los Angeles paper about the presentation of the coveted medal also offered one chuckle. There was a picture with it—a photograph of Irene Dunne in a very strapless evening gown. Just about two days before, the same paper had made much of a ban against strapless evening gowns, issued by a Catholic prelate in the middle west.

Every adult will remember how Americans withdrew their patronage, during both world wars, from restaurants too obviously German in character, and even carried their attack against inanimate things to such an extent that hamburger steaks had to be re-chistened "Liberty steaks." Much the same thing seems to be happening again in Hollywood, with the Russian restaurants the victims this time. During World War II, when Russophiles were having a field day, the "Bublichkis" and "Ninotchkas" sprang up like dandelions. Now, I'm told, anti-Russian sentiment is so strong that they're all starving for business. Personally, if ever I open a restaurant, I'm going to play safe and call it the International Grill.

The other day I took some of the neighborhood kids on a tour of the municipal zoo—and, to my complete amazement, since he's anything but the type I'd expect to visit a zoo, found one of the major studio casting directors standing in front of a lion cage, regarding Leo with an interested eye. Only after recalling some of the titles announced for filming this year—"The Octopus and Miss Smith" and "My Darling Was a Kangaroo," for example, did it occur to me that the casting director was undoubtedly there on business.

The Nation Today

JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, April 2. — (AP) — In the midst of a senate debate a question arose about a book, "Lessons of the Last Decade," written 20 years ago by Paul H. Douglas, now Democratic senator from Illinois.

To be sure it was quoted the way he wanted it quoted, Douglas, serving his first year in the senate, got up and read some of the book himself.

What Douglas read was his philosophy on the difference between the long-run benefits of democracy and the long-run dangers of communism.

Douglas, 57, and a well-known economist, believes that a good society is best reached by peaceful means and that communism, achieved by conspiracy and violence, ends in tyranny and degeneracy of government.

He stated his position—which is the position of Democratic thinkers of the west—so clearly, that some of what he said is given here:

"Even if the Communists were to seize power, their work of government would inevitably be poisoned by the methods used in attaining it.

"Their opponents would naturally be driven to resort to that same method of violent revolution which the Communists had embraced.

"The Communists would, therefore, need constantly to be on their guard against an armed uprising led by those who had enjoyed greater economic and social privileges under the former regime.

"They would, moreover, suspect such revolts even when not planned and the inevitable result would be the permeation of society by a state system of espionage and the ruthless use of terror as a means of intimidation.

"Such an atmosphere of suspicion and suppression would go far to vitiate the very spirit of cooperative fellowship which the Communists hope to engender by running the industries and government of a country for the benefit of the common man.

"The disdain which the Communists have for the intelligence and courage of the majority leads them, moreover, to keep power in the hands of their aggressive minority.

"Their venture seems to them the supreme value and they are naturally unwilling to entrust it to that amorphous mass of people who did nothing to bring it into being. Only those who have sacrificed themselves for the new society are adjudged worthy of directing it.

"They will govern and work for the benefit of the people but not allow the latter to participate in the ultimate decisions of policy. In short, they will hold on to power for themselves. * * *

"The truth of the matter is that, whenever men are removed from the bracing necessity of submitting their acts and policies to the approval of the great mass in whose behalf they are supposed to be laboring, they tend to degenerate. * * *"

Then, shifting to the problem of leadership in a democracy, Douglas said:

"The knowledge that they must secure popular support makes leaders more solicitous than they otherwise would be to further the real interests of those upon whose approval their continuance in office depends.

"For these reasons, the Democratic way of life is ultimately the best method of obtaining good government while, as John Stuart Mill long ago pointed out, it is also the most effective means of raising the level of civic intelligence."

"You shall have it. We'll go down town tomorrow to get it."

Tomorrow came—although it did seem a long time on the road—and Peggy set off in high spirits to buy her first evening dress. They looked at everything in the shop. Mother kept bringing a simple girlish frock forward and Peggy kept going to a far rack and o-oo-ing over what she found there. Finally, she said in a mixture of old-fashioned girl and the modern, smart one, "Mother, I know you would love to see me as Little Bo Peep, but I'd love to be something more glamorous."

For an instant her mother sat in stunned silence. Then, gathering herself for graceful defeat and surrender, she said, "Good. Which one is it? It's lovely on you. If you think it is just what you want—"

"It's heavenly, Mother. It's out of this world—beautiful. For once I'll be on an equal footing with Clarice. We'll see who has the most cut-ins this time."

In telling Father about it, Mother said, "It hurt, but there was nothing to do but go along. She is growing up fast. It won't be long now." And then she had her cry. Tomorrow she would rejoice over the lovely young thing that was once her baby.

20-Million Dollar Fiscal Year Operation Is Shown

By Edmond Le Breton

BATON ROUGE, La., April 2.—(AP)—The state division of administration, closing its books this week on the 1941-1948 fiscal year, showed that Louisiana government during that period came within a few thousand of being a $200,000,000 operation.

In comparison, the budget for the current fiscal year—ending next June 30—calls for income of $269,000,000. In addition, a surplus of nearly $45,500,000 carried over from the earlier year was budgeted, but the division's report showed that the surplus actually was nearly $50,000,000 of which half was set up as a special reserve for welfare purposes.

The present fiscal year is only three-quarters over and there are as yet no figures that compare exactly with the actual record of financial experience last year. But some tentative comparisons are possible. In making them and especially when figures for the first three quarters are projected to anticipate a total for a whole year, it is important to remember that collection of a number of taxes may begin to decline now. Lower prices will affect the sales tax. There are some indications that gasoline consumption may decrease. The oil allowable, a measure of production in the state, has been declining for two months. Less production means less severance tax.

Taxes react promptly to booms—and to the end of a boom.

Now for the comparisons:

The report on last year's operations shows that the biggest single source of income was federal grants and similar special funds. They accounted, in round figures, for $28,600,000. For this year they are budgeted at $53,000,000. The federal government now contributes more heavily to Louisiana's expanded welfare program.

The gasoline tax last year brought in $28,500,000. It is budgeted at $34,000,000 this year, but if it continues to produce at the rate it has so far, it should yield about $37,800,000.

The sales tax produced about $18,700,000 last year. With the rate doubled and the base broadened, it is now yielding at a rate that would produce a total of $45,000,000 for the year. The budget anticipated $42,000,000.

Rentals, royalties, bonuses and similar income from state properties were good for about $27,000,000 last year. The budget set a figure of about $20,000,000 for this year. Collections have already exceeded this figure by more than $1,000,000, but it is difficult to tell how much more may come in. The federal government's litigation against the states for possession of the tidelands has chilled enthusiasm for state leases in the gulf and oil development generally has slowed down a bit since the beginning of 1949.

For the same reasons, it would be difficult to project probable severance tax collections. If they continue at the rate reached earlier in the year, they might reach $48,000,000, which would compare with $46,500,000 budgeted and with $20,000,000 actually collected last year.

Most, but not all, of the major taxes so far have been running ahead of estimates. Among those that have not is the tobacco tax, which so far seems to be falling about $2,000,000 short of the $17,000,000 budgeted. The collections compare with about $12,000,000 last year under the old rate. The current crackdown on cigarette mail ordering to avoid the Louisiana tax, in which state officials have been backed by a federal indictment against one re-seller of mailed cigarettes, may make some difference before the year is over.

The alcoholic beverage, beer and soft drink taxes, taken together, are running close to the budgeted figure of $16,500,000. Collections last year were about $9,000,000.

Commissioner of Administration J. H. Rester is sticking to the conclusion he and Treasurer A. P. Tudwell expressed to the governor a few weeks ago—that the budget estimates by and large will hold good, especially so far as general fund receipts are concerned. Some major Louisiana taxes, such as the sales tax, do not go into the general fund. This tax, for example, is earmarked for welfare. So increases over budget estimates in the yield from these taxes, while they might create surpluses, would not be available for appropriation as readily as they would be if they went into the general fund.

APPOINT GENERAL SYRIAN GOVERNOR

Leader Of Coup Named New Chief By Military Council; End Congress

DAMASCUS, Syria, April 2.—(AP)—The supreme military council proclaimed Brig. Husni Zayim, military governor of Syria, with the rights of chief of state today.

President Al Sayed Shukri Al Kuwatly, the titular chief of state who was arrested in the army's bloodless coup Wednesday, was taken to a camp in the east Syrian desert.

Zayim, leader of the coup, dissolved the house of representatives, Syria's one-chamber parliament, and began temporary rule by decree. He announced he would appoint a commission of 20 lawyers and legislators to write a new constitution preparatory to holding new elections.

At the same time he appointed new district governors for Alep (Aleppo), Homs, Jebel Ed Druz and Lattaquie and a new Damascus administrator.

The military governor told a news conference a projected monetary convention and another agreement for construction of the Arabian-American oil company's pipe line would be re-examined in the light of national interest.

Contrary to rumors, Faris El Khoury, president of the house of representatives, has complete freedom of movement.

Presumably Zayim's efforts to form a new government acceptable to the old parliament collapsed. Hence his decision to dissolve it. Syria therefore appeared to be under military rule, at least temporarily. Zayim had been negotiating through Faris El Khoury, 70-year-old president of the house of representatives and former delegate to the United Nations, for formation of a new government.

The Cairo independent news weekly, Akhbar El Yom, reported Saturday that persons mediating between Zayim and the old government were known to support a "greater Syria."

"Greater Syria" is the dream of King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan to unite his own country with Syria, Lebanon, Iraq and Arab Palestine under his crown.

The Egyptian weekly said it was a "strange coincidence" that Fadel El Jamali, Iraqi foreign minister, arrived in Damascus the day of after the coup. Iraq is ruled by a regent who is a kinsman of King Abdullah's. The magazine also quoted Abdullah as saying "I don't like Shukri Al Kowatly and he does not like me."

U. S., Britain Team Up On Satellites

Move To Force Red Bloc Nations To Honor World War Two Treaties

By Edward E. Bomar

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—The United States and Britain teamed up today in a move toward bringing three Soviet bloc countries to international judgment for "notorious" flouting of their peace treaty vows.

They sent strongly worded notes to Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania demanding that these Communist-run governments live up to pledges signed less than two years ago to give their peoples basic human rights and freedoms.

Canada, Australia and New Zealand also supported the action.

Dispatch of the notes was a first step toward invoking the machinery for settling disputes which was set up in the peace treaties with the wartime Axis satellites. If this fails the Western powers could demand action by the United Nations.

The notes took specific exception to Hungary's imprisonment of Cardinal Mindszenty, Bulgaria's prosecution of Protestant churchmen and Romania's jailing of opposition leaders.

The United States charged that each of the three Communist nations has "deliberately and systematically" denied its people "freedom of expression, of press and publication, of religious worship, of political opinion, and of public meeting."

All these freedoms were pledged in the peace treaties, which went into effect less than 19 months ago.

The British notes, sent separately, contained similar charges.

Canada announced it associated itself with the United States notes, and Australia and New Zealand gave formal endorsement of the British action. None of the three commontives in the satellite capitals.

wealths has diplomatic representa-

The peace treaties set up this procedure for settling disputes:

The matter is first referred to American, British and Soviet representatives in the satellite capitals.

If they fail to reach agreement within two months, the dispute then may be handed to a three-member commission for settlement. One member would be named by each party to the dispute and a third chosen by mutual agreement, or by the United Nations secretary general. The commission's decision is supposed to be binding.

If, as some American officials expect, the Soviet satellites balk at some stage in the proceedings, the Western powers would be in a position to accuse them of open defiance. The United States is in a position to accuse them of open defiance. The United States and Britain then could declare the treaties void or call on the United Nations to enforce the pacts. Officials declined to speculate on a possible next step.

Plan To Increase Medical School Enrollment Given

BATON ROUGE, La., April 2.—(AP)—Louisiana State University's board of supervisors today voted to increase enrollment in its school of medicine by 25 per cent.

Under the plan, total first-year enrollment next fall would be jumped from 100 to 125, and the present average af 75 graduates annually would be boosted to 95.

President Harold W. Stoke said the program is designed to help meet "the urgent need for improving the quality of medical care" available in the state. Louisiana needs "at least 90-new doctors every year for replacements, plus another 40 to keep pace with population gains, he added.

"There are about 2600 physicians in Louisiana," he explained. "To meet the national average of one doctor per 719 persons, there is an immediate need for 600 physicians."

Dr. Stoke estimated the new program will cost $58,000 through the 1949-50 fiscal year and $85,000 for the 1950-51 period. By 1952-53 the "full cost" will be felt, he said, because enrollment will have reached between 450 and top, but added:

"By that time, perhaps the university may have found it necesary to enlarge its medical school facilities."

The board also approved new salary scales for faculty and staff members, with any increases to be borne from budgeted funds already available. Dr. Stoke said the program "will cost the university virtually nothing" since only a few minimum salaries were raised.

Affected in the change are the teaching and research staff, library personnel and the agricultural extension division. The professional schools, law and medicine, were not considered, in line with the board's policy of handling them separately.

The wage program was recommended by a special committee of top-ranking faculty members appointed by Dr. Stoke to survey university salaries. The committee report also suggested a 10 per cent across-the-board increase, but board members took no action on the matter.

Taken under advisement was a resolution providing for retirement of administrative personnel. The plan affects deans and academic directors, and, in some cases, provides for retirement at 65 years of age.

The board also authorized legal action to determine ownership of mineral rights in a 500-acre tract south of the campus, acquired some years ago by the university.

In other actions, the board accepted scholarship grants, approved the naming of campus buildings and acted on faculty appointments and promotions.

EASTER REHEARSAL—A vested choir places a floral wreath at foot of the Cross during rehearsal for Easter Sunrise services on Mt. Buena Vista, Santa Catalina Island.

William E. Gilroy, D. D.:

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

We call Jesus "the Man of Galilee," and we think of His ministry as chiefly in that region where He grew up. In the home of His parents, where was the Sea of Galilee from which He called the fishermen to be His first disciples; and of Jerusalem and its environment in Judea, where were Bethlehem, and Bethany, and the Mount of Olives.

A glance at the map of ancient Palestine, with a reference to the details in the four Gospels, shows how large and important a part of the ministry of Jesus was in other parts, outside of Galilee and Judea. In John 4, it is stated that when He was in Judea He wished to go to Galilee, and that He "must needs go through Samaria." The map shows why that was so, for Samaria lay right between Judea and Galilee, all the way from the Jordan to the Mediterranean. We are glad that Jesus had to go through Samaria, for that necessity gave us the wonderful story of His meeting with the Samaritan woman at the Well of Jacob, with the declaration of His Messiahship, and the great words concerning true worship.

There was, however, another way that Jesus might have gone, if He had chosen to cross the River Jordan twice. And on His last journey from Galilee to Jerusalem it was this that He did, entering Judea from the farther, or eastern, side of Jordan. It is not quite clear at just what point He crossed the Jordan, but the journey with His disciples to Jerusalem from beyond the Jordan brought them through the region known as Perea.

Perea was a region of high mountains, wooded slopes, rich fields, and fertile valleys, where mountain streams watered great olive groves and vineyards. It must have been an alluring region for a Master who so loved the land and its treasures; but the shadow of the Cross was looming heavily upon Him. He sensed the dangers awaiting Him at the end of that journey, and mystery and sadness encompassed the disciples as they heard the words they so little understood.

It was on this journey that He blessed the little children; the rich young man came to Him and went away sorrowful, renouncing his great opportunity; the sons of Zebedee, the "Boanerges," still full of the idea of an earthly kingdom, were out to get the preferred places, and to them and to the ten other disciples, "Moved with indignation," Jesus sought to impart the lesson concerning true greatness, in humility, ministry, and service. It was a most significant journey, and one that the disciples were long and deeply to remember.

Their enlightenment only came after the Resurrection. Then they understood the words that were so full of puzzlement and mystery. But the experiences of that journey must have had a large part in their new faith.

Perhaps we, also, must journey with Jesus "beyond Jordan," if we would understand the mystery of His mission, and ours.

WINNSBORO GETS FIRST CITY BUS

WINNSBORO, La., April 2.—(Special)—A city bus line, the first in the history of Winnsboro, was began here Friday.

V. F. Ferrington put a twenty-five passenger bus into operation yesterday on hourly schedules from nine o'clock in the mornings until six o'clock in the afternoons.

"The bus reaches within two blocks of every block in town," Ferrington said.

A franchise was voted by the Winnsboro city council last week.

Ferrington said he plans to add an additional bus to the line if "need be."

Redskins On Parade Proves To Be Smooth N. J. C. Show

Student Variety Production At College Gives Real Entertainment

"Redskins" proved to be a smoothly running production, packed with a variety in song, dance and skits when the '49 edition of the all-student variety show was presented Friday night at Northeast Junior College. Student director, Mary Louise Guerriero, and faculty supervisor, James W. Parkerson, provided a full evening's entertainment which won consistent applause from a capacity house.

The most original feature was the introduction of the five "Chacahoula" beauties in colorful musical setting. Formerly, selection of the coeds has been kept secret until the release of the yearbook in which their photographs have been given prominence. Wearing evening frocks, the girls were introduced by master of ceremonies, Bob Curtin, as each stepped through a large gold frame on the stage. Winners of the coveted title were: Cecile Danna, Monroe; Alice Perry, Perryville; Mary Coates, West Monroe; Agnes Jones, Monroe, and Elsie Pipes, West Monroe, who was also presented as "Miss N. J. C."

Winning a big share of applause were vocalists: Wanda Madere, Lola Hern, Agnes Jones, Beverly Martin, Mrs. Miller Frey, guest soloist, Reginald Spencer, Al Murdock and W. Z. Glaze.

Several novelty numbers gave sparkle to the program. "A Taste of the Blues" introduced Freddie Wilson as accordionist and a dance chorus featuring Beverly Martin, Fannie Hawkins, Ann Martin, Agnes Jones, Audrey Wilson and Roberta Maize. The specialty was topped off by Mary Louise Guerriero and Ellis Jordan in a tap routine. Violet Willbanks gave an hilarious impersonation of a French saleswoman demonstrating hat psychology, and Crawford "Terrapin" Bell in the role of an Arkansas traveler related experiences with "My Peg Leg Cat."

Almost stealing the show with their "Hillybilly Jamboree," the Collegiate Ramblers gave plenty of color and additional variety in entertainment. Led by vocalist and guitar strummer, Thomas Bearden, the following Rambleres were called back for numerous encores: Harry Liner, Bryan Ritter, Donald Colvin and Jimmie Hines.

One of the bright dance numbers was a soft shoe specialty to "April Showers." In gay costumes and with twirling parasols, the following coeds added attraction to the evening: Addie Boggs, Agnes Jones, Loretta Miller, Doris Jean Thornhill, Dell Drane, Betty Lois Cole, Carla Beth McKenzie and Roberta Maize.

"Redskins" was replete with skits that proved excellent burlesques of freshman registration at N. J. C. and a radio program, with a well-known reporter in the spotlight. The cast for "Registration" included: Robert Jones, Beverly Martin, C. B. Welch, George Parsons, Charles Oxford, Betty Jo Hart, Violet Willbanks, Addie Boggs, Cecile Danna and Edwina Albritton. "On the Air," the second skit, featured Pat Ann Rector as the receptionist in radio station KRAM. Bill Welch was announcer; Kathryn Norwood, Lorella Parsonage, columnist; Al Murdock, Al Jolson; Bill Pegues, the mysterious Mr. Doe, and Pat Shaughnessy. Alice Rolleigh, Harry Liner, and Speedy Long in the soap opera sequence. Both skits were written by Miss Norwood.

The student orchestra on which many of the numbers depended for their success was composed of the following: William Calhoun, Tommy Phillips, Charles Deland, Herbert Peterson, Harlan Prestridge, Bob Gatlin, Roland Carter and Harold Braswell.

The production staff included Ellis Jordan, dance director; Mrs. Katherine Miller, music sequence director; Kitty McCoy, skit supervisor.

How does Uncle Sam pay his way?

Income taxpayers who have just finished their annual March 15 chore may think the answer obvious, but hard though the tax bite it that time may be, the government meets its month-by-month bills on a 40-billion dollar budget from a host of taxes which pour money daily into the treasury in an unseen stream.

A typical view of government finance is provided by the figures on tax collections during the month of February, 1949. During those 28 days the government dipped into the taxpayers' pockets for $4,669,000,000, an average of 165 million dollars a day, or about $120,000 a minute or $2,000 a second.

How does the government raise this much money? Well, nearly half of it came from income taxes that are withheld by employers, two and one-quarter billion dollars. Another one billion came from income taxpayers who were settling up early for March 15 or making their first quarterly payments on 1949. (That put the total tax collections for February up a little higher than for the ordinary month.)

Corporations chipped in 326 million dollars on their income taxes. Social security taxes produced 258 million dollars. Other employment taxes brought in 155 million more. Taxes on estates of persons who died amounted to 50 million during the 28-day period. Alcohol taxes brought in a robust 162 million dollars.

Cigarettes were taxes to the tune of 81 million and gasoline 36 million, while admissions to theaters and concerts brought in 25 million—nearly a million dollars a day—even though these are small items of revenue.

The "luxury" taxes brought in returns like these: furs, 11 million; jewelry, 35 million; luggage, 11 million; toilet articles, 12 million. Taxes on phone calls and telegrams brought in nearly 40 million.

Night clubs taxes produced a little over four million and club dues and initiations produced two million dollars more.

The federal government got six million dollars in taxes on electric energy, nearly three million more from the excise tax on the light bulbs and tubes that use it, and seven million in taxes on electric and gas appliances.

Taxes collected on automobiles, motorcycles, tires, and accessories amounted to 44 million dollars. Radio sets and phonographs were taxed six million and phonograph records $75,000. Musical instruments were taxed one million dollars and refrigerators better than six million. Camera fans paid four million dollars on the photographic apparatus they bought.

On down the line the government goes, collecting 21 million dollars on tickets for trains and busses, and 26 million on "transportation of property." The tax of safety deposit boxes produced one million dollars, but pin-ball machines turned in only $257,000 in license taxes while bowling alleys and pool rooms, paying a fixed fee per installation paid $50,000 to Uncle Sam.

Even if taxes were repealed a long time ago, Uncle Sam is still collecting what is due him. The capital stock tax, repealed, turned in $8,005.06 in delayed returns, while an excise tax on luggage manufacturers, repealed way back in 1944, still produced a delinquent $162.82 of which Uncle Sam took careful note in his bookkeeping.

The above list which covers just one 28-day period in the life of United States Treasury, gives a pretty good picture of the magnitude of Uncle Sam's financial operations. They may drop out of sight relatively painlessly, but it sure goes.

Two freshman congressmen from Ohio were discussing the hard work that they have to do for constituents.

Representative Edward Breen declared to a group of colleagues, "If Flo Ziegfield were alive today he would consider me the world's most glorified errand boy."

To which Representative Earl T. Wagner rejoined, "Look at these letters from job-seekers. They must think I'm the world's most glorified employment agency."

There's considerable irony in the report that Marlene Dietrich is having trouble getting acting jobs in Hollywood, and that she, as a consequence, will probably make her next two pictures in Europe. When asked about it, Marlene said: "In Hollywood, you must have either a writer, a director or a producer—or all three—interested in you in order to get good roles." It seems to me that in Marlene Dietrich's case, the writer, director or producer could be waived, since she happens to have interested in her a couple of million ex-G. I.'s who remember the swell job she did entertaining them during the war. And that's the kind of interest which would pay dependable dividends at the box office!

I was delighted by the news that Irene Dunne had been given the Laetare Medal by Notre Dame University as the outstanding Catholic layman of the year. Certainly she deserves the honor. But the news story carried by one Los Angeles paper about the presentation of the coveted medal also offered one chuckle. There was a picture with it—a photograph of Irene Dunne in a very strapless evening gown. Just about two days before, the same paper had made much of a ban against strapless evening gowns, issued by a Catholic prelate in the middle west.

Every adult will remember how Americans withdrew their patronage, during both world wars, from restaurants too obviously German in character, and even carried their attack against inanimate things to such an extent that hamburger steaks had to be re-chistened "Liberty steaks." Much the same thing seems to be happening again in Hollywood, with the Russian restaurants the victims this time. During World War II, when Russophiles were having a field day, the "Bublichkis" and "Ninotchkas" sprang up like dandelions. Now, I'm told, anti-Russian sentiment is so strong that they're all starving for business. Personally, if ever I open a restaurant, I'm going to play safe and call it the International Grill.

The other day I took some of the neighborhood kids on a tour of the municipal zoo—and, to my complete amazement, since he's anything but the type I'd expect to visit a zoo, found one of the major studio casting directors standing in front of a lion cage, regarding Leo with an interested eye. Only after recalling some of the titles announced for filming this year—"The Octopus and Miss Smith" and "My Darling Was a Kangaroo," for example, did it occur to me that the casting director was undoubtedly there on business.

The Nation Today

JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, April 2. — (AP) — In the midst of a senate debate a question arose about a book, "Lessons of the Last Decade," written 20 years ago by Paul H. Douglas, now Democratic senator from Illinois.

To be sure it was quoted the way he wanted it quoted, Douglas, serving his first year in the senate, got up and read some of the book himself.

What Douglas read was his philosophy on the difference between the long-run benefits of democracy and the long-run dangers of communism.

Douglas, 57, and a well-known economist, believes that a good society is best reached by peaceful means and that communism, achieved by conspiracy and violence, ends in tyranny and degeneracy of government.

He stated his position—which is the position of Democratic thinkers of the west—so clearly, that some of what he said is given here:

"Even if the Communists were to seize power, their work of government would inevitably be poisoned by the methods used in attaining it.

"Their opponents would naturally be driven to resort to that same method of violent revolution which the Communists had embraced.

"The Communists would, therefore, need constantly to be on their guard against an armed uprising led by those who had enjoyed greater economic and social privileges under the former regime.

"They would, moreover, suspect such revolts even when not planned and the inevitable result would be the permeation of society by a state system of espionage and the ruthless use of terror as a means of intimidation.

"Such an atmosphere of suspicion and suppression would go far to vitiate the very spirit of cooperative fellowship which the Communists hope to engender by running the industries and government of a country for the benefit of the common man.

"The disdain which the Communists have for the intelligence and courage of the majority leads them, moreover, to keep power in the hands of their aggressive minority.

"Their venture seems to them the supreme value and they are naturally unwilling to entrust it to that amorphous mass of people who did nothing to bring it into being. Only those who have sacrificed themselves for the new society are adjudged worthy of directing it.

"They will govern and work for the benefit of the people but not allow the latter to participate in the ultimate decisions of policy. In short, they will hold on to power for themselves. * * *

"The truth of the matter is that, whenever men are removed from the bracing necessity of submitting their acts and policies to the approval of the great mass in whose behalf they are supposed to be laboring, they tend to degenerate. * * *"

Then, shifting to the problem of leadership in a democracy, Douglas said:

"The knowledge that they must secure popular support makes leaders more solicitous than they otherwise would be to further the real interests of those upon whose approval their continuance in office depends.

"For these reasons, the Democratic way of life is ultimately the best method of obtaining good government while, as John Stuart Mill long ago pointed out, it is also the most effective means of raising the level of civic intelligence."

gown is described in detail, every possible boy is talked over. One girl tries to outdo the other in the description of the gowns, the boy friends, the car that is to be used. Anticipation is the best part of pleasure here as elsewhere.

Peggy danced into the room where her mother was writing notes and said, "Please, Mother, may I interrupt? May I have a new dress for the prom? David has asked me for the dance. I do so want a new gown."

"You shall have it. We'll go down town tomorrow to get it."

Tomorrow came—although it did seem a long time on the road—and Peggy set off in high spirits to buy her first evening dress. They looked at everything in the shop. Mother kept bringing a simple girlish frock forward and Peggy kept going to a far rack and o-oo-ing over what she found there. Finally, she said in a mixture of old-fashioned girl and the modern, smart one, "Mother, I know you would love to see me as Little Bo Peep, but I'd love to be something more glamorous."

For an instant her mother sat in stunned silence. Then, gathering herself for graceful defeat and surrender, she said, "Good. Which one is it? It's lovely on you. If you think it is just what you want—"

"It's heavenly, Mother. It's out of this world—beautiful. For once I'll be on an equal footing with Clarice. We'll see who has the most cut-ins this time."

In telling Father about it, Mother said, "It hurt, but there was nothing to do but go along. She is growing up fast. It won't be long now." And then she had her cry. Tomorrow she would rejoice over the lovely young thing that was once her baby.

How to give a convalescent child the care he needs and at the same time keep him amused, is told by Dr. Patri in his leaflet P-7, "Convalescent Children."

20-Million Dollar Fiscal Year Operation Is Shown

By Edmond Le Breton

BATON ROUGE, La., April 2.—(AP)—The state division of administration, closing its books this week on the 1947-1948 fiscal year, showed that Louisiana government during that period came within a few thousand of being a $200,000,000 operation.

In comparison, the budget for the current fiscal year—ending next June 30—calls for income of $269,000,000. In addition, a surplus of nearly $45,500,000 carried over from the earlier year was budgeted, but the division's report showed that the surplus actually was nearly $50,000,000 of which half was set up as a special reserve for welfare purposes.

The present fiscal year is only three-quarters over and there are as yet no figures that compare exactly with the actual record of financial experience last year. But some tentative comparisons are possible. In making them and especially when figures for the first three quarters are projected to anticipate a total for a whole year, it is important to remember that collection of a number of taxes may begin to decline now. Lower prices will affect the sales tax. There are some indications that gasoline consumption may decrease. The oil allowable, a measure of production in the state, has been declining for two months. Less production means less severance tax.

Taxes react promptly to booms—and to the end of a boom.

Now for the comparisons:

The report on last year's operations shows that the biggest single source of income was federal grants and similar special funds. They accounted, in round figures, for $28,600,000. For this year they are budgeted at $53,000,000. The federal government now contributes more heavily to Louisiana's expanded welfare program.

The gasoline tax last year brought in $28,500,000. It is budgeted at $34,000,000 this year, but if it continues to produce at the rate it has so far, it should yield about $37,800,000.

The sales tax produced about $18,700,000 last year. With the rate doubled and the base broadened, it is now yielding at a rate that would produce a total of $45,000,000 for the year. The budget anticipated $42,000,000.

Rentals, royalties, bonuses and similar income from state properties were good for about $27,000,000 last year. The budget set a figure of about $20,000,000 for this year. Collections have already exceeded this figure by more than $1,000,000, but it is difficult to tell how much more may come in. The federal government's litigation against the states for possession of the tidelands has chilled enthusiasm for state leases in the gulf and oil development generally has slowed down a bit since the beginning of 1949.

For the same reasons, it would be difficult to project probable severance tax collections. If they continue at the rate reached earlier in the year, they might reach $48,000,000, which would compare with $46,500,000 budgeted and with $20,000,000 actually collected last year.

Most, but not all, of the major taxes so far have been running ahead of estimates. Among those that have not is the tobacco tax, which so far seems to be falling about $2,000,000 short of the $17,000,000 budgeted. The collections compare with about $12,000,000 last year under the old rate. The current crackdown on cigarette mail ordering to avoid the Louisiana tax, in which state officials have been backed by a federal indictment against one re-seller of mailed cigarettes, may make some difference before the year is over.

The alcoholic beverage, beer and soft drink taxes, taken together, are running close to the budgeted figure of $16,500,000. Collections last year were about $9,000,000.

Commissioner of Administration J. H. Rester is sticking to the conclusion he and Treasurer A. P. Tudwell expressed to the governor a few weeks ago—that the budget estimates by and large will hold good, especially so far as general fund receipts are concerned. Some major Louisiana taxes, such as the sales tax, do not go into the general fund. This tax, for example, is earmarked for welfare. So increases over budget estimates in the yield from these taxes, while they might create surpluses, would not be available for appropriation as readily as they would be if they went into the general fund.

APPOINT GENERAL SYRIAN GOVERNOR

Leader Of Coup Named New Chief By Military Council; End Congress

DAMASCUS, Syria, April 2.—(AP)—The supreme military council proclaimed Brig. Husni Zayim, military governor of Syria, with the rights of chief of state today.

President Al Sayed Shukri Al Kuwatly, the titular chief of state who was arrested in the army's bloodless coup Wednesday, was taken to a camp in the east Syrian desert.

Zayim, leader of the coup, dissolved the house of representatives, Syria's one-chamber parliament, and began temporary rule by decree. He announced he would appoint a commission of 20 lawyers and legislators to write a new constitution preparatory to holding new elections.

At the same time he appointed new district governors for Alep (Aleppo), Homs, Jebel Ed Druz and Lattaquie and a new Damascus administrator.

The military governor told a news conference a projected monetary convention and another agreement for construction of the Arabian-American oil company's pipe line would be re-examined in the light of national interest.

Contrary to rumors, Faris El Khoury, president of the house of representatives, has complete freedom of movement.

Presumably Zayim's efforts to form a new government acceptable to the old parliament collapsed. Hence his decision to dissolve it. Syria therefore appeared to be under military rule, at least temporarily. Zayim had been negotiating through Faris El Khoury, 70-year-old president of the house of representatives and former delegate to the United Nations, for formation of a new government.

The Cairo independent news weekly, Akhbar El Yom, reported Saturday that persons mediating between Zayim and the old government were known to support a "greater Syria."

"Greater Syria" is the dream of King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan to unite his own country with Syria, Lebanon, Iraq and Arab Palestine under his crown.

The Egyptian weekly said it was a "strange coincidence" that Fadel El Jamali, Iraqi foreign minister, arrived in Damascus the day of after the coup. Iraq is ruled by a regent who is a kinsman of King Abdullah's. The magazine also quoted Abdullah as saying "I don't like Shukri Al Kowatly and he does not like me."

U. S., Britain Team Up On Satellites

Move To Force Red Bloc Nations To Honor World War Two Treaties

By Edward E. Bomar

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—The United States and Britain teamed up today in a move toward bringing three Soviet bloc countries to international judgment for "notorious" flouting of their peace treaty vows.

They sent strongly worded notes to Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania demanding that these Communist-run governments live up to pledges signed less than two years ago to give their peoples basic human rights and freedoms.

Canada, Australia and New Zealand also supported the action.

Dispatch of the notes was a first step toward invoking the machinery for settling disputes which was set up in the peace treaties with the wartime Axis satellites. If this fails the Western powers could demand action by the United Nations.

The notes took specific exception to Hungary's imprisonment of Cardinal Mindszenty, Bulgaria's prosecution of Protestant churchmen and Romania's jailing of opposition leaders.

The United States charged that each of the three Communist nations has "deliberately and systematically" denied its people "freedom of expression, of press and publication, of religious worship, of political opinion, and of public meeting."

All these freedoms were pledged in the peace treaties, which went into effect less than 19 months ago.

The British notes, sent separately, contained similar charges.

Canada announced it associated itself with the United States notes, and Australia and New Zealand gave formal endorsement of the British action. None of the three commonwealths has diplomatic representatives in the satellite capitals.

The peace treaties set up this procedure for settling disputes:

The matter is first referred to American, British and Soviet representatives in the satellite capitals.

If they fail to reach agreement within two months, the dispute then may be handed to a three-member commission for settlement. One member would be named by each party to the dispute and a third chosen by mutual agreement, or by the United Nations secretary general. The commission's decision is supposed to be binding.

If, as some American officials expect, the Soviet satellites balk at some stage in the proceedings, the Western powers would be in a position to accuse them of open defiance. The United States is in a position to accuse them of open defiance. The United States and Britain then could declare the treaties void or call on the United Nations to enforce the pacts. Officials declined to speculate on a possible next step.

Plan To Increase Medical School Enrollment Given

BATON ROUGE, La., April 2.—(AP)—Louisiana State University's board of supervisors today voted to increase enrollment in its school of medicine by 25 per cent.

Under the plan, total first-year enrollment next fall would be jumped from 100 to 125, and the present average af 75 graduates annually would be boosted to 95.

President Harold W. Stoke said the program is designed to help meet "the urgent need for improving the quality of medical care" available in the state. Louisiana needs "at least 90-new doctors every year for replacements, plus another 40 to keep pace with population gains, he added.

"There are about 2600 physicians in Louisiana," he explained. "To meet the national average of one doctor per 719 persons, there is an immediate need for 600 physicians."

Dr. Stoke estimated the new program will cost $58,000 through the 1949-50 fiscal year and $85,000 for the 1950-51 period. By 1952-53 the "full cost" will be felt, he said, because enrollment will have reached between 450 and top, but added:

"By that time, perhaps the university may have found it necesary to enlarge its medical school facilities."

The board also approved new salary scales for faculty and staff members, with any increases to be borne from budgeted funds already available. Dr. Stoke said the program "will cost the university virtually nothing" since only a few minimum salaries were raised.

Affected in the change are the teaching and research staff, library personnel and the agricultural extension division. The professional schools, law and medicine, were not considered, in line with the board's policy of handling them separately.

The wage program was recommended by a special committee of top-ranking faculty members appointed by Dr. Stoke to survey university salaries. The committee report also suggested a 10 per cent across-the-board increase, but board members took no action on the matter.

Taken under advisement was a resolution providing for retirement of administrative personnel. The plan affects deans and academic directors, and, in some cases, provides for retirement at 65 years of age.

The board also authorized legal action to determine ownership of mineral rights in a 500-acre tract south of the campus, acquired some years ago by the university.

In other actions, the board accepted scholarship grants, approved the naming of campus buildings and acted on faculty appointments and promotions.

Redskins On Parade Proves To Be Smooth N. J. C. Show

Student Variety Production At College Gives Real Entertainment

"Redskins" proved to be a smoothly running production, packed with a variety in song, dance and skits when the '49 edition of the all-student variety show was presented Friday night at Northeast Junior College. Student director, Mary Louise Guerriero, and faculty supervisor, James W. Parkerson, provided a full evening's entertainment which won consistent applause from a capacity house.

The most original feature was the introduction of the five "Chacahoula" beauties in colorful musical setting. Formerly, selection of the coeds has been kept secret until the release of the yearbook in which their photographs have been given prominence. Wearing evening frocks, the girls were introduced by master of ceremonies, Bob Curtin, as each stepped through a large gold frame on the stage. Winners of the coveted title were: Cecile Danna, Monroe; Alice Perry, Perryville; Mary Coates, West Monroe; Agnes Jones, Monroe, and Elsie Pipes, West Monroe, who was also presented as "Miss N. J. C."

Winning a big share of applause were vocalists: Wanda Madere, Lola Hern, Agnes Jones, Beverly Martin, Mrs. Miller Frey, guest soloist, Reginald Spencer, Al Murdock and W. Z. Glaze.

Several novelty numbers gave sparkle to the program. "A Taste of the Blues" introduced Freddie Wilson as accordionist and a dance chorus featuring Beverly Martin, Fannie Hawkins, Ann Martin, Agnes Jones, Audrey Wilson and Roberta Maize. The specialty was topped off by Mary Louise Guerriero and Ellis Jordan in a tap routine. Violet Willbanks gave an hilarious impersonation of a French saleswoman demonstrating hat psychology, and Crawford "Terrapin" Bell in the role of an Arkansas traveler related experiences with "My Peg Leg Cat."

Almost stealing the show with their "Hillybilly Jamboree," the Collegiate Ramblers gave plenty of color and additional variety in entertainment. Led by vocalist and guitar strummer, Thomas Bearden, the following Rambleres were called back for numerous encores: Harry Liner, Bryan Ritter, Donald Colvin and Jimmie Hines.

One of the bright dance numbers was a soft shoe specialty to "April Showers." In gay costumes and with twirling parasols, the following coeds added attraction to the evening: Addie Boggs, Agnes Jones, Loretta Miller, Doris Jean Thornhill, Dell Drane, Betty Lois Cole, Carla Beth McKenzie and Roberta Maize.

"Redskins" was replete with skits that proved excellent burlesques of freshman registration at N. J. C. and a radio program, with a well-known reporter in the spotlight. The cast for "Registration" included: Robert Jones, Beverly Martin, C. B. Welch, George Parsons, Charles Oxford, Betty Jo Hart, Violet Willbanks, Addie Boggs, Cecile Danna and Edwina Albritton. "On the Air," the second skit, featured Pat Ann Rector as the receptionist in radio station KRAM. Bill Welch was announcer; Kathryn Norwood, Lorella Parsonage, columnist; Al Murdock, Al Jolson; Bill Pegues, the mysterious Mr. Doe, and Pat Shaughnessy, Alice Rolleigh, Harry Liner, and Speedy Long in the soap opera sequence. Both skits were written by Miss Norwood.

The student orchestra on which many of the numbers depended for their success was composed of the following: William Calhoun, Tommy Phillips, Charles Deland, Herbert Peterson, Harlan Prestridge, Bob Gatlin, Roland Carter and Harold Braswell.

The production staff included Ellis Jordan, dance director; Mrs. Katherine Miller, music sequence director; Kitty McCoy, skit supervisor.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

We call Jesus "the Man of Galilee," and we think of His ministry as chiefly in that region where He grew up. In the home of His parents, where was the Sea of Galilee from which He called the fishermen to be His first disciples; and of Jerusalem and its environment in Judea, where were Bethlehem, and Bethany, and the Mount of Olives.

A glance at the map of ancient Palestine, with a reference to the details in the four Gospels, shows how large and important a part of the ministry of Jesus was in other parts, outside of Galilee and Judea. In John 4, it is stated that when He was in Judea He wished to go to Galilee, and that He "must needs go through Samaria." The map shows why that was so, for Samaria lay right between Judea and Galilee, all the way from the Jordan to the Mediterranean. We are glad that Jesus had to go through Samaria, for that necessity gave us the wonderful story of His meeting with the Samaritan woman at the Well of Jacob, with the declaration of His Messiahship, and the great words concerning true worship.

There was, however, another way that Jesus might have gone, if He had chosen to cross the River Jordan twice. And on His last journey from Galilee to Jerusalem it was this that He did, entering Judea from the farther, or eastern, side of Jordan. It is not quite clear at just what point He crossed the Jordan, but the journey with His disciples to Jerusalem from beyond the Jordan brought them through the region known as Perea.

Perea was a region of high mountains, wooded slopes, rich fields, and fertile valleys, where mountain streams watered great olive groves and vineyards. It must have been an alluring region for a Master who so loved the land and its treasures; but the shadow of the Cross was looming heavily upon Him. He sensed the dangers awaiting Him at the end of that journey, and mystery and sadness encompassed the disciples as they heard the words they so little understood.

It was on this journey that He blessed the little children; the rich young man came to Him and went away sorrowful, renouncing his great opportunity; the sons of Zebedee, the "Boanerges," still full of the idea of an earthly kingdom, were out to get the preferred places, and to them and to the ten other disciples, "Moved with indignation," Jesus sought to impart the lesson concerning true greatness, in humility, ministry, and service. It was a most significant journey, and one that the disciples were long and deeply to remember.

Their enlightenment only came after the Resurrection. Then they understood the words that were so full of puzzlement and mystery. But the experiences of that journey must have had a large part in their new faith.

Perhaps we, also, must journey with Jesus "beyond Jordan," if we would understand the mystery of His mission, and ours.

OKLAHOMA AGGIES DOMINATE TEXAS RELAYS

THOMPSON RUNS FASTEST MILE IN S'WEST HISTORY

Records Also Set In High School, College Divisions Of Meet

By Harold V. Ratliff

AUSTIN, Tex., April 2.—(AP)—The mite of trackdom, 120-pound Jerry Thompson—ran the fastest mile in southwestern history and George Rasmussen of Oregon soared 14 feet 2 1/4 inches in the pole vault today to feature a wind-swept Texas Relays dominated by Oklahoma A. and M. Three records, including Rasmussen s leap, were set.

Thompson romped in 50 yards ahead in the special open mile with the time of 4:12.3. The former University of Texas ace ran unattached. He still is attending the University of Texas but has completed his college eligibility.

Rasmussen's vault wiped out a record that stood for six years—Harold Hunt's 14 feet 3/8 inch leap for Nebraska in 1942.

An estimated 10,500 sat in raw, windy weather this afternoon to watch an army of athletes assault the marks of the big track and field carnival in its twenty-second year.

Oklahoma A. and M. scored an upset triumph over Nebraska in the 880-yard relay to finish in front of the university-college class with 26 points. Texas wound up second—the first time the university here has failed to dominate its own relays in years. Texas A. and M. was third with 17 points.

Loyola of Chicago won the college division with 10 points. Abilene Christian was second with 7 1/2 and George Pepperdine of Los Angeles was third with seven.

The Texas freshman easily won first place in the six-event junior college-college freshman class with 28 1/5 points. Texas A. and M. freshmen were second with 12 points.

In the high school class, John Reagan of Houston upset favored Corpus Christi, 12 points to 11 1/2. Disqualification of Bobby Dean, ace sprinter in the 100-yard dash for twice jumping the gun, cost Corpus Christi the meet. Brackenridge of San Antonio was third with 8 points.

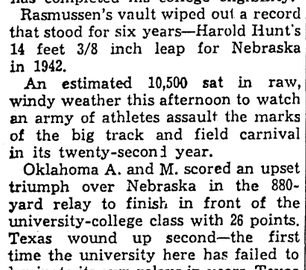

Darrow Hooper, the football giant from North Side (Fort Worth) who holds the national shot put record at 59 5 1/2 inches, set a new relay mark in the high school class with 59 feet 5 1/2 feet inches. It bettered the record of 59 feet 1 1/2 inches set in 1943 by Dewitt Coulter of Masonic Home (Fort Worth).

The other record to fall was in the college division sprint medley relay. East Texas State made it in 3:27.9 to erase the record of 3:28.2 set by Loyola of Chicago in 1941. The team was composed of Arturo Ochoa, Bob Williams, David Hurst and Mike Mercado.

Thompson beat Javier Montes, the Texas Mines freshman, with a typical Thompson finish that had the little ex-Texas ace going away rapidly. Montes ran his fastest mile—a 4:23.1. He barely edged out Ramon Prohaska

6 CLUBS READY FOR CITY LOOP

Softball League Planning To Open Season Here On April 25

The City Softball League, looking for two or three more member teams, has six clubs ready to go and has announced plans to open the season April 25.

Clubs entered are the Monroe Recreation Parlor's defending champion Red Sox, Bears, Spatafora's Pharmacy, Nichols Motors, Progressive Men's Club, and Hunt and Whitaker.

Jack Hesketh, recreation director, last night said the league's next meeting date had been fixed for April 21 when final plans will be made for the season opening.

Paul Martin has been renamed as softball commissioner for the 1949 season.

The league has voted to boost umpire pay to $2 per game this season, double the pay offered last year, and a campaign is now underway to obtain game officials.

W. B. "Dub" Stewart, Ray Spicer, George Guier, George Whitlow, and Homer Massingale have already been signed as umpires, and others interested in working with the league are invited to contact Hesketh at the Monroe Recreation Center. A school for umpires is planned for shortly before the season opening.

At least one club is already beating its drums with the announcement by Juluis Haddad that he will manage the Nichols Motors outfit. "We're serving notice on the other clubs right now that we're coming out to win the championship and believe we have the team with which to do it," Haddad proclaimed.

"Curtis Nichols is really interested in the sport and he's a mighty good sponsor," Haddad continued. "He had the championship City Basketball League team the past winter, and now we're going to give him the softball title as well."

GRAMMAR SOFTBALL TO BEGIN HERE ON APRIL 11

The Grammar School Softball League plans to open play Monday week with the league to be split into seventh and sixth-grade divisions, Jack Hesketh, recreation director of Monroe said yesterday. The league will be operated along the same plan of the grammar football circuits here.

If sufficient interest is displayed similar leagues will be organized for girls, Hesketh said.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

by Hugh S. Fullerton, jr.

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP)—That long grapevine from Florida carries the word that Joe McCarthy has soured on Walt Dropo as the Red Sox first baseman and that Billy Goodman will be back on first come opening day. . . . Dropo, it seems, can't hit a curve. As Al Schacht says, who can? . . . South Africa's Bobby Locke has an opportunity to become the first foreign golfer to win the United States Open championship since England's Ted Ray nosed out his compatriot Harry Vardon in 1920. Best effort among many since then was Phil Perkins' tie for second, three strokes behind Gene Sarazen, in 1932. . . . Mike Pavlak, sophomore candidate for third base on the Syracuse University baseball team, has a straight "A" scholastic average. Coach Ted Kleinhans only hopes Mike can hit the ball as well as he hits the books.

Storm Warning

Sterling Dupree, University of Florida backfield coach, hung the tag of "lightning and thunder" on Halfbacks Charlie Hunsinger and John Cox because of Charlie's speed and John's line-busting power. . . . First time Head Coach Bear Wolf heard it, he commented: "Yeah, we got thunder and lightning, all right. I just hope it don't cloud up and rain." . . . To which Tub-Thumper Joe Sherman adds: "You can always depend on a football coach to see the dark cloud behind every silver lining."

Sportspourri

Samuel Hopkins Adams, the author, argues that his home town of Auburn, N. Y., has as good a claim as nearby Cooperstown that it is where baseball originated. At least Auburn folks can show you a picture of a neatly-uniformed team taken in 1867. . . . Fred Hooper's flying horses, Olympia and Ocean Drive, will fly as usual to Louisville for the Kentucky Derby. A plane already has been engaged for the trip from New York late this month. . . . Andy Coakley starts his 35th year as Columbia baseball coach today with the Lions' opening game against Manhattan. . . . The American Hockey League has an unusual but perfectly reasonable way of making its "most gentlemanly player" award. It lets the referees decide. . . . Pop Werner, Kansas University line coach, owns a collection of 30 pipes. That doesn't include those lead pipes linesmen often are accused of carrying.

Runaway Pace

When the University of Oklahoma running track was torn up to make room for more seats in the stadium, Coach John Jacobs' athletes moved their workouts to the edge of the intramural softball field. . . . They had to run from there to escape indignant softballers after one track man innocently picked up a rolling ball during a game and threw the runner out at second. . . . Next stop was the golf course, but someone stirred up a hive of bees and the lads decided their pace was too hot. . . . They're still looking for another spot, but Jacobs may decide to keep the beehive in reserve for a close meet.

OUACHITA 'WHITE' TEAM TROUNCED 'RED,' 24 TO 0

The Ouachita Parish High School Lions closed spring football training here Friday night with an intra-squad game in which the "White" team triumphed over the "Red," 24 to 0.

The game, played at Neville stadium, was sponsored by the "O" Club, lettermen's organization of O. P. H. S., and the gridders came through with a rough session in which actual game conditions prevailed.

GAVILAN WANTS ROBINSON BOUT

Cuban Thinks He's Ready For Title Go After Win Over Ike Williams

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP)—A better and faster Kid Gavilan was gunning for Welterweight Champion Ray Robinson today.

And there's a good chance that the Cuban Flash soon may be matched to meet Sugar Ray for the title in Yankee Stadium this summer.

Robinson was a deeply interested spectator last night when Gavilan, a 9 to 5 underdog, won a 10-round, non-title decision over Lightweight Champion Ike Williams in Madison Square Garden.

The unanimous verdict made it two straight for the Kid over the Trenton, N. J., Negro.

As soon as the rip-roaring battle was over, Robinson told Harry Markson, managing director for the 20th Century Sporting Club: "Harry, I'll fight Gavilan for you."

Markson, however, knows full well that getting Sugar Ray to sign a contract and carry it out is a lot different than a nice oral go-ahead. The 147-pound champ is a fast talker but a slow signer.

Nevertheless, Markson has hopes that Robinson means business this time. They'll confer Monday.

For one thing, the welter boss saw plenty of box office business last night. A capacity crowd of 18,201 paid $95,865, biggest gate of the indoor season, to see the "rubber" bout of a thrilling series. Williams copped the first bout about 13 months ago.

For another, Ray is having plenty of heat put on him to risk the crown he last defended against Bernie Docusen, June 28.

Gavilan's first words in his dressing room were: "Get me Robinson."

The Havana contender sported a 9 1/2 pound bulge in the weights—146 to 136 1/2. The weight difference was too much for Williams to overcome.

The officials gave Gavilan a good edge—6-3-1, 6-3-1, and 7-2-1. The AP scorecard had the Cuban ahead, 6-4.

PLAN FORMATION OF BUDDY LEAGUE

BASTROP, La., April 2.—(Special)—Organization of a Buddy League for young baseball talent 15 years old and under will be undertaken at a meeting scheduled for Monday night at 8 o'clock at the Morehouse parish courthouse here.

Sid White, spearheading the interest in the boys' program, said two Bastrop clubs, Westside and Eastside, and a team from Beekman are interested in the formation of the league which he said hoped to draw members from Fairbanks, Oak Grove, Collinston, Crossett, Ark., and any other interested towns in the Bastrop area.

"The Buddy League plan is to give those boys of the younger ages, not yet sufficiently capable of winning places in our American Legion Junior baseball setup an opportunity to play league ball," White said.

Any teams interested in the league are invited to have representatives at the Monday meeting.

S'EASTERN A.A.U. TRACK MEET SLATED FOR JUNE 4

ATLANTA, April 2. — (AP) — The Southeastern A. A. U. track and field championships will be held at Georgia Tech June 4.

Entries must be mailed to Norris Dean, Tech track coach, before May 15. Competition is open to all registered athletes of colleges, clubs, high schools, armed services and unattached entries registered in the Southeastern A. A. U. Registration will be held at Tech's Grant Field on the day of the meet.

Coaches will meet at Grant Field on the morning of the meet for drawing of heats. A general meet trophy will be awarded to the winning team and a relay trophy given to the winner of the one-mile relay. The Aldridge trophy will be awarded the winner of the two-mile run.

'WILD BILL' WILL BRING 'SURPRISE' PAL FOR BATTLE

Texas Villain Offers To Admit 'Heavy' Women Free For Tag Bout

Dissatisfied with the outcome of last week's tag team scramble against Charlie Laye and Chris Belkas, "Wild Bill" Steddum has challenged for a return relay match next Tuesday night with the right to bring in unannounced a "surprise partner" with hopes of breaking the Laye-Belkas string of tag team victories.

Promoter Gus Kallio last night said the match had been arranged with Dave Silverstein, district wrestling commissioner, granting Steddum's request to furnish a "surprise" sidekick, and that the match will be the feature attraction at his Walnut street arena Tuesday night.

"It looks like the Laye-Belkas combination is hard to beat," declared Steddum after he and Joe Corbett had become the fifth straight victims of the stellar tag team. "It'll take two smart men like me to beat them. Corbett is all right, but he doesn't understand tag wrestling tricks. Let me bring in an unannounced partner next Tuesday and I guarantee to bring a good man, give the crowd the kind of match it likes and provide Mr. Laye and Mr. Belkas all the action they can take care of."

"I can make these promises knowing what will happen if I don't prove up. You know if I don't live up to my word the state commission can suspend me from wrestling in the state for as long as it likes. I'm not forgetting how they did in Mississippi after Don Serio got wild and ran into my fist. It was unavoidable on my part, but the Mississippi commission claimed I had fractured his jaw and suspended me. So I know I'll have to produce to keep in the good graces of the Louisiana commission."

Laye and Belkas were perfectly agreeable, declaring that they would continue to wrestle as a team as long as their current successes hold and that they would accept the match if, for nothing more than "to see what Steddum has up his sleeve this time."

The relay scramble will have a 90-minute time limit with two falls to win. A pair of one-fall matches will open the program at 8 o'clock.

Kallio said Bill Barney, West Monroe, will handle the preliminaries, and Pat Willis, Jackson, Miss., will referee the main event.

Last week Steddum paid the admission price for the first 20 youths under 15 years of age appearing at the arena.

After the show he asked Kallio, "How many boys were rooting for me? I didn't hear a single one, and it cost me 10 dollars. Let me see that list of names."

Kallio produced the list of the first 20 boys to accept Steddum's tickets.

"They're there all right," the Texas villain answered, "but what happened to them? They didn't boost for their friend, Bill."

"Well, it's all right. I like the kids, anyway, but this time I'm going to see if the ladies can do any better

UP COMES JOE WITH A VICTORY GRIN

Joe Verdeur, 23, Olympic champion from Philadelphia, comes up grinning after bettering the 300-yard medley swimming record in the National A. A. U. Indoor meet at Daytona Beach, Fla. His time was 3 minutes, 22.9 seconds which is a full second faster than the record set in 1944. (AP Photo).

TIGER NETTERS DEFEAT MISS. STATE MAROONS

BATON ROUGE, La., April 2.—(AP)—Louisiana State's tennis team pushed its season's record above the .500 mark here today by breezing past Mississippi State, 6-1.

The Tigers swept through five singles matches without losing a set, although the Maroons put up a tougher battle than the scores indicate.

The Maroons picked up their only win of the afternoon in the number two doubles match, after the undefeated Tiger doubles team of Basile Lanneau and Kenneth Koach had swept their fifth straight victory of the season.

Summaries:

Basile Lanneau (L. S. U.) defeated Baird Goff, 6-3, 6-2.

Beverly Covington (L. S. U.) defeated Boy Guyton, 6-1, 7-5.

Roger Richardson (L. S. U.) defeated Lee Weeks, 6-4, 7-5.

Irwin Thompson (L. S. U.) defeated Bill Bolton, 6-0, 6-0.

Larry Mills (L. S. U.) defeated Cooper Twaddle, 6-1, 6-0.

Basile Lanneau and Kenneth Koach (L. S. U.) defeated Baird Goff and Bill Bolton, 6-1, 6-1.

Bob Guyton and Lee Weeks (Miss. State) defeated Spurgeon Baldwin and Bob Eckstein, 4-6, 6-0, 6-0.

STEER, AGGIE SPIKEMEN CLASH NEXT SATURDAY

AUSTIN, Texas, April 2.—(AP)—The third meeting of the front runners in the Southwest Conference track and field campaign is scheduled in College Station next Saturday.

Texas, which twice upset the defending champion Texas Aggies this season, engages A. & M. in the first and only dual meeting of the two rivals. Texas edged A. & M., 58-55 for the Border Olympics championship, then beat out the Aggies, 59 1/2 to 57 1/2 for the Southwestern Recreation meet title.

RAMBLERS SLATED TO BATTLE REBELS

COLUMBIA, La., April 2.—(Special)—Weather permitting, the Columbia Ramblers appear in their first exhibition game of the season here Sunday afternoon against the West Monroe Rebels at Memorial Park at 2:30 o'clock.

The Ramblers, champions of the North Central League last year, are playing in the Northeast Louisiana circuit this season. The West Monroe club has campaigned in the Little Eight the past two years but accepted a franchise in the Louisiana Delta League this year.

Manager Pete Medak said he had not decided on his starting line-up against the Rebels since bad weather has curtailed the Ramblers in practice, but he promised to whip together his strongest combination for the visitors.

Columbia will play the Alexandria Aces of the Evangeline League in an exhibition here April 13 and also plans exhibitions with Commercial Solvents of Sterlington, Barksdale Field, Winnsboro's Red Sox, and the Esso Oilers of Baton Rouge.

WINTER CIRCUIT CHAMPS EYED AS DERBY HOPEFULS

Olympia, Old Rockport, Rookwood Highly Regarded Prospects

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 2—(Special)—Now that the winter racing season is practically at an end, horsemen are busy appraising the performance of Kentucky Derby candidates which raced at the winter tracks.

Champions of the winter circuit, generally, have not done too well in the Kentucky Derby. Nonetheless, all horsemen agree that the winners of principal three-year-old races of the season now ending rate more than passing interest when appraising their chances in the Diamond Jubilee Derby at Churchill Downs on May 7.

No less an authority than Ben A. Jones, one of two men who have trained four winners of the Derby, considers Olympia an outstanding candidate for the Churchill Downs race. Olympia won the Flamingo Stakes at Hialeah Park. The colt is owned by Fred W. Hooper, who won the 1945 Derby with Hoop Jr.

Clifford Mooers' Old Rockport, winner of the Santa Anita Derby, is in Kentucky, training for the "Run For The Roses." An "off" track would be a definite asset to this son of Carrier Pigeon in the Derby, horsemen believe.

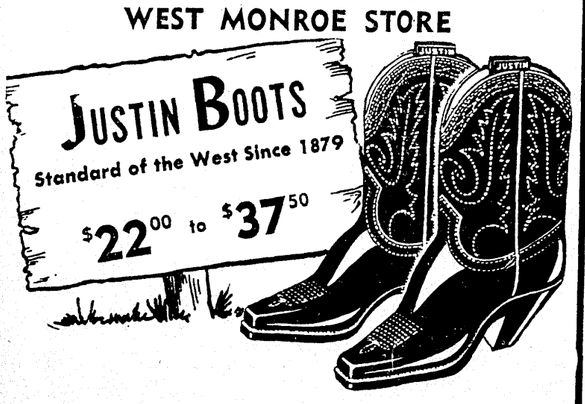

The Louisiana Derby at New Orleans was won by Joe W. Brown's Rookwood, and when conversation along the Churchill Downs backside got around to the Louisiana Derby winner one veteran trainer recalled that the 1924 winner of that race also won the Golden Jubilee Derby at Louisville. The 1924 winner was Black Gold, one of three winter-raced colts to win the Derby in the last twenty-five years. The other two were Lawrin in 1938 and Citation in 1948.

Coincidentally, Lawrin was the first Derby winner trained by Ben Jones and ridden by Jockey Eddie Arcaro. Citation, winner of the Flamingo prior to the Derby last year, was the fourth winner for both the trainer and jockey.

First winter-raced winner of the Kentucky Derby was Apollo, owned by Morris and Patton. The chestnut son of Lever and Rebecca T. Price won the eighth Derby in 1882 after having raced in New Orleans, Little Rock and Memphis. Moreover, Apollo won a stakes race at each track.

About 41 million cars, trucks and busses are being used in the nation today.

6 CLUBS READY FOR CITY LOOP

Softball League Planning To Open Season Here On April 25

The City Softball League, looking for two or three more member teams, has six clubs ready to go and has announced plans to open the season April 25.

Clubs entered are the Monroe Recreation Parlor's defending champion Red Sox, Sears, Spatafora's Pharmacy, Nichols Motors, Progressive Men's Club, and Hunt and Whitaker.

Jack Hesketh, recreation director, last night said the league's next meeting date had been fixed for April 21 when final plans will be made for the season opening.

Paul Martin has been renamed as softball commissioner for the 1949 season.

The league has voted to boost umpire pay to $2 per game this season, double the pay offered last year, and a campaign is now underway to obtain game officials.

W. B. "Dub" Stewart, Ray Spicer, George Guier, George Whitlow, and Homer Massingale have already been signed as umpires, and others interested in working with the league are invited to contact Hesketh at the Monroe Recreation Center. A school for umpires is planned for shortly before the season opening.

At least one club is already beating its drums with the announcement by Juluis Haddad that he will manage the Nichols Motors outfit. "We're serving notice on the other clubs right now that we're coming out to win the championship and believe we have the team with which to do it," Haddad proclaimed.

"Curtis Nichols is really interested in the sport and he's a mighty good sponsor," Haddad continued. "He had the championship City Basketball League team the past winter, and now we're going to give him the softball title as well."

GRAMMAR SOFTBALL TO BEGIN HERE ON APRIL 11

The Grammar School Softball League plans to open play Monday week with the league to be split into seventh and sixth-grade divisions, Jack Hesketh, recreation director of Monroe said yesterday. The league will be operated along the same plan of the grammar football circuits here.

If sufficient interest is displayed similar leagues will be organized for girls, Hesketh said.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

by Hugh S. Fullerton, jr.

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP)—That long grapevine from Florida carries the word that Joe McCarthy has soured on Walt Dropo as the Red Sox first baseman and that Billy Goodman will be back on first come opening day. . . . Dropo, it seems, can't hit a curve. As Al Schacht says, who can? . . . South Africa's Bobby Locke has an opportunity to become the first foreign golfer to win the United States Open championship since England's Ted Ray nosed out his compatriot Harry Vardon in 1920. Best effort among many since then was Phil Perkins' tie for second, three strokes behind Gene Sarazen, in 1932. . . . Mike Pavlak, sophomore candidate for third base on the Syracuse University baseball team, has a straight "A" scholastic average. Coach Ted Kleinhans only hopes Mike can hit the ball as well as he hits the books.

Storm Warning

Sterling Dupree, University of Florida backfield coach, hung the tag of "lightning and thunder" on Halfbacks Charlie Hunsinger and John Cox because of Charlie's speed and John's line-busting power. . . . First time Head Coach Bear Wolf heard it, he commented: "Yeah, we got thunder and lightning, all right. I just hope it don't cloud up and rain." . . . To which Tub-Thumper Joe Sherman adds: "You can always depend on a football coach to see the dark cloud behind every silver lining."

Sportspourri

Samuel Hopkins Adams, the author, argues that his home town of Auburn, N. Y., has as good a claim as nearby Cooperstown that it is where baseball originated. At least Auburn folks can show you a picture of a neatly-uniformed team taken in 1867. . . . Fred Hooper's flying horses, Olympia and Ocean Drive, will fly as usual to Louisville for the Kentucky Derby. A plane already has been engaged for the trip from New York late this month. . . . Andy Coakley starts his 35th year as Columbia baseball coach today with the Lions' opening game against Manhattan. . . . The American Hockey League has an unusual but perfectly reasonable way of making its "most gentlemanly player" award. It lets the referees decide. . . . Pop Werner, Kansas University line coach, owns a collection of 30 pipes. That doesn't include those lead pipes linesmen often are accused of carrying.

Runaway Pace

When the University of Oklahoma running track was torn up to make room for more seats in the stadium, Coach John Jacobs' athletes moved their workouts to the edge of the intramural softball field. . . . They had to run from there to escape indignant softballers after one track man innocently picked up a rolling ball during a game and threw the runner out at second. . . . Next stop was the golf course, but someone stirred up a hive of bees and the lads decided their pace was too hot. . . . They're still looking for another spot, but Jacobs may decide to keep the beehive in reserve for a close meet.

OUACHITA 'WHITE' TEAM TROUNCED 'RED,' 24 TO 0

The Ouachita Parish High School Lions closed spring football training here Friday night with an intra-squad game in which the "White" team triumphed over the "Red," 24 to 0.

The game, played at Neville stadium, was sponsored by the "O" Club, lettermen's organization of O. P. H. S., and the gridders came through with a rough session in which actual game conditions prevailed.

GAVILAN WANTS ROBINSON BOUT

Cuban Thinks He's Ready For Title Go After Win Over Ike Williams

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP)—A better and faster Kid Gavilan was gunning for Welterweight Champion Ray Robinson today.

And there's a good chance that the Cuban Flash soon may be matched to meet Sugar Ray for the title in Yankee Stadium this summer.

Robinson was a deeply interested spectator last night when Gavilan, a 9 to 5 underdog, won a 10-round, non-title decision over Lightweight Champion Ike Williams in Madison Square Garden.

The unanimous verdict made it two straight for the Kid over the Trenton, N. J., Negro.

As soon as the rip-roaring battle was over, Robinson told Harry Markson, managing director for the 20th Century Sporting Club: "Harry, I'll fight Gavilan for you."

Markson, however, knows full well that getting Sugar Ray to sign a contract and carry it out is a lot different than a nice oral go-ahead. The 147-pound champ is a fast talker but a slow signer.

Nevertheless, Markson has hopes that Robinson means business this time. They'll confer Monday.

For one thing, the welter boss saw plenty of box office business last night. A capacity crowd of 18,201 paid $95,865, biggest gate of the indoor season, to see the "rubber" bout of a thrilling series. Williams copped the first bout about 13 months ago.

For another, Ray is having plenty of heat put on him to risk the crown he last defended against Bernie Docusen, June 28.

Gavilan's first words in his dressing room were: "Get me Robinson."

The Havana contender sported a 9 1/2 pound bulge in the weights—146 to 136 1/2. The weight difference was too much for Williams to overcome.

The officials gave Gavilan a good edge—6-3-1, 6-3-1, and 7-2-1. The AP scorecard had the Cuban ahead, 6-4.

PLAN FORMATION OF BUDDY LEAGUE

BASTROP, La., April 2.—(Special)—Organization of a Buddy League for young baseball talent 15 years old and under will be undertaken at a meeting scheduled for Monday night at 8 o'clock at the Morehouse parish courthouse here.

Sid White, spearheading the interest in the boys' program, said two Bastrop clubs, Westside and Eastside, and a team from Beekman are interested in the formation of the league which he said hoped to draw members from Fairbanks, Oak Grove, Collinston, Crossett, Ark., and any other interested towns in the Bastrop area.

"The Buddy League plan is to give those boys of the younger ages, not yet sufficiently capable of winning places in our American Legion Junior baseball setup an opportunity to play league ball," White said.

Any teams interested in the league are invited to have representatives at the Monday meeting.

'WILD BILL' WILL BRING 'SURPRISE' PAL FOR BATTLE

Texas Villain Offers To Admit 'Heavy' Women Free For Tag Bout

Dissatisfied with the outcome of last week's tag team scramble against Charlie Laye and Chris Belkas, "Wild Bill" Steddum has challenged for a return relay match next Tuesday night with the right to bring in unannounced a "surprise partner" with hopes of breaking the Laye-Belkas string of tag team victories.

Promoter Gus Kallio last night said the match had been arranged with Dave Silverstein, district wrestling commissioner, granting Steddum's request to furnish a "surprise" sidekick, and that the match will be the feature attraction at his Walnut street arena Tuesday night.

"It looks like the Laye-Belkas combination is hard to beat," declared Steddum after he and Joe Corbett had become the fifth straight victims of the stellar tag team. "It'll take two smart men like me to beat them. Corbett is all right, but he doesn't understand tag wrestling tricks. Let me bring in an unannounced partner next Tuesday and I guarantee to bring a good man, give the crowd the kind of match it likes and provide Mr. Laye and Mr. Belkas all the action they can take care of."

"I can make these promises knowing what will happen if I don't prove up. You know if I don't live up to my word the state commission can suspend me from wrestling in the state for as long as it likes. I'm not forgetting how they did in Mississippi after Don Serio got wild and ran into my fist. It was unavoidable on my part, but the Mississippi commission claimed I had fractured his jaw and suspended me. So I know I'll have to produce to keep in the good graces of the Louisiana commission."

Laye and Belkas were perfectly agreeable, declaring that they would continue to wrestle as a team as long as their current successes hold and that they would accept the match if, for nothing more than "to see what Steddum has up his sleeve this time."

The relay scramble will have a 90-minute time limit with two falls to win. A pair of one-fall matches will open the program at 8 o'clock.

Kallio said Bill Barney, West Monroe, will handle the preliminaries, and Pat Willis, Jackson, Miss., will referee the main event.

Last week Steddum paid the admission price for the first 20 youths under 15 years of age appearing at the arena.

After the show he asked Kallio, "How many boys were rooting for me? I didn't hear a single one, and it cost me 10 dollars. Let me see that list of names."

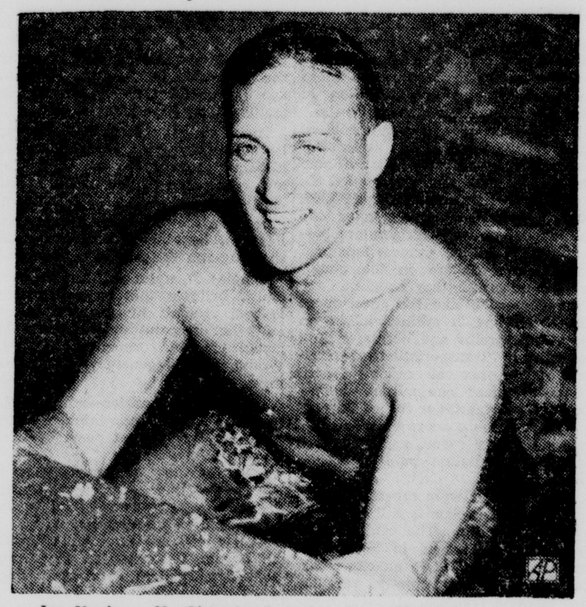

Kallio produced the list of the first 20 boys to accept Steddum's tickets.

"They're there all right," the Texas villain answered, "but what happened to them? They didn't boost for their friend, Bill."

"Well, it's all right. I like the kids, anyway, but this time I'm going to see if the ladies can do any better

The Tigers swept through five singles matches without losing a set, although the Maroons put up a tougher battle than the scores indicate.

The Maroons picked up their only win of the afternoon in the number two doubles match, after the undefeated Tiger doubles team of Basile Lanneau and Kenneth Koach had swept their fifth straight victory of the season.

STEER, AGGIE SPIKEMEN CLASH NEXT SATURDAY

AUSTIN, Texas, April 2.—(AP)—The third meeting of the front runners in the Southwest Conference track and field campaign is scheduled in College Station next Saturday.

Texas, which twice upset the defending champion Texas Aggies this season, engages A. & M. in the first and only dual meeting of the two rivals. Texas edged A. & M., 58-55 for the Border Olympics championship, then beat out the Aggies, 59 1/2 to 57 1/2 for the Southwestern Recreation meet title.

RAMBLERS SLATED TO BATTLE REBELS

COLUMBIA, La., April 2.—(Special)—Weather permitting, the Columbia Ramblers appear in their first exhibition game of the season here Sunday afternoon against the West Monroe Rebels at Memorial Park at 2:30 o'clock.

The Ramblers, champions of the North Central League last year, are playing in the Northeast Louisiana circuit this season. The West Monroe club has campaigned in the Little Eight the past two years but accepted a franchise in the Louisiana Delta League this year.

Manager Pete Medak said he had not decided on his starting line-up against the Rebels since bad weather has curtailed the Ramblers in practice, but he promised to whip together his strongest combination for the visitors.

Columbia will play the Alexandria Aces of the Evangeline League in an exhibition here April 13 and also plans exhibitions with Commercial Solvents of Sterlington, Barksdale Field, Winnsboro's Red Sox, and the Esso Oilers of Baton Rouge.

WINTER CIRCUIT CHAMPS EYED AS DERBY HOPEFULS

Olympia, Old Rockport, Rookwood Highly Regarded Prospects

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 2—(Special)—Now that the winter racing season is practically at an end, horsemen are busy appraising the performance of Kentucky Derby candidates which raced at the winter tracks.

Champions of the winter circuit, generally, have not done too well in the Kentucky Derby. Nonetheless, all horsemen agree that the winners of principal three-year-old races of the season now ending rate more than passing interest when appraising their chances in the Diamond Jubilee Derby at Churchill Downs on May 7.

No less an authority than Ben A. Jones, one of two men who have trained four winners of the Derby, considers Olympia an outstanding candidate for the Churchill Downs race. Olympia won the Flamingo Stakes at Hialeah Park. The colt is owned by Fred W. Hooper, who won the 1945 Derby with Hoop Jr.

Clifford Mooers' Old Rockport, winner of the Santa Anita Derby, is in Kentucky, training for the "Run For The Roses." An "off" track would be a definite asset to this son of Carrier Pigeon in the Derby, horsemen believe.

The Louisiana Derby at New Orleans was won by Joe W. Brown's Rookwood, and when conversation along the Churchill Downs backside got around to the Louisiana Derby winner one veteran trainer recalled that the 1924 winner of that race also won the Golden Jubilee Derby at Louisville. The 1924 winner was Black Gold, one of three winter-raced colts to win the Derby in the last twenty-five years. The other two were Lawrin in 1938 and Citation in 1948.

Coincidentally, Lawrin was the first Derby winner trained by Ben Jones and ridden by Jockey Eddie Arcaro. Citation, winner of the Flamingo prior to the Derby last year, was the fourth winner for both the trainer and jockey.

First winter-raced winner of the Kentucky Derby was Apollo, owned by Morris and Patton. The chestnut son of Lever and Rebecca T. Price won the eighth Derby in 1882 after having raced in New Orleans, Little Rock and Memphis. Moreover, Apollo won a stakes race at each track.

About 41 million cars, trucks and busses are being used in the nation today.

OLYMPIA TRUE TO FORM IN EXPERIMENTAL

DERBY HOPEFUL SCORES EASILY IN JAMAICA RUN

Count-A-Bit Wins Fountain Of Youth; Nearway Cops Bowie 'Cap

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP)—Olmpia ran away from five opponents today to rack up an easy victory in the 10th running of the $20,000 Added Experimental Handicap No. 1 at Jamaica race track.

The bay three-year-old colt, already one of the early choices for Kentucky Derby honors, romped the six furlongs in 1:10 4/5 and finished eight lengths ahead of his nearest pursuer.

His time was only three-fifths of a second off the track record set by Recce in 1945 and equalled by Miss Drummond in 1946.

Model Cadet, Mrs. Adal L. Rice's Derby hopeful, was second four and one half lengths in front of King Ranch's Curandero in the field of six sophomore runners.

A crowd of 48,361 jammed the park and established Fred Hooper, Jr.'s colt as the 1 to 2 favorite. And the son of Helipoplis-Miss Dolphin by Stimulus never gave his many backers a moment of worry. Jockey Ted Atkinson never laid his whip on the colt.

The payoff was $3.00, $2.40 and $2.30.

AT GULFSTREAM

MIAMI, Fla., April 2—(AP)—F. A. Blaser's Count-A-Bit, a Kentucky Derby eligible, today won Gulfstream's $5,000 Fountain of Youth Handicap by two lengths before 12,093 fans.

Treplow stable's Fugitive was second, two lengths in front of Savoy stable's Top Admiral—another Derby candidate.

The third derby eligible and the $1.70 for $1 favorite in the field of eight, Air Attack, ran sixth.

Count-A-Bit, under 116 pounds, a four and one-half to one shot, returned $11.20, $6.90 and $4.80 across the board for a $2 wager and picked up $3,250 in prize money. The winner was timed at 1:44 1/5—a full second off the track record held by Rampart. Whirltown was fourth and Spize-Pinktom, Air Attack, Fayette County and Blue Grip finished in that order. Earlier, Hypostole won the six furlong $4,000 Miami Springs Purse by a half length. Mangohick was second and Speedy Lee was third.

Hypostyle returned $27.30, $9.90 and

ED LOPAT ADDING KNUCKLER TO HIS PITCHING TRICKS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., April 2—(AP)—Ed Lopat, chunky New York Yankee southpaw, is following Gene Bearden's example by adding a knuckle ball to his repertoire.

Bearden was just another pitcher in the Yankee farm system until Casey Stengel taught him the knuckler at Oakland in 1946-47. Last year as a rookie he was a 20-game winner and World Series hero for Cleveland.

Lopat doesn't expect such startling results. With him it's more of an experiment.

"I don't know whether I'll use it in a regular game," said Lopat. "But it worked pretty good down here.

"You have to be sure about two things with a knuckler. First, the ball has to do something. No maybe about it. If it doesn't flutter, you're dishing up a nothing ball. Second, you have to get it over. The best knuckler in the world is just junk, if it isn't over the plate."

Lopat threw the knuckler at Dick Wakefield the other afternoon in an exhibition game. The Detroit left fielder was so surprised that he let it sail past for a called third strike.

"Like any other new pitch," he said, "You have to take it easy or you can ruin your arm. My shoulder started to tighten up a little the other day after I threw it so I dropped it for a while. Same thing happened when I started to throw a screw ball in the minors."

Lopat's best pitch is his screw ball, a low breaking ball that curves away from a right handed hitter.

Always a slow starter, Lopat was disturbed about his unusually poor spring in 1948 after his sale to New York by the Chicago White Sox. He won only two games up to June 13 while losing five. After that he had a 15-6 record to wind up with 17-11, second only to Vic Raschi on the club.

MONARCHS SLATE EXHIBITION SCRAP

The Kansas City Monarchs, powerful professional Negro baseball club, opens its spring exhibition series here next Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at Casino Park against the newly organized Monroe Monarchs, it was announced last night.

The Kansas City club, in spring training here for the past week, has been looking impressive in drills permitted when it wasn't raining or too wet, and it looks like Manager O'Neil and Dizzy Dismukes, his chief assistant, will have another strong contender in the Negro major leagues this year.

Although the big leagues have taken a number of former Monarch stars, including Satchel Paige, Jackie Robinson, Henry Thompson, and Ford Smith, Manager O'Neil yesterday said he had added strong new talent and promised "to have one of the strongest teams in Negro baseball this year."

By Harry Grayson

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., April 2.—(NEA)—Towering Bill Reeder is the Cardinals' principal hope to fill the void in the pitching staff left by the sale of Murry Dickson to the Pirates.

"He has a rubber arm, is fast enough, and tied Jack Banta of the Dodgers for the most games won in the International League last season, 19," said Eddie Dyer.

Will Reeder

"But he'll never have a day like the one he had for all of us on Okinawa," said a baseball writer who was a war correspondent. "That one made him the talk of the island."

The war correspondent recalled that it was shortly after Easter Sunday, 1945, when counter-attacking Japs were playing havoc with Capt. George Wilcox' company of the 96th Infantry Division. They were doing it with knee mortars, so called because they can be fired from the knee.

"And they could practically drop 'em into your hip pocket," said T/Sgt. William Reeder.

"We couldn't reach them with our mortars," he explained, almost apologetically. "They could see our shells coming over the ridge they were trying to recapture, and they'd duck back into caves. Then, as quickly as our fire was lifted, they'd pepper us again."

Things became desperate. The knee mortar is a casualty weapon with point detonation, comparable to the hand grenade. Nearly everybody in Captain Wilcox' company was wounded.

The hand grenade was the obvious answer, but how to get a man close enough, and who could throw them—overhand and stiff-armed—far enough after getting there?

Captain Wilcox thought of the big sergeant who had pitched in the Texas League. He was no ordinary man. Hadn't he thrown hand grenades 100 yards in practice? It was the only way out, the one chance.

Sergeant Reeder low-bridged and crawled until he stumbled into what had been a Japanese machine gun nest from 60 to 80 yards from the caves covering the Nips with the knee mortars.

The Japanese quickly discovered that there had been some changes made, but Sergeant Reeder stuck in there, and pulled pins and hurled 150 hand grenades, or two boxes.

All seven knee mortars were knocked out of the box.

"Weren't you afraid of hurting your arm?" asked someone.

"I wasn't thinking of that at the moment," drawled six-foot five-inch, 196-pound, 27-year-old Pitcher Reeder of Sulphur Springs, Tex. "Besides, I'd rather be here with a dead arm and a live body."

Fortunately, Reeder, the tallest of the Red Birds, makes his major league bow with an arm to match his live body.

And after what Big Bill Reeder accomplished on Okinawa, there is no reason why he should be afraid of the National League.

PLAYED FOR MONROE

Will Reeder, the rookie Cardinal hurler, was a member of the last Monroe Cotton States League club, pitching for Manager Doug Taitt's White Sox of 1941. Reeder came to Monroe as a 20-year-old youngster after a season with the Marshall, Tex., club.

The lanky Texan is no taller now at six-feet-five than he was when he joined the Monroe club, but he's 11 pounds heavier than the 185 carried for the Sox. When Monroe quit baseball during World War II, Reeder was signed by the Shreveport Sports, but soon answered the call to service, returning to the Sports briefly after war was over.

EXHIBITION SCRAP FOR SICILY ISLAND TUESDAY

SICILY ISLAND, La., April 2.—(Special)—The Tiger team of Sicily Island High School will close spring training next Tuesday night with a football game with a team made up of local players from outside the school.

The game is scheduled for 7:30 o'clock, and Coach Raymond Peace is expecting a hard-fought battle. Sponsor of the game is the Sicily Island Rotary Club.

FARMERS COME TO MONROE FOR GAME TUESDAY

Coach Johnson Announced Eight-Game Slate For Bengal Nine

The Neville High School Tigers will play an eight-game baseball schedule, opening with the Farmerville High School Farmers here Tuesday afternoon at the Neville diamond, it was announced last night by Coach Johnny Johnson.

The opener with Farmerville will begin at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, the same starting time for all Tiger home contest, Coach Johnson said.

Also on the schedule are dates with Carr Central of Vicksburg, Miss., Byrd of Shreveport, and Winnsboro.

The schedule was announced as follows:

April 5—Farmerville, here.
April 12—Carr Central at Vicksburg.
April 19—Byrd at Shreveport.
April 21—Winnsboro, here.
April 28—Byrd, here.
May 5—Farmerville, there.
May 10—Winnsboro, there.
May 17—Carr Central, here.

Coach Johnson said he wasn't ready to announce his starting lineup, but members of his squad are as follows:

Charles Wood and Guy Gannaway, catchers; W. T. Brown and Charles Calhoun, first base; Harold Bassett and John Ensminger, second base; Jimmy Choate and Sam Campbell, shortstop; Vernon Sanders and Gary Coaker, third base; Joe Lasuzza, left field; Sam Shepard, center field; Tommy Leos and Guy Duriest, right field; and Wayne Moore, Craig Whetstone, and David Wadsworth, pitchers.

The outfield against Farmerville is practically set as Lasuzza, Shepard and Leos since DuPriest is ill and not likely to see action.

The hurling corps includes two right handers and a southpaw. The lefthander is Whetstone, a young prospect who played American Legion Junior baseball last year. Several of the Bengal players have Legion Junior experience.

Johnny Sain of the Braves and Rip Sewell of the Pirates had the longest National League winning eight straight.

O'Doul Put Woodling In Musial Stance To Pull For The Stands And Become Batting Champion

By Dan Daniel

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., April 2.—(NEA)—Competition between the Yankees and Cardinals served to call attention to the look-alike batting stances of the Stan Musial and Gene Woodling.

They stand with feet close together, go into a crouch with broken knees.

Gene Woodling

The knee action of Woodling, the San Francisco club's 1948 Pacific Coast League batting champion, is more pronounced.

Musial, three-time National League batting champion and most valuable player, hit that way naturally, and further developed his unusual style experimenting.

Woodling, prize Yankee outfielding recruit, got his style from Frank O'Doul, manager of the Seals, who was a member of the New York Americans as a left-handed pitcher before twice winning the National League batting championship.

"I did not copy my style from Musial, though I had seen Stan in action when I was with Pittsburgh for a short time before being sent to Newark in 1947," says Woodling.

"When I went to San Francisco, in part payment for Bob Chesnes, O'Doul said to me: 'I take it you have major league ambitions. You certainly did not come here with the idea of remaining in the Coast League the rest of your baseball career.

Distance Spells Dough

"'Well in the majors, a lefthand batter who cannot pull a ball is a total loss.

"'They don't care too much about men who can hit over the infield, and maybe stretch a hit into a double. They want an outfielder to be pulling for the stands and the fences. They pay off on home runs.

"'Now then for pulling a ball your style isn't worth a dime. I want you to crouch, to break your knees, and, most important of all, to wait until that last split second before you hit the ball. The last split second.'

"I saw the logic of O'Doul's opinion, and worked out the batting stance which I now use.

"Do I like it? No. I am not relaxed. But I hit .385 with it last season. In Newark in 1947, with my old style, also against Triple A pitching, I batted .289. The figures speak for themselves."

Woodling has been talking with Musial, and doubtless has been picking up some fresh angles on that peculiar stance.

Meanwhile, Casey Stengel says he is quite satisfied with the showing of the Coast League champion. So much so, that the Yankees have notified the San Francisco club they are going to keep Gene, whom they purchased last fall on a conditional basis.

They had until May 19 to make a decision.

10-GAME GRID SCHEDULE FOR BLOCK HIGH BRUINS

JONESVILLE, La., April 2.—(Special)—Block High School's Bears have laid aside their football uniforms until next fall, after ending spring training with an intra-squad game.

Facing them next season is a 10-game schedule, with the possibility of another being added.

The schedule, announced by Coach Frank Bishop, follows:

The Bears are losing several outstanding men. Heading the team next season will be Colon Crawford, who was judged "most valuable" during the past year.

CROWVILLE CLOSES FOOTBALL TRAINING

CROWVILLE, La., April 2.—(Special)—Ending four weeks of spring work for the Crowville High School football squad, the "Green" team downed the "White," here Friday night in an intra-squad exhibition, 13 to 7.

The Whites scored first after receiving the opening kickoff and marching straight down field with J. D. French, end, going over on a pass from Buel Ashley, quarterback. Halfback Marvin Womack hit the line for the extra point.

The Green evened the score in the second quarter on a four-yard line plunge by B. J. Newcomer, and Fullback David Louis added the point on a line buck. The half ended with the score tied, 7-7.

Louis provided the Green with the winning touchdown in the third quarter. A pass from Ralph Lewis to Charlie Clay failed to bring the point.

Several changes in personnel saw David Lewis, a tackle for two seasons, playing at fullback, and Royce Parker, two years an end, also performing at fullback. J. D. French, fullback last year, looked good at end, and Coach Albert L. Kay appeared well pleased with the showing made by these changes as well as the performance of the entire squad.

New additions to the roster, Joe Rhodes and B. J. Newcomer, halfbacks, and Charles Clay, end, looked exceptionally well and are expected to figure strong in the Bulldogs' 1949 campaign.

OLYMPIA TRUE TO FORM IN EXPERIMENTAL

DERBY HOPEFUL SCORES EASILY IN JAMAICA RUN

Count-A-Bit Wins Fountain Of Youth; Nearway Cops Bowie 'Cap

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP)—Olmpia ran away from five opponents today to rack up an easy victory in the 10th running of the $20,000 Added Experimental Handicap No. 1 at Jamaica race track.

The bay three-year-old colt, already one of the early choices for Kentucky Derby honors, romped the six furlongs in 1:10 4/5 and finished eight lengths ahead of his nearest pursuer.

His time was only three-fifths of a second off the track record set by Recce in 1945 and equalled by Miss Drummond in 1946.

Model Cadet, Mrs. Adal L. Rice's Derby hopeful, was second four and one half lengths in front of King Ranch's Curandero in the field of six sophomore runners.

A crowd of 48,361 jammed the park and established Fred Hooper, Jr.'s colt as the 1 to 2 favorite. And the son of Helipoplis-Miss Dolphin by Stimulus never gave his many backers a moment of worry. Jockey Ted Atkinson never laid his whip on the colt.

The payoff was $3.00, $2.40 and $2.30.

AT GULFSTREAM

MIAMI, Fla., April 2—(AP)—F. A. Blaser's Count-A-Bit, a Kentucky Derby eligible, today won Gulfstream's $5,000 Fountain of Youth Handicap by two lengths before 12,093 fans.

Treplow stable's Fugitive was second, two lengths in front of Savoy stable's Top Admiral—another Derby candidate.

The third derby ellgible and the $1.70 for $1 favorite in the field of eight, Air Attack, ran sixth.

Count-A-Bit, under 116 pounds, a four and one-half to one shot, returned $11.20, $6.90 and $4.80 across the board for a $2 wager and picked up $3,250 in prize money. The winner was timed at 1:44 1/5—a full second off the track record held by Rampart.

Whirltown was fourth and Spizerinktom, Air Attack, Fayette County and Blue Grip finished in that order.

Earlier, Hypostole won the six furlong $4,000 Miami Springs Purse by a half length. Mangohick was second and Speedy Lee was third.

Hypostyle returned $27.30, $9.90 and

ED LOPAT ADDING KNUCKLER TO HIS PITCHING TRICKS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., April 2—(AP)—Ed Lopat, chunky New York Yankee southpaw, is following Gene Bearden's example by adding a knuckle ball to his repertoire.

Bearden was just another pitcher in the Yankee farm system until Casey Stengel taught him the knuckler at Oakland in 1946-47. Last year as a rookie he was a 20-game winner and World Series hero for Cleveland.

Lopat doesn't expect such startling results. With him it's more of an experiment.

"I don't know whether I'll use it in a regular game," said Lopat. "But it worked pretty good down here.

"You have to be sure about two things with a knuckler. First, the ball has to do something. No maybe about it. If it doesn't flutter, you're dishing up a nothing ball. Second, you have to get it over. The best knuckler in the world is just junk, if it isn't over the plate."

Lopat threw the knuckler at Dick Wakefield the other afternoon in an exhibition game. The Detroit left fielder was so surprised that he let it sail past for a called third strike.

"Like any other new pitch," he said, "You have to take it easy or you can ruin your arm. My shoulder started to tighten up a little the other day after I threw it so I dropped it for a while. Same thing happened when I started to throw a screw ball in the minors."

Lopat's best pitch is his screw ball, a low breaking ball that curves away from a right handed hitter.

Always a slow starter, Lopat was disturbed about his unusually poor spring in 1948 after his sale to New York by the Chicago White Sox. He won only two games up to June 13 while losing five. After that he had a 15-6 record to wind up with 17-11, second only to Vic Raschi on the club.

MONARCHS SLATE EXHIBITION SCRAP

The Kansas City Monarchs, powerful professional Negro baseball club, opens its spring exhibition series here next Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at Casino Park against the newly organized Monroe Monarchs, it was announced last night.

The Kansas City club, in spring training here for the past week, has been looking impressive in drills permitted when it wasn't raining or too wet, and it looks like Manager O'Neil and Dizzy Dismukes, his chief assistant, will have another strong contender in the Negro major leagues this year.

Although the big leagues have taken a number of former Monarch stars, including Satchel Paige, Jackie Robinson, Henry Thompson, and Ford Smith, Manager O'Neil yesterday said he had added strong new talent and promised "to have one of the strongest teams in Negro baseball this year."

By Harry Grayson

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., April 2.—(NEA)—Towering Bill Reeder is the Cardinals' principal hope to fill the void in the pitching staff left by the sale of Murry Dickson to the Pirates.

"He has a rubber arm, is fast enough, and tied Jack Banta of the Dodgers for the most games won in the International League last season, 19," said Eddie Dyer.

"But he'll never have a day like the one he had for all of us on Okinawa," said a baseball writer who was a war correspondent. "That one made him the talk of the island."

Will Reeder

The war correspondent recalled that it was shortly after Easter Sunday, 1945, when counter-attacking Japs were playing havoc with Capt. George Wilcox' company of the 96th Infantry Division. They were doing it with knee mortars, so called because they can be fired from the knee.

"And they could practically drop 'em into your hip pocket," said T/Sgt. William Reeder.

"We couldn't reach them with our mortars," he explained, almost apologetically. "They could see our shells coming over the ridge they were trying to recapture, and they'd duck back into caves. Then, as quickly as our fire was lifted, they'd pepper us again."

Things became desperate. The knee mortar is a casualty weapon with point detonation, comparable to the hand grenade. Nearly everybody in Captain Wilcox' company was wounded.

The hand grenade was the obvious answer, but how to get a man close enough, and who could throw them—overhand and stiff-armed—far enough after getting there?

Captain Wilcox thought of the big sergeant who had pitched in the Texas League. He was no ordinary man. Hadn't he thrown hand grenades 100 yards in practice? It was the only way out, the one chance.

Sergeant Reeder low-bridged and crawled until he stumbled into what had been a Japanese machine gun nest from 60 to 80 yards from the caves covering the Nips with the knee mortars.

The Japanese quickly discovered that there had been some changes made, but Sergeant Reeder stuck in there, and pulled pins and hurled 150 hand grenades, or two boxes.

All seven knee mortars were knocked out of the box.

"Weren't you afraid of hurting your arm?" asked someone.

"I wasn't thinking of that at the moment," drawled six-foot five-inch, 196-pound, 27-year-old Pitcher Reeder of Sulphur Springs, Tex. "Besides, I'd rather be here with a dead arm and a live body."

Fortunately, Reeder, the tallest of the Red Birds, makes his major league bow with an arm to match his live body.

And after what Big Bill Reeder accomplished on Okinawa, there is no reason why he should be afraid of the National League.

PLAYED FOR MONROE

Will Reeder, the rookie Cardinal hurler, was a member of the last Monroe Cotton States League club, pitching for Manager Doug Taitt's White Sox of 1941. Reeder came to Monroe as a 20-year-old youngster after a season with the Marshall, Tex., club.

The lanky Texan is no taller now at six-feet-five than he was when he joined the Monroe club, but he's 11 pounds heavier than the 185 carried for the Sox. When Monroe quit baseball during World War II, Reeder was signed by the Shreveport Sports, but soon answered the call to service, returning to the Sports briefly after war was over.

EXHIBITION SCRAP FOR SICILY ISLAND TUESDAY

SICILY ISLAND, La., April 2.—(Special)—The Tiger team of Sicily Island High School will close spring training next Tuesday night with a football game with a team made up of local players from outside the school.

The game is scheduled for 7:30 o'clock, and Coach Raymond Peace is expecting a hard-fought battle. Sponsor of the game is the Sicily Island Rotary Club.

FARMERS COME TO MONROE FOR GAME TUESDAY

Coach Johnson Announced Eight-Game Slate For Bengal Nine

The Neville High School Tigers will play an eight-game baseball schedule, opening with the Farmerville High School Farmers here Tuesday afternoon at the Neville diamond, it was announced last night by Coach Johnny Johnson.

The opener with Farmerville will begin at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, the same starting time for all Tiger home contest, Coach Johnson said.

Also on the schedule are dates with Carr Central of Vicksburg, Miss., Byrd of Shreveport, and Winnsboro.

The schedule was announced as follows:

April 5—Farmerville, here.
April 12—Carr Central at Vicksburg.
April 19—Byrd at Shreveport.
April 21—Winnsboro, here.
April 28—Byrd, here.
May 5—Farmerville, there.
May 10—Winnsboro, there.
May 17—Carr Central, here.

Coach Johnson said he wasn't ready to announce his starting lineup, but members of his squad are as follows:

Charles Wood and Guy Gannaway, catchers; W. T. Brown and Charles Calhoun, first base; Harold Bassett and John Ensminger, second base; Jimmy Choate and Sam Campbell, shortstop; Vernon Sanders and Gary Coaker, third base; Joe Lasuzza, left field; Sam Shepard, center field; Tommy Leos and Guy Duriest, right field; and Wayne Moore, Craig Whetstone, and David Wadsworth, pitchers.

The outfield against Farmerville is practically set as Lasuzza, Shepard and Leos since DuPriest is ill and not likely to see action.

The hurling corps includes two right handers and a southpaw. The lefthander is Whetstone, a young prospect who played American Legion Junior baseball last year. Several of the Bengal players have Legion Junior experience.

Johnny Sain of the Braves and Rip Sewell of the Pirates had the longest National League winning eight straight.

O'Doul Put Woodling In Musial Stance To Pull For The Stands And Become Batting Champion

By Dan Daniel

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., April 2.—(NEA)—Competition between the Yankees and Cardinals served to call attention to the look-alike batting stances of the Stan Musial and Gene Woodling.

They stand with feet close together, go into a crouch with broken knees.

Gene Woodling

The knee action of Woodling, the San Francisco club's 1948 Pacific Coast League batting champion, is more pronounced.

Musial, three-time National League batting champion and most valuable player, hit that way naturally, and further developed his unusual style experimenting.

Woodling, prize Yankee outfielding recruit, got his style from Frank O'Doul, manager of the Seals, who was a member of the New York Americans as a left-handed pitcher before twice winning the National League batting championship.

"I did not copy my style from Musial, though I had seen Stan in action when I was with Pittsburgh for a short time before being sent to Newark in 1947," says Woodling.

"When I went to San Francisco, in part payment for Bob Chesnes, O'Doul said to me: 'I take it you have major league ambitions. You certainly did not come here with the idea of remaining in the Coast League the rest of your baseball career.

Distance Spells Dough

"'Well in the majors, a lefthand batter who cannot pull a ball is a total loss.

"'They don't care too much about men who can hit over the infield, and maybe stretch a hit into a double. They want an outfielder to be pulling for the stands and the fences. They pay off on home runs.

"'Now then for pulling a ball your style isn't worth a dime. I want you to crouch, to break your knees, and, most important of all, to wait until that last split second before you hit the ball. The last split second.'

"I saw the logic of O'Doul's opinion, and worked out the batting stance which I now use.

"Do I like it? No. I am not relaxed. But I hit .385 with it last season. In Newark in 1947, with my old style, also against Triple A pitching, I batted. 289. The figures speak for themselves."

Woodling has been talking with Musial, and doubtless has been picking up some fresh angles on that peculiar stance.

Meanwhile, Casey Stengel says he is quite satisfied with the showing of the Coast League champion. So much so, that the Yankees have notified the San Francisco club they are going to keep Gene, whom they purchased last fall on a conditional basis.

They had until May 19 to make a decision.

LOCAL GOLFERS HANDED FORFEIT BY SHREVEPORT

Caddo Parish Team Unable To Keep Appointment For Match Today

The Monroe district golf team, scheduled to meet Shreveport today in the first match of the Louisiana State Golf Association's league play, move into the semi-finals of state competition by default from Shreveport, it was announced here last night by E. S. "Shep" Girault.

Girault said he had been advised by telegram yesterday that Shreveport would be unable to keep its appointment for today, thus forfeiting to the Monroe team.

The default came at an opportune time for Monroe's team which was due to get its once postponed qualifying play out of the way yesterday. Bad weather yesterday again hampered the qualifying trials, but when the wire came from the Caddo parish club the trials were again put off.

Three other opening state league matches are scheduled for today with Lake Charles meeting Alexandria, Baton Rouge playing New Orleans, and Lafayette facing New Iberia.

The Monroe team next Sunday will meet the winner of the Lake Charles-Alexandria match. A victory next Sunday would send the Monroe delegation into the state title finals.

Lafayette is defending champion of the league.

HELENA'S SEAPORTERS SEEKING NEW MANAGER

HELENA, Ark., April 2—(AP)—The Helena Seaporters of the Cotton States League went through their second day of spring training today but were without a manager.

Jim McDonald, former Cleveland catcher who was to have been playing manager of the Seaporters this season, did not show up here last Sunday as scheduled. Later in the week the club received a letter from Mrs. McDonald saying her husband had been confined to a hospital in Detroit with a heart and nervous condition. She said he would be out of baseball for at least two months.

Meanwhile, Outfielder John McPherson, formerly with Clarksdale of the Cotton States loop, is acting as manager. He is working with a squad of 23 hopefuls, mostly rookies.

Meanwhile, a call went out to Detroit and St. Louis Browns organizations for help in securing a pilot.

But tonight Tom Faulkner, president of the Helena club, announced the signing of Ray Baker, 32, of Fort Smith, to manage the Seaporters during the 1949 season.

An outfielder, Baker piloted Muskogee of the Western Association for three seasons. He is to report here Monday.

EASTSIDE INDIANS END SPRING DRILLS FRIDAY

BASTROP, La., April 2.—(Special)—The Eastside Indians, grammar school football players of Bastrop, end spring training in an intra-squad game here next Friday afternoon, Coach Sid White has announced. The Indians are composed of sixth graders under 105 pounds and seventh graders under 120.

White has also expressed a desire to early contacts with coaches or managers of other grammar school teams throughout this section of the state to arrange early schedules for next season.

"We had trouble getting sufficient games for our boys last year," White said. "I'd like to lineup coaches from other towns now so we can map our schedules well enough in advance of next fall to assure good campaigns."

Contacts for games should be directed to Sid White here.

White's sixth grade team won the Midget Junior Sugar Bowl game at Monroe last December. He's losing 18 boys off his two squads before next season.

Paul Noel of the New York Knickerbockers acquired six fouls in less than 11 minutes in a Basketball Association of America game against Philadelphia recently.

Hoople Picks Indians To Repeat, Gate Figures Make Pirates Tops

By Major Amos B. Hoople
Batting Around Champion

EGAD! Here we go teeing off the puck for another baseball season, and as usual your prognostacitor is emerging from his cocoon with an airtight prediction—harrumph!

Here they are:

AMERICAN	NATIONAL
Cleveland	Pittsburgh
Boston	Boston
Philadelphia	Brooklyn
New York	Cincinnati
Detroit	St. Louis
St. Louis	New York
Washington	Philadelphia
Chicago	Chicago

Aye, it will be Cleveland again in the American League, but a drastic change in the National, with Pittsburgh copping the banner.

The reasons for this are simple: Cleveland led the league in attendance in 1947, and won the pennant in 1948. Pittsburgh led the National in attendance last year, therefore should cop in 1949.

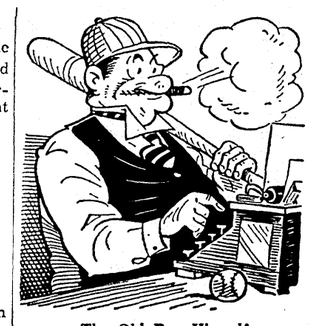

This is an easy way to select champions, gentle readers.

I fear the Yankees will slip a bit this year. I ascribe their decline to a heel, and I mean DiMaggio's.

Boston lost out last year because Manager McCarthy couldn't find the right button to push, and I am not sure the button has been installed yet at Fenway Park. That button would be a couple of 20-game pitchers.

Too bad the team hasn't all its buttons—heh, heh!

We old baseball men like the hitters,

The Old Boy Himself

and your correspondent expects Pittsburgh to lead the lead in this department. The Buccaneers were second in hitting last year.

The Braves are due for a slump at the plate this year. Heath's performance will not be up to last year's, I'm advised by my operatives who toured the camps.

The Indians have almost too much talent, and Mr. Veeck is still hunting for more.

Too bad the mighty hitter Lucius Easter is remaining at San Diego this year. He hits a ball farther than any man who ever lived, the scouts tell me. Ah, well, one of these days we'll see this Bunyan of the batter's box.

Just clip this and paste it in your hat, and mail me three cheers next fall.

The Monroe Lions held on to fourth place, taking three straight from the N. M. Lions team. Simpson hit 457 for the winners, Holland 444 for the N. M. Lions.

HAMMOND, La., April 2. —(AP)—Howard W. Kidd, rally secretary at Southeastern Louisiana College, announced today southeast Louisiana high school teams are being invited to participate in an annual district rally here April 27.

The meet, to be held on the Strawberry Stadium track on the S. L. C. campus, will be sponsored by the Southern District Rally Association, he said.

AT BOWIE

BOWIE, Md., April 2.—(AP)—Claude C. Tanner's Nearway proved he could take a distance as well as a spring today when he won the $10,000—added Bowie Handicap at a mile and 70 yards.

Nearway, who has copped three six-furlong events so far this year, beat out the favorite, George M. Jacobson's Big Dial, by a neck before a record crowd of 23,198. His fans collected $7.20 for each $2 bet.

While Nearway and Big Dial were battling it out for first, War Story and Flag Drill fought for the show position. The photo gave it to War Story.

Nearway carried Jockey Nunzio Pariso over the slow track in 1:45 3/5.

Nearway was rated fifth among the 1947 juveniles by Racing Secretary John B. Campbell. But the son of Ladysman and Gorgeous Lady broke down after two starts as a 3-year-old.

He came back with two wins at the Fair Grounds last month and took the opening day Rowe Memorial here Monday.

AT GOLDEN GATE

ALBANY, Calif., April 22.—(AP)—Pretal, five-year-old, Argentine-bred horse, won the $10,000-Added San Franciscan Handicap over a mile and one-sixteenth at Golden Gate Fields today. The time was 1:42 3/5.

A longshot, Pretal paid $52.40 for $2 win tickets.

The feature event, raced before 23,869 fans, created an evciting finish when two jockeys were spilled from their mounts. One horse was disqualified.

Roman In, which finished second, was disqualified for bolting out and was placed out of the money. The ruling put Happy Issue in second place. Prevaricator, which had finished fourth, was moved up to third.

Roman In was ridden by Apprentice Jockey Gordon Glisson, of Winnsboro, S. C. In the early stretch he lost partial control of the horse, which bore into Prevaricator, forcing the latter to race wide.

Why Alibi ran up on Prevaricator's heels and the former's jockey, Walter Litzenberg, of Wapato, Wash., slid off. Apprentice Jockey Sevio Cardiali, of Detroit, fell off Drumbeat when the horse jumped over Litzenberg, already sprawled on the track.

Litzenberg suffered a slightly bruised hip. Cardiali was not hurt.

The winner, Pretal, is owned by Ramon Jimenez and Carlos Diez, of Panama City, and was ridden by Jose Bravo, of Valparaiso, Chile.

Pretal, an outsider, won by a nose and paid $52.40, $20 and $8.90. Happy Issue returned $20.20 and $9.10 and Prevaricator $3.80. Top's Boy raced fourth while Cover Up, the favorite, failed to threaten. The victory was worth $8,160 to Pretal's owner.

AT LINCOLN DOWNS

LINCOLN, R. I., April 2.—(AP)—G. Y. Booker's Lawless Miss, the odds on favorite of a crowd of 18,000, scored a smashing triumph in the $2,500 Woonsocket Purse today at Lincoln Downs.

The six-year-old Gallahadion mare, cleverly ridden by Bobby Edens, came from behind to lead J. H. Carr's A. G. Kelly by two lengths at the finish of the seven-furlong sprint.

Her time of 1:26 1/5 was the fastest of the meeting for that distance.

Lawless Miss paid $3.40, $2.80 and $2.40. O. G. Kelly paid $6.00 and $3.80. A length and quarter behind O. G. Kelly was J. E. Cunningham's Bel Beau, which paid $2.80 show.

for me. This time I'll pay the general admission for 20 good-sized ladies."

"What do you consider a good-sized lady?" Kallio asked.

"One hundred and sixty pounds or over," replied the mat meanie. "I tell you what. You've got some penny scales here. Let the ladies weigh as they come in and the first 20 weighing 160 or over can come in at my expense.

"I had those little kids in here last week and I couldn't hear them rooting for me. I'm sure they wanted their friend Bill to win, but their little voices were too weak and I couldn't hear them. It should be different when the husky women start cheering for old Bill this time."

The lanky Texan, currently the leading villain of the Southern circuit, has been trying to curry favor with the fans for some time and the free tickets, he figured, might help.

"Sometimes it looks like I don't have a friend in the house," Steddum explained, "but I take things as they come and don't held any grudge against any man. I have a good time in the ring and enjoy wrestling."

An estimated 1,686,670 major crimes occurred in 1948, the F. B. I. reports.

LOCAL GOLFERS HANDED FORFEIT BY SHREVEPORT

Caddo Parish Team Unable To Keep Appointment For Match Today

The Monroe district golf team, scheduled to meet Shreveport today in the first match of the Louisiana State Golf Association's league play, move into the semi-finals of state competition by default from Shreveport, it was announced here last night by E. S. "Shep" Girault.

Girault said he had been advised by telegram yesterday that Shreveport would be unable to keep its appointment for today, thus forfeiting to the Monroe team.

The default came at an opportune time for Monroe's team which was due to get its once postponed qualifying play out of the way yesterday. Bad weather yesterday again hampered the qualifying trials, but when the wire came from the Caddo parish club the trials were again put off.

Three other opening state league matches are scheduled for today with Lake Charles meeting Alexandria, Baton Rouge playing New Orleans, and Lafayette facing New Iberia.

The Monroe team next Sunday will meet the winner of the Lake Charles-Alexandria match. A victory next Sunday would send the Monroe delegation into the state title finals.

Lafayette is defending champion of the league.

HELENA'S SEAPORTERS SEEKING NEW MANAGER

HELENA, Ark., April 2—(AP)—The Helena Seaporters of the Cotton States League went through their second day of spring training today but were without a manager.

Jim McDonald, former Cleveland catcher who was to have been playing manager of the Seaporters this season, did not show up here last Sunday as scheduled. Later in the week the club received a letter from Mrs. McDonald saying her husband had been confined to a hospital in Detroit with a heart and nervous condition. She said he would be out of baseball for at least two months.

Meanwhile, Outfielder John McPherson, formerly with Clarksdale of the Cotton States loop, is acting as manager. He is working with a squad of 23 hopefuls, mostly rookies.

Meanwhile, a call went out to Detroit and St. Louis Browns organizations for help in securing a pilot.

But tonight Tom Faulkner, president of the Helena club, announced the signing of Ray Baker, 32, of Fort Smith, to manage the Seaporters during the 1949 season.

An outfielder, Baker piloted Muskogee of the Western Association for three seasons. He is to report here Monday.

In the university mile relay, an unusual incident occurred during the first lap. Don Mitchell of Texas A. and M., running close to Costin Bufkin of Texas Tech, got impatient to pass so he pushed Bufkin in the back. Tech did not place while A. and M. won the event in 3:17.3, just one-tenth of a second over its own Texas relay record.

EASTSIDE INDIANS END SPRING DRILLS FRIDAY

BASTROP, La., April 2.—(Special)—The Eastside Indians, grammar school football players of Bastrop, end spring training in an intra-squad game here next Friday afternoon, Coach Sid White has announced. The Indians are composed of sixth graders under 105 pounds and seventh graders under 120.

White has also expressed a desire to early contacts with coaches or managers of other grammar school teams throughout this section of the state to arrange early schedules for next season.

"We had trouble getting sufficient games for our boys last year," White said. "I'd like to lineup coaches from other towns now so we can map our schedules well enough in advance of next fall to assure good campaigns."

Contacts for games should be directed to Sid White here.

White's sixth grade team won the Midget Junior Sugar Bowl game at Monroe last December. He's losing 18 boys off his two squads before next season.

Paul Noel of the New York Knickerbockers acquired six fouls in less than 11 minutes in a Basketball Association of America game against Philadelphia recently.

Hoople Picks Indians To Repeat, Gate Figures Make Pirates Tops

By Major Amos B. Hoople
Batting Around Champion

EGAD! Here we go teeing off the puck for another baseball season, and as usual your prognostacitor is emerging from his cocoon with an airtight prediction—harrumph!

Here they are:

AMERICAN	NATIONAL
Cleveland	Pittsburgh
Boston	Boston
Philadelphia	Brooklyn
New York	Cincinnati
Detroit	St. Louis
St. Louis	New York
Washington	Philadelphia
Chicago	Chicago

Aye, it will be Cleveland again in the American League, but a drastic change in the National, with Pittsburgh copping the banner.

The reasons for this are simple: Cleveland led the league in attendance in 1947, and won the pennant in 1948. Pittsburgh led the National in attendance last year, therefore should cop in 1949.

This is an easy way to select champions, gentle readers.

I fear the Yankees will slip a bit this year. I ascribe their decline to a heel, and I mean DiMaggio's.

Boston lost out last year because Manager McCarthy couldn't find the right button to push, and I am not sure the button has been installed yet at Fenway Park. That button would be a couple of 20-game pitchers.

Too bad the team hasn't all its buttons—heh, heh!

We old baseball men like the hitters,

The Old Boy Himself

and your correspondent expects Pittsburgh to lead the lead in this department. The Buccaneers were second in hitting last year.

The Braves are due for a slump at the plate this year. Heath's performance will not be up to last year's, I'm advised by my operatives who toured the camps.

The Indians have almost too much talent, and Mr. Veeck is still hunting for more.

Too bad the mighty hitter Lucius Easter is remaining at San Diego this year. He hits a ball farther than any man who ever lived, the scouts tell me. Ah, well, one of these days we'll see this Bunyan of the batter's box.

Just clip this and paste it in your hat, and mail me three cheers next fall.

W. M. Kiwanis stayed in a contending spot when the Monroe Kiwanis No. 2 team failed to show up and lost 3 games on forfeits.

The Monroe Lions held on to fourth place, taking three straight from the N. M. Lions team. Simpson hit 457 for the winners, Holland 444 for the N. M. Lions.

The Optimist Club drove up from seventh place to fifth with a clean sweep of their games with the Monroe Kiwanis No. 1. Bill Bennett, Jr. shot a 251 single game, a new League high, and a 583 series for the Optimist, while "Pop" Bennett starred for the Kiwanis No. 1 with a 560 total.

AT BOWIE

BOWIE, Md., April 2.—(AP)—Claude C. Tanner's Nearway proved he could take a distance as well as a spring today when he won the $10,000—added Bowie Handicap at a mile and 70 yards.

Nearway, who has copped three six-furlong events so far this year, beat out the favorite, George M. Jacobson's Big Dial, by a neck before a record crowd of 23,198. His fans collected $7.20 for each $2 bet.

While Nearway and Big Dial were battling it out for first, War Story and Flag Drill fought for the show position. The photo gave it to War Story.

Nearway carried Jockey Nunzio Pariso over the slow track in 1:45 3/5.

Nearway was rated fifth among the 1947 juveniles by Racing Secretary John B. Campbell. But the son of Ladysman and Gorgeous Lady broke down after two starts as a 3-year-old.

He came back with two wins at the Fair Grounds last month and took the opening day Rowe Memorial here Monday.

AT GOLDEN GATE

ALBANY, Calif., April 22.—(AP)—Pretal, five-year-old, Argentine-bred horse, won the $10,000-Added San Franciscan Handicap over a mile and one-sixteenth at Golden Gate Fields today. The time was 1:42 3/5.

A longshot, Pretal paid $52.40 for $2 win tickets.

The feature event, raced before 23,869 fans, created an exciting finish when two jockeys were spilled from their mounts. One horse was disqualified.

Roman In, which finished second, was disqualified for bolting out and was placed out of the money. The ruling put Happy Issue in second place. Prevaricator, which had finished fourth, was moved up to third.

Roman In was ridden by Apprentice Jockey Gordon Glisson, of Winnsboro, S. C. In the early stretch he lost partial control of the horse, which bore into Prevaricator, forcing the latter to race wide.

Why Alibi ran up on Prevaricator's heels and the former's jockey, Walter Litzenberg, of Wapato, Wash., slid off. Apprentice Jockey Sevio Cardiali, of Detroit, fell off Drumbeat when the horse jumped over Litzenberg, already sprawled on the track.

Litzenberg suffered a slightly bruised hip. Cardiali was not hurt.

The winner, Pretal, is owned by Ramon Jimenez and Carlos Diez, of Panama City, and was ridden by Jose Bravo, of Valparaiso, Chile.

Pretal, an outsider, won by a nose and paid $52.40, $20 and $8.90. Happy Issue returned $20.20 and $9.10 and Prevaricator $3.80. Top's Boy raced fourth while Cover Up, the favorite, failed to threaten. The victory was worth $8,160 to Pretal's owner.

AT LINCOLN DOWNS

LINCOLN, R. I., April 2.—(AP)—G.

Richard Pancho Gonzales holds trophies won in victory over Billy Talbert in National Indoor tennis championships in New York's Seventh Regiment Armory. Winning the clay court and grass singles titles last summer, the 20-year-old Californian completed a clean sweep of nation's three top amateur crowns.

Y. Booker's Lawless Miss, the odds on favorite of a crowd of 18,000, scored a smashing triumph in the $2,500 Woonsocket Purse today at Lincoln Downs.

The six-year-old Gallahadion mare, cleverly ridden by Bobby Edens, came from behind to lead J. H. Carr's A. G. Kelly by two lengths at the finish of the seven-furlong sprint.

Her time of 1:26 1/5 was the fastest of the meeting for that distance.

Lawless Miss paid $3.40, $2.80 and $2.40. O. G. Kelly paid $6.00 and $3.80. A length and quarter behind O. G. Kelly was J. E. Cunningham's Bel Beau, which paid $2.80 show.

for me. This time I'll pay the general admission for 20 good-sized ladies."

"What do you consider a good-sized lady?" Kallio asked.

"One hundred and sixty pounds or over," replied the mat meanie. "I tell you what. You've got some penny scales here. Let the ladies weigh as they come in and the first 20 weighing 160 or over can come in at my expense.

"I had those little kids in here last week and I couldn't hear them rooting for me. I'm sure they wanted their friend Bill to win, but their little voices were too weak and I couldn't hear them. It should be different when the husky women start cheering for old Bill this time."

The lanky Texan, currently the leading villain of the Southern circuit, has been trying to curry favor with the fans for some time and the free tickets, he figured, might help.

"Sometimes it looks like I don't have a friend in the house," Steddum explained, "but I take things as they come and don't held any grudge against any man. I have a good time in the ring and enjoy wrestling."

An estimated 1,686,670 major crimes occurred in 1948, the F. B. I. reports.

Mike Jacobs Declares His Intent To Continue With Fight Business

Twentieth Century Boss Spikes Reports He Plans To 'Sell Out'

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP)—Mike Jacobs, 69-year-old president of the 20th Century Sporting Club, today emphatically denied reports he intended to sell out and said he expects to continue in business.

Jacobs said at a press interview that he came up from Miami to confer with officers of the Madison Square Garden Corporation at their request.

When the 20th promotes boxing at the Garden under what was described by both parties as a "landlord-tenant agreement." Their contract runs through May 31, 1951.

Asked what the conference was for, Jacobs said, "I have an idea but I don't know how good it is. I won't say anything further."

But Ned Irish, executive director of the Garden, said, in a telephonic interview that "we'd like to find out what's in his (Jacob's) mind.

"We've been reading stories that he was selling out and we'd like to find out what's what," Irish said from his Spring Lake, N. J., summer home.

When told of Jacobs' statement that he intended to stay in boxing, Irish declared "that's welcome news."

Irish described the impending conference, which will be held sometime this week as "a normal business conference."

GEORGIA TECH GRIDDERS CONTINUE ROUGH DRILLS

ATLANTA, April 2—(AP)—Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets held another "head knockin'" scrimmage today and Coach Bobby Dodd said he was glad to report that "nobody got hurt."

Three of the Jackets were knocked out in a hurly-burly session yesterday. They are Halfback Lawton Grant, who required six stitches for a face cut; Guard Billy Barringer, whose cheek bone was almost fractured, and Halfback Wes Shipstead, who hurt his knee.

Dodd repeated that he was highly impressed with the line play of Hal Miller, 225-pound tackle from Kingsport, Tenn. Miller, however, will not be eligible for varsity competition until 1950, since he only recently enrolled at Tech.

Little Roy Thompson, 170-pound fullback, and Powell Sheffer, halfback from Orlando, both last year's freshmen, were standouts on the offensive.

WALCOTT-CHARLES BOUT GETS OFFICIAL APPROVAL

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—The National Boxing Association's executive committee today endorsed the match between Jersey Joe Walcott and Ezzard Charles for the world's heavyweight title vacated by Joe Louis.

Walcott and Charles are to meet in Chicago June 22 in a fight under the promotion of Louis.

STAN LOPATA GIVING PHILLIES REASON TO DREAM OF PENNANTS

CLEARWATER, Fla., April 2.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Phillies—with the accent on youth—expect to blossom into a National League pennant contender this summer.

One of the main reasons is Rookie Catcher Stan Lopata.

Nobody is making any predictions, especially Manager Eddie Sawyer. However, the feeling is that 1949 is the year the "Carpenter plan" begins paying off.

The "Carpenter plan" is the program launched by Owner Bob Carpenter. By it he built up a farm system that has produced some of the best rookie prospects in the big leagues today.

Lopata is one of the prize recruits. He's typical of the assembly line production Carpenter expects to mold into a pennant contender.

A long ball hitter, Lopata signed with the Phils after starring on Detroit's sandlots. He went south with the Phils in 1947 then was farmed to Utica where he hit .325 and was voted the Eastern League's most valuable player.

Only 24, Lopata is the perfect size for a catcher. He has power in his six-foot two frame, weighs 210.

Coach Si Perkins says Stan still is unwise to the National League pitching tricks but once he catches on—beware.

Starting Pitcher Jimmy Stephens went all the way for Vandy. He allowed the Bulldogs only four hits. Ace Adams also went the route for Charley Trippi's Georgians and yielded seven hits.

The announcement was made by the Rev. Joseph C. Mulhern, S. J., athletic director at the college.

Twenty-eight candidates have announced their intention to try out for the team, he said.

He said it is possible the team may participate in a meet in Birmingham early this month, the Southwestern Relays on April 16, and the Gulf States Conference meet on May 14.

SPORTS TRAIL

By Whitney Martin

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP)—Well, this fellow looks us over and wants to know if it's the straight dope that we picked the Boston Red Sox to win the American League pennant.

We admitted it was and he walked away muttering something about "somebody ought to straighten out the dope," and if we were of a suspicious nature we would suspect that he meant us.

The fact is, that most of the fans seem to think the Cleveland Indians will be a shoo-in. They are the world champions, aren't they? They have pitching and power and fielding, don't they? Who is better on paper?

We figured all those things before giving the nod to the Red Sox, and we also figured some other factors.

The Indians had more power than the Red Sox last year, collecting 155 home runs to 121 for the Boston club. They had a far better pitching staff. Their infield probably was the best in the league.

Yet they were forced into a playoff for the flag by the club they apparently outclassed in all departments.

Another factor we considered was that some of the Cleveland players had years which might indicate they were playing over their heads, and that they could not hope to maintain the pace this year.

The extremely capable Lou Boudreau, with a .299 lifetime average, batted an astonishing .355, and he hit 18 home runs compared to his 1947 output of four.

Ken Keltner hit 31 home runs, 20 more than he hit the year before and the most he ever hit in one season in his life. Gene Bearden was new to the league and his tricky knuckler puzzled the opposition batters. They might get next to him this year.

Old Satch Paige, also new to the league, turned in six important victories. He's a year older now at a time of life when a year means just so much more lead in the arms and legs.

When you think of what the Indians had, you wonder why they didn't win by a dozen games. Yet they were played even-Stephen by a team whose pitching on the whole was called that through courtesy only; which wobbled like a punchy fighter early in the campaign and at one time was 13 1/2 games out of first place, and which had a new manager.

Joe McCarthy knows his club now; knows where every player belongs and what he can do. Johnny Pesky, who never had played third base before last year, now knows his way around that spot. You know that Ted Williams and Vernon Stephens and Bobby Doerr, the power triumverate of the team, will have as good seasons as they had last year, barring accidents.

And you have a stout suspicion the pitching will be much, much better.

All in all, it simmers down to the fact that the Red Sox players are due to be as good as they were last year and that there would seem to be doubt that the Indians can be as good. They were just too good last year.

We aren't forgetting that Bob Feller was off his usual form last year, he still won 19 games, which is wonderful for anyone but Feller. The slack between the 25 or 30 games he was expected to win was taken up by Bearden and Paige.

We've talked ourselves into a pretty deep hole, but those are our arguments and we'll stick to them. We're stuck with them, anyway. And if our prediction doesn't put the whammy on the Red Sox, nothing will.

FAVOR BADGERS TO KEEP N.C.A.A. BOXING THRONE

L. S. U., San Jose, Michigan State Regarded As Most Serious Threats

EAST LANSING, Mich., April 2.—(AP)—The class of America's collegiate boxing crop takes its annual three-day fling at eight N. C. A. championships starting next Thursday and again it's Wisconsin to beat for the team title.

Approximately 70 individuals from 20 schools have been selected to slug it out for the national titles at Michigan State College's Jenison field house. Champions in the eight weight divisions will be crowned Saturday night.

Wisconsin, winner of the N. C. A. A. team crown four years running, rules as the favorite. But the Badgers may get some real pressure for such teams as Louisiana State, unbeaten in dual competition this winter; San Jose (Calif.) State, which was dethroned as west coast champ by Idaho last night and a Michigan State team that recently held Wisconsin to a draw in a dual meet.

On an individual basis, the field is a match-maker's dream with five defending champions back on hand, more than 30 candidates who have gone unbeaten through this much of the 1949 campaign, and a host of sectional stars including most of the winners from the Eastern Intercollegiate, Southern Invitational and Pacific Coast tournaments.

Besides Wisconsin, L. S. U., San Jose State and Michigan State, the field includes representatives from California Aggies, University of California, Catholic U., DePaul, Gonzaga, Ihado, Maryland, Miami (Fla.), Minnesota, Penn State, South Carolina, Syracuse, Army, Virginia, Washington State and Superior (Wis.) Teachers.

Tournament sessions are scheduled Thursday afternoon and Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights to determine the eight individual champions.

BIFFLE SETS NEW MARK; MAY NOT BE RECOGNIZED

BOULDER, Colo., April 2.—(AP)—Jerome Biffle of Denver University tonight ran the 60-yard dash in record-equalling time of 6.1 seconds at the University of Colorado Invitational indoor track meet.

However, meet officials said his mark probably would not be recognized because the referee did not see the timing watches started and stopped as required.

Biffle nosed out Don Campbell, University of Colorado, Bib Seven conference champion at the distance.

The recognized world record of 6.1 seconds for the 60 yard dash is held jointly by 11 sprinters.

HOMESICK ATHLETE QUITS TECH, HEADS FOR VANDY

ATLANTA, April 2.—(AP)—Coach Bobby Dodd announced today that Bill Joe Ehrhart, outstanding backfield prospect, had withdrawn from Georgia Tech because of homesickness and returned to his Nashville, Tenn., home.

Ehrhart scored 189 points and averaged 11.1 yards per try to set a Nashville prep record last year. He had been counted upon as a Yellow Jacket mainstay.

"I think he probably will attend Vanderbilt," Dodd said. "He wants to stay in his home town and we understand how he feels. We will gladly release him from his grant-in-aid he signed with us."

When an athlete signs a grant-in-aid with one southeastern conference school he cannot play at another for two years unless released.

DOCUSEN GIVES POUNDS BUT DECISIONS SAVAGE

TACOMA, Wash., April 2.—(AP)—An outweighed Bernard Docusen at 147 1/2, survived a stormy ninth round to stab out an unanimous 10-round decision over Milo Savage, 153, of Seattle in a catch-weight bout here last night.

Docusen came back to win the tenth.

RUMORED GIANTS WILL SEND MIZE TO BROOKS IN DEAL TO GET MIKSIS

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP)—The New York World-Telegram said today the New York Giants and the Brooklyn Dodgers would announce a trade within a few days in which John Mize would go to the Dodgers for Eddie Miksis.

Mize, now 36, is a first baseman and has tied for national league home run honors the past two seasons. Miksis, 23-year-old utility infielder, is primarily a second baseman.

The World-Telegram, in its account of an interview with Giant Manager Leo Durocher at Phoenix, Ariz., pointed out that he was quick to deny rumors of a possible three-way trade involving the Giants, Dodgers and Pittsburgh. However, Durocher would not deny the Mize-Miksis deal.

Branch Rickey, president of the Dodgers, often has been quoted this spring as saying his club's one need was first base insurance. Durocher, in turn, has said that the Giants inability to make double plays cost them games in the past.

TOSCANINI UNHAPPY FOLLOWING CONCERT

By W. G. Rogers
(Associated Press Arts Reporter)

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP)—Arturo Toscanini, conducting the NBC symphony soloists and orchestra tonight in the last acts of Verdi's "Aida," plainly lost his temper.

Evidently angered at the flash, he did not appear again, although the audience was calling for him vociferously.

The photographer, whose name was not revealed, was questioned by the police-uniformed "protection department" of NBC and allowed to leave after the film was confiscated.

To this observer, it seemed as though Toscanini already had been displeased by something else, cause unkown.

After the brief intermission following Act III, he gave the enthusiastic audience only a quick, brusque wave. When the show was over, he scurried off the stage without waiting for the cheers to which he was entitled.

McPherson got into the finals by beating Greenwood (Ind.) 38-35 earlier in the day. Kankakee topped Richmond (Ky.) 40-33 in another semi-final game.

Congressman Won't Leave Spokane Jail

SPOKANE, Wash., April 2.—(AP)—Congressman Compton I. White (D-Idaho) is in a city jail cell here today and—police say—refuses to leave it.

The 71-year-old Idaho representative was jailed last night near 8 p.m. and charged with disorderly conduct. Detective Capt. John Reilly, who identified the congressman, said he was charged after an argument with a traffic officer over a parking violation ticket.

Capt. Paul Sanders said White appeared at the desk to post bond this morning and was returned to confinement when he became abusive.

James McCluskey, manager of the Davenport Hotel, appeared this morning to obtain the congressman's release but said White refused to leave.

White was quoted by Jailer Harry McClelland as saying he would "stay in jail until the city is through with me."

Motorcycle Officer Homer Hall said the representative refused to accept a traffic summons that had been placed on the windshield of his car and said his status as a congressman placed him beyond arrest. The officer said White became abusive and refused to comply when he told him to drive to the police station.

The officer said he forced White's car to the curb several blocks down the street and placed him under arrest. The congressman was brought to the station in a police wagon.

Newsmen were not permitted to see White.

NEGRESS ENDS NIGHT IN BED-MINUS HAIR

Savannah Kennison, 42, Negress, closed out here Saturday night in Conway Memorial Hospital—with a clean shaven head and many bruises.

How she come about the bruises is still something of a mystery to police who found her wandering near Northeast Junior College, badly beaten and highly inebriated.

But the shaven head came about out at the hospital where she was taken for treatment. Here her hair was removed and cuts and bruises treated, on her head and left elbow.

She was to go back to police who were going to hold her overnight hoping to clear up the assault part of the case today.

Mike Jacobs Declares His Intent To Continue With Fight Business

Twentieth Century Boss Spikes Reports He Plans To 'Sell Out'

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP)—Mike Jacobs, 69-year-old president of the 20th Century Sporting Club, today emphatically denied reports he intended to sell out and said he expects to continue in business.

Jacobs said at a press interview that he came up from Miami to confer with officers of the Madison Square Garden Corporation at their request.

When the 20th promotes boxing at the Garden under what was described by both parties as a "landlord-tenant agreement." Their contract runs through May 31, 1951.

Asked what the conference was for, Jacobs said, "I have an idea but I don't know how good it is. I won't say anything further."

But Ned Irish, executive director of the Garden, said, in a telephonic interview that "we'd like to find out what's in his (Jacob's) mind.

"We've been reading stories that he was selling out and we'd like to find out what's what," Irish said from his Spring Lake, N. J., summer home.

When told of Jacobs' statement that he intended to stay in boxing, Irish declared "that's welcome news."

Irish described the impending conference, which will be held sometime this week as "a normal business conference."

GEORGIA TECH GRIDDERS CONTINUE ROUGH DRILLS

ATLANTA, April 2—(AP)—Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets held another "head knockin'" scrimmage today and Coach Bobby Dodd said he was glad to report that "nobody got hurt."

Three of the Jackets were knocked out in a hurly-burly session yesterday. They are Halfback Lawton Grant, who required six stitches for a face cut; Guard Billy Barringer, whose cheek bone was almost fractured, and Halfback Wes Shipstead, who hurt his knee.

Dodd repeated that he was highly impressed with the line play of Hal Miller, 225-pound tackle from Kingsport, Tenn. Miller, however, will not be eligible for varsity competition until 1950, since he only recently enrolled at Tech.

Little Roy Thompson, 170-pound fullback, and Powell Sheffer, halfback from Orlando, both last year's freshmen, were standouts on the offensive.

STAN LOPATA GIVING PHILLIES REASON TO DREAM OF PENNANTS

CLEARWATER, Fla., April 2.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Phillies—with the accent on youth—expect to blossom into a National League pennant contender this summer.

One of the main reasons is Rookie Catcher Stan Lopata.

Nobody is making any predictions, especially Manager Eddie Sawyer. However, the feeling is that 1949 is the year the "Carpenter plan" begins paying off.

The "Carpenter plan" is the program launched by Owner Bob Carpenter. By it he built up a farm system that has produced some of the best rookie prospects in the big leagues today.

Lopata is one of the prize recruits. He's typical of the assembly line production Carpenter expects to mold into a pennant contender.

A long ball hitter, Lopata signed with the Phils after starring on Detroit's sandlots. He went south with the Phils in 1947 then was farmed to Utica where he hit .325 and was voted the Eastern League's most valuable player.

Only 24, Lopata is the perfect size for a catcher. He has power in his six-foot two frame, weighs 210.

Coach Si Perkins says Stan still is unwise to the National League pitching tricks but once he catches on—beware.

SPRING HILL BADGERS PLAN 1ST TRACK TEAM

MOBILE, Ala., April 2.—(AP)—Spring Hill College announced today it will have a track team for the first time this season.

The announcement was made by the Rev. Joseph C. Mulhern, S. J., athletic director at the college.

Twenty-eight candidates have announced their intention to try out for the team, he said.

He said it is possible the team may participate in a meet in Birmingham early this month, the Southwestern Relays on April 16, and the Gulf States Conference meet on May 14.

SPORTS TRAIL

By Whitney Martin

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP)—Well, this fellow looks us over and wants to know if it's the straight dope that we picked the Boston Red Sox to win the American League pennant.

We admitted it was and he walked away muttering something about "somebody ought to straighten out the dope," and if we were of a suspicious nature we would suspect that he meant us.

The fact is, that most of the fans seem to think the Cleveland Indians will be a shoo-in. They are the world champions, aren't they? They have pitching and power and fielding, don't they? Who is better on paper?

We figured all those things before giving the nod to the Red Sox, and we also figured some other factors.

The Indians had more power than the Red Sox last year, collecting 155 home runs to 121 for the Boston club. They had a far better pitching staff. Their infield probably was the best in the league.

Yet they were forced into a playoff for the flag by the club they apparently outclassed in all departments.

Another factor we considered was that some of the Cleveland players had years which might indicate they were playing over their heads, and that they could not hope to maintain the pace this year.

The extremely capable Lou Boudreau, with a .299 lifetime average, batted an astonishing .355, and he hit 18 home runs compared to his 1947 output of four.

Ken Keltner hit 31 home runs, 20 more than he hit the year before and the most he ever hit in one season in his life. Gene Bearden was new to the league and his tricky knuckler puzzled the opposition batters. They might get next to him this year.

Old Satch Paige, also new to the league, turned in six important victories. He's a year older now at a time of life when a year means just so much more lead in the arms and legs.

When you think of what the Indians had, you wonder why they didn't win by a dozen games. Yet they were played even-Stephen by a team whose pitching on the whole was called that through courtesy only; which wobbled like a punchy fighter early in the campaign and at one time was 13 1/2 games out of first place, and which had a new manager.

Joe McCarthy knows his club now; knows where every player belongs and what he can do. Johnny Pesky, who never had played third base before last year, now knows his way around that spot. You know that Ted Williams and Vernon Stephens and Bobby Doerr, the power triumverate of the team, will have as good seasons as they had last year, barring accidents.

And you have a stout suspicion the pitching will be much, much better.

All in all, it simmers down to the fact that the Red Sox players are due to be as good as they were last year and that there would seem to be doubt that the Indians can be as good. They were just too good last year.

We aren't forgetting that Bob Feller was off his usual form last year, he still won 19 games, which is wonderful for anyone but Feller. The slack between the 25 or 30 games he was expected to win was taken up by Bearden and Paige.

We've talked ourselves into a pretty deep hole, but those are our arguments and we'll stick to them. We're stuck with them, anyway. And if our prediction doesn't put the whammy on the Red Sox, nothing will.

FAVOR BADGERS TO KEEP N.C.A.A. BOXING THRONE

L. S. U., San Jose, Michigan State Regarded As Most Serious Threats

EAST LANSING, Mich., April 2.—(AP)—The class of America's collegiate boxing crop takes its annual three-day fling at eight N. C. A. championships starting next Thursday and again it's Wisconsin to beat for the team title.

Approximately 70 individuals from 20 schools have been selected to slug it out for the national titles at Michigan State College's Jenison field house. Champions in the eight weight divisions will be crowned Saturday night.

Wisconsin, winner of the N. C. A. A. team crown four years running, rules as the favorite. But the Badgers may get some real pressure for such teams as Louisiana State, unbeaten in dual competition this winter; San Jose (Calif.) State, which was dethroned as west coast champ by Idaho last night and a Michigan State team that recently held Wisconsin to a draw in a dual meet.

On an individual basis, the field is a match-maker's dream with five defending champions back on hand, more than 30 candidates who have gone unbeaten through this much of the 1949 campaign, and a host of sectional stars including most of the winners from the Eastern Intercollegiate, Southern Invitational and Pacific Coast tournaments.

Besides Wisconsin, L. S. U., San Jose State and Michigan State, the field includes representatives from California Aggies, University of California, Catholic U., DePaul, Gonzaga, Ihado, Maryland, Miami (Fla.), Minnesota, Penn State, South Carolina, Syracuse, Army, Virginia, Washington State and Superior (Wis.) Teachers.

Tournament sessions are scheduled Thursday afternoon and Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights to determine the eight individual champions.

BIFFLE SETS NEW MARK; MAY NOT BE RECOGNIZED

BOULDER, Colo., April 2.—(AP)—Jerome Biffle of Denver University tonight ran the 60-yard dash in record-equalling time of 6.1 seconds at the University of Colorado Invitational indoor track meet.

However, meet officials said his mark probably would not be recognized because the referee did not see the timing watches started and stopped as required.

Biffle nosed out Don Campbell, University of Colorado, Bib Seven conference champion at the distance.

The recognized world record of 6.1 seconds for the 60 yard dash is held jointly by 11 sprinters.

Ralph Metcalfe set the mark at Notre Dame in 1933. Barney Ewell and Thomas Carey, both of New York, equalled the time in 1947.

HOMESICK ATHLETE QUITS TECH, HEADS FOR VANDY

ATLANTA, April 2.—(AP)—Coach Bobby Dodd announced today that Bill Joe Ehrhart, outstanding backfield prospect, had withdrawn from Georgia Tech because of homesickness and returned to his Nashville, Tenn., home.

Ehrhart scored 189 points and averaged 11.1 yards per try to set a Nashville prep record last year. He had been counted upon as a Yellow Jacket mainstay.

"I think he probably will attend Vanderbilt," Dodd said. "He wants to stay in his home town and we understand how he feels. We will gladly release him from his grant-in-aid he signed with us."

When an athlete signs a grant-in-aid with one southeastern conference school he cannot play at another for two years unless released.

DOCUSEN GIVES POUNDS BUT DECISIONS SAVAGE

TACOMA, Wash., April 2.—(AP)—An outweighed Bernard Docusen at 147 1/2, survived a stormy ninth round to stab out an unanimous 10-round decision over Milo Savage, 153, of Seattle in a catch-weight bout here last night.

Docusen came back to win the tenth.

RUMORED GIANTS WILL SEND MIZE TO BROOKS IN DEAL TO GET MIKSIS

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP)—The New York World-Telegram said today the New York Giants and the Brooklyn Dodgers would announce a trade within a few days in which John Mize would go to the Dodgers for Eddie Miksis.

Mize, now 36, is a first baseman and has tied for national league home run honors the past two seasons. Miksis, 23-year-old utility infielder, is primarily a second baseman.

The World-Telegram, in its account of an interview with Giant Manager Leo Durocher at Phoenix, Ariz., pointed out that he was quick to deny rumors of a possible three-way trade involving the Giants, Dodgers and Pittsburgh. However, Durocher would not deny the Mize-Miksis deal.

Branch Rickey, president of the Dodgers, often has been quoted this spring as saying his club's one need was first base insurance. Durocher, in turn, has said that the Giants inability to make double plays cost them games in the past.

TOSCANINI UNHAPPY FOLLOWING CONCERT

By W. G. Rogers
(Associated Press Arts Reporter)

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP)—Arturo Toscanini, conducting the NBC symphony soloists and orchestra tonight in the last acts of Verdi's "Aida," plainly lost his temper.

Evidently angered at the flash, he did not appear again, although the audience was calling for him vociferously.

The photographer, whose name was not revealed, was questioned by the police-uniformed "protection department" of NBC and allowed to leave after the film was confiscated.

To this observer, it seemed as though Toscanini already had been displeased by something else, cause unkown.

After the brief intermission following Act III, he gave the enthusiastic audience only a quick, brusque wave. When the show was over, he scurried off the stage without waiting for the cheers to which he was entitled.

McPherson got into the finals by beating Greenwood (Ind.) 38-35 earlier in the day. Kankakee topped Richmond (Ky.) 40-33 in another semi-final game.

Congressman Won't Leave Spokane Jail

SPOKANE, Wash., April 2.—(AP)—Congressman Compton I. White (D-Idaho) is in a city jail cell here today and—police say—refuses to leave it.

The 71-year-old Idaho representative was jailed last night near 8 p.m. and charged with disorderly conduct. Detective Capt. John Reilly, who identified the congressman, said he was charged after an argument with a traffic officer over a parking violation ticket.

Capt. Paul Sanders said White appeared at the desk to post bond this morning and was returned to confinement when he became abusive.

James McCluskey, manager of the Davenport Hotel, appeared this morning to obtain the congressman's release but said White refused to leave.

White was quoted by Jailer Harry McClelland as saying he would "stay in jail until the city is through with me."

Motorcycle Officer Homer Hall said the representative refused to accept a traffic summons that had been placed on the windshield of his car and said his status as a congressman placed him beyond arrest. The officer said White became abusive and refused to comply when he told him to drive to the police station.

The officer said he forced White's car to the curb several blocks down the street and placed him under arrest. The congressman was brought to the station in a police wagon.

Newsmen were not permitted to see White.

NEGRESS ENDS NIGHT IN BED-MINUS HAIR

Savannah Kennison, 42, Negress, closed out here Saturday night in Conway Memorial Hospital—with a clean shaven head and many bruises.

How she come about the bruises is still something of a mystery to police who found her wandering near Northeast Junior College, badly beaten and highly inebriated.

But the shaven head came about out at the hospital where she was taken for treatment. Here her hair was removed and cuts and bruises treated, on her head and left elbow.

She was to go back to police who were going to hold her overnight hoping to clear up the assault part of the case today.

A 16-year-old niece, Marrianne Tillman, told investigators that Brown had borrowed the weapon from an airman at Keesler Air base.

HEAVY OIL PRICES IN DOWNWARD TREND

DALLAS, Tex., April 2.—(AP)—Talco Pipeline Company announced a downward readjustment of 30 cents a barrel in the price paid for heavy, asphalt crude oil produced in four east Texas fields.

It was effective Friday. D. R. Zachry of Dallas, vice-president of the purchasing firm, said the adjustment was made to cover handling costs.

He said the new price schedule would affect about 55,000 barrels monthly of the low gravity crude—from Coke, Manziel and Alba fields in Wood county and the Mitchell Creek field in Hopkins county.

The company's purchase of light crudes is not affected. Most of the crude involved is around 14 and 15 gravity. The new price schedule starts at $1.80 a barrel for 19.9 gravity oil and drops two cents a barrel for each gravity degree down to 12 gravity and below the company has been paying $2.10 a barrel for 19.9 gravity oil.

SIX-ROOM DWELLING BLOCKS I. C. TRAIN

MERIDIAN, Miss., April 2.—(AP)—Parker, Illinois Central freight engineer, placidly peered out of his cab as the train rounded a curve east of Jackson.

The house, being moved yesterday, was rolled onto the tracks seconds before the train appeared.

Parker, because of reduced speed, was able to brake in time to keep from breaking and entering.

OILERS AGAINST FEDERAL ACTION

Opposition Is Voiced By Western Refiners Association At 37th Annual Meeting

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., April 2.—(AP)—Strong opposition by the Western Petroleum Refiners Association to any federal action toward "divorcement" of large oil companies and their subsidiaries was foreshadowed Tuesday at the first general session of the association's 37th annual meeting in the Plaza Hotel.

The divorcement would be accompanied by four bills now being considered by committees of the U. S. senate and house of representatives. A resolution opposing the bills is reported to be in the hands of refiners associations committee to be submitted to the delegates at the second general session Wednesday afternoon.

One of the bills would prohibit major oil companies from operating or holding an interest in pipelines.

Gordon C. Locke, general counsel and executive director of the newly composed committee for pipeline companies, today declared that the pipeline companies are the only common carriers who have reduced their rates in the last few years, although at present they are the "least regulated" of all carriers.

Some of the smaller oil or refining companies are reported to be in favor of the divorcement bills.

LITTLE INCH PIPELINE BURSTS WITH BIG SHOW

JONESBORO, Ark., April 2.—(AP)—Explosion of the "Little Inch" Natural Gas Transmission pipeline near here today provided a spectacular show.

But that was about all. No injuries were reported, and the Texas Eastern Transmission Company, which operates the line, said no property damage was done.

The company, which uses the line for transmission of gas from Texas to northeastern states, said interruption of service would be brief.

The explosion occurred near Sedgwick, in a remote section of Lawrence county in northeast Arkansas. Sedgwick is about 14 miles northwest of Jonesboro.

The pipeline section exploded with a noise heard miles away. Flames which shot high into the air could be seen at Egypt, Arkansas, six miles away. Windows in Egypt buildings were shaken.

The flow of gas was shut off on both sides of the break and the flames were extinguished.

The "Little Inch" pipeline, 20 inches in diameter, was used by the government during the war along with the parallel 24-inch "Big Inch" line to transmit oil from Texas to the east.

DOZEN NATIONALITIES REPRESENTED ON SHIP

NEW ORLEANS, April 2.—(AP)—More than a dozen nationalities are represented aboard a second ship bringing displaced persons to New Orleans.

The U. S. army transport, General Taylor, is due here Tuesday with 877 refugees destined for southern, central and western states. There are 524 Poles in the group, 157 Lithuanians, 87 Latvians and 28 Ukrainians.

Of the total, 157 are listed as skilled workers, 152 as agricultural laborers, 41 as personal servants and 24 as professional persons.

Aboard the vessel are 212 families with a total of 259 children under 16 years of age.

Destinations by states include 312 for Louisiana, 20 for Tennessee, 15 for Arkansas, and eight for Texas. Nine of the newcomers are headed for as far as Oregon.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 2.—(AP)—Grains got off to a slow start but finished with a strong tone on the board of trade today. A good amount of short covering came into the market in the last 30 minutes. Action of cotton at New York, where prices advanced, had some influence in creating a buying atmosphere here.

Wheat closed 1/8 lower to 5/8 higher, May $2.15-$2.15 1/8, corn was 1/8-1/4 higher, May $1.33 3/4-$1.34, oats were unchanged to 1/4 higher, May .69 1/8-1/4, rye was 1/4 higher, May $1.26 1/4, soybeans were 2 3/4 to 3 cents higher, May $2.20-$2.20 1/4, and lard was 20 to 25 cents a hundred pounds higher, May $11.70.

Spring salads are delicious served with sour cream instead of the usual dressing. Try lettuce, green onions and thin cucumber slices this way. Season the salad with salt and lots of freshly ground pepper.

COTTON

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, April 2.—(AP)—Cotton futures advanced here today on heavy week end short covering and trade buying. Closing prices were steady, $1.70 a bale higher to 10 cents a bale lower.

The May position was under pressure of long liquidation in anticipation of first notice day April 26. Much of the demand for other months was stimulated by expectations that the senate would approve shortly the economic cooperation administration fund of $5,580,000,000 for European aid spending.

Trading was active for the short Saturday session and some of the buying resulted from rumors that Spain might be admitted to the United Nations leading to another outlet for American cotton.

Spot cotton advanced 25 cents a bale with middling 15/16-inch quoted at 32.60 cents a pound. Sales here totaled 388 bales.

New York

NEW YCRK, April 2.—(AP)—Cotton futures were firm today. Although trading was the broadest for a Saturday in several months, a large part of the dealings involved switching operations from nearby to more deferred contracts. New crop deliveries were bolstered by developments at Washington where the ECA bill is heading for completion. Traders reasoned that any exports under the ECA would involve new crop deliveries.

Futures closed 5 cents to $1.60 a bale higher than the previous.

YOUNG HUSBAND IS HELD FOR MURDERS

LAPLACE, La., April 2.—(AP)—Lieut. Francis Moore of Louisiana state police said Walter J. Nunn, Jr., was charged today with the murder of his wife and their five-months-old son.

Mrs. Hazel Nunn, 18, and the boy, Walter J. Nunn, III, were shot to death at their home near here yesterday.

Their bodies were found in the living room after state police pursued Nunn from the dwelling. Nunn fled in an automobile. The machine swerved off the highway. Nunn fled afoot, but was arrested when he bogged down in the swampy woodlands.

Lieutenant Moore said State Trooper E. P. Millet signed the affidavit charging murder, in justice of the peace court at Edgard, parish seat of St. John the Baptist parish.

Presumably, Moore said, a .38-caliber revolver taken off the prisoner was the murder weapon. Mrs. Nunn had been shot twice and the baby four times.

Moore said that Nunn stated orally that "his wife had had the devil in her and he had been told the only way to remove a devil was by killing the person.

The father of the accused man, Walter J. Nunn, told officers that he visited his son twice yesterday and that the second time he went the younger Nunn ordered him away because "he wanted to be alone with his wife and son." Officers were notified. When they approached Nunn's house he fled.

Moore said Nunn had been attending a radio school in New Orleans under the G. I. bill of rights.

HEAVY OIL PRICES IN DOWNWARD TREND

DALLAS, Tex., April 2.—(AP)—Talco Pipeline Company announced a downward readjustment of 30 cents a barrel in the price paid for heavy, asphalt crude oil produced in four east Texas fields.

It was effective Friday. D. R. Zachry of Dallas, vice-president of the purchasing firm, said the adjustment was made to cover handling costs.

He said the new price schedule would affect about 55,000 barrels monthly of the low gravity crude—from Coke, Manziel and Alba fields in Wood county and the Mitchell Creek field in Hopkins county.

The company's purchase of light crudes is not affected. Most of the crude involved is around 14 and 15 gravity. The new price schedule starts at $1.80 a barrel for 19.9 gravity oil and drops two cents a barrel for each gravity degree down to 12 gravity and below the company has been paying $2.10 a barrel for 19.9 gravity oil.

SIX-ROOM DWELLING BLOCKS I. C. TRAIN

MERIDIAN, Miss., April 2.—(AP)—Parker, Illinois Central freight engineer, placidly peered out of his cab as the train rounded a curve east of Jackson.

His mouth fell open and his eyes popper—dead ahead smack in the middle of the tracks was a six-room white house.

The house, being moved yesterday, was rolled onto the tracks seconds before the train appeared.

Parker, because of reduced speed, was able to brake in time to keep from breaking and entering.

OILERS AGAINST FEDERAL ACTION

Opposition Is Voiced By Western Refiners Association At 37th Annual Meeting

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., April 2.—(AP)—Strong opposition by the Western Petroleum Refiners Association to any federal action toward "divorcement" of large oil companies and their subsidiaries was foreshadowed Tuesday at the first general session of the association's 37th annual meeting in the Plaza Hotel.

The divorcement would be accompanied by four bills now being considered by committees of the U. S. senate and house of representatives. A resolution opposing the bills is reported to be in the hands of refiners associations committee to be submitted to the delegates at the second general session Wednesday afternoon.

One of the bills would prohibit major oil companies from operating or holding an interest in pipelines.

Gordon C. Locke, general counsel and executive director of the newly composed committee for pipeline companies, today declared that the pipeline companies are the only common carriers who have reduced their rates in the last few years, although at present they are the "least regulated" of all carriers.

Some of the smaller oil or refining companies are reported to be in favor of the divorcement bills.

LITTLE INCH PIPELINE BURSTS WITH BIG SHOW

JONESBORO, Ark., April 2.—(AP)—Explosion of the "Little Inch" Natural Gas Transmission pipeline near here today provided a spectacular show.

But that was about all. No injuries were reported, and the Texas Eastern Transmission Company, which operates the line, said no property damage was done.

The company, which uses the line for transmission of gas from Texas to northeastern states, said interruption of service would be brief.

The explosion occurred near Sedgwick, in a remote section of Lawrence county in northeast Arkansas. Sedgwick is about 14 miles northwest of Jonesboro.

The pipeline section exploded with a noise heard miles away. Flames which shot high into the air could be seen at Egypt, Arkansas, six miles away. Windows in Egypt buildings were shaken.

The flow of gas was shut off on both sides of the break and the flames were extinguished.

The "Little Inch" pipeline, 20 inches in diameter, was used by the government during the war along with the parallel 24-inch "Big Inch" line to transmit oil from Texas to the east.

DOZEN NATIONALITIES REPRESENTED ON SHIP

NEW ORLEANS, April 2.—(AP)—More than a dozen nationalities are represented aboard a second ship bringing displaced persons to New Orleans.

Of the total, 157 are listed as skilled workers, 152 as agricultural laborers, 41 as personal servants and 24 as professional persons.

Aboard the vessel are 212 families with a total of 259 children under 16 years of age.

Destinations by states include 312 for Louisiana, 20 for Tennessee, 15 for Arkansas, and eight for Texas. Nine of the newcomers are headed for as far as Oregon.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 2.—(AP)—Grains got off to a slow start but finished with a strong tone on the board of trade today. A good amount of short covering came into the market in the last 30 minutes. Action of cotton at New York, where prices advanced, had some influence in creating a buying atmosphere here.

Wheat closed 1/8 lower to 5/8 higher, May $2.15-$2.15 1/8, corn was 1/8-1/4 higher, May $1.33 3/4-$1.34, oats were unchanged to 1/4 higher, May .69 1/8-1/4, rye was 1/4 higher, May $1.26 1/4, soybeans were 2 3/4 to 3 cents higher, May $2.20-$2.20 1/4, and lard was 20 to 25 cents a hundred pounds higher, May $11.70.

Curbs

Cities Service 44 1/2, Electric Bond and Share 13 1/4.

Spring salads are delicious served with sour cream instead of the usual dressing. Try lettuce, green onions and thin cucumber slices this way. Season the salad with salt and lots of freshly ground pepper.

COTTON

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, April 2.—(AP)—Cotton futures advanced here today on heavy week end short covering and trade buying. Closing prices were steady, $1.70 a bale higher to 10 cents a bale lower.

The May position was under pressure of long liquidation in anticipation of first notice day April 26. Much of the demand for other months was stimulated by expectations that the senate would approve shortly the economic cooperation administration fund of $5,580,000,000 for European aid spending.

Trading was active for the short Saturday session and some of the buying resulted from rumors that Spain might be admitted to the United Nations leading to another outlet for American cotton.

Spot cotton advanced 25 cents a bale with middling 15/16-inch quoted at 32.60 cents a pound. Sales here totaled 388 bales.

AVERAGE COTTON PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, April 2.—(AP)—The average price of middling 15/16ths-inch cotton today at 10 designated southern spot markets was 10 cents a bale higher at 32.68 cents a pound; average for the past 30 market days 32.49, middling 7/8ths-inch average 30.63.

New York

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP)—Cotton futures were firm today. Although trading was the broadest for a Saturday in several months, a large part of the dealings involved switching operations from nearby to more deferred contracts. New crop deliveries were bolstered by developments at Washington where the ECA bill is heading for completion. Traders reasoned that any exports under the ECA would involve new crop deliveries.

Futures closed 5 cents to $1.60 a bale higher than the previous.

YOUNG HUSBAND IS HELD FOR MURDERS

LAPLACE, La., April 2.—(AP)—Lieut. Francis Moore of Louisiana state police said Walter J. Nunn, Jr., was charged today with the murder of his wife and their five-months-old son.

Mrs. Hazel Nunn, 18, and the boy, Walter J. Nunn, III, were shot to death at their home near here yesterday.

Their bodies were found in the living room after state police pursued Nunn from the dwelling. Nunn fled in an automobile. The machine swerved off the highway. Nunn fled afoot, but was arrested when he bogged down in the swampy woodlands.

Lieutenant Moore said State Trooper E. P. Millet signed the affidavit charging murder, in justice of the peace court at Edgard, parish seat of St. John the Baptist parish.

Presumably, Moore said, a .38-caliber revolver taken off the prisoner was the murder weapon. Mrs. Nunn had been shot twice and the baby four times.

Moore said that Nunn stated orally that "his wife had had the devil in her and he had been told the only way to remove a devil was by killing the person.

The father of the accused man, Walter J. Nunn, told officers that he visited his son twice yesterday and that the second time he went the younger Nunn ordered him away because "he wanted to be alone with his wife and son." Officers were notified. When they approached Nunn's house he fled.

Moore said Nunn had been attending a radio school in New Orleans under the G. I. bill of rights.

SOLDIER IS SHOT IN MEMPHIS HOTEL

Father Of Woman Sergeant Wanted To Marry Held For Assault To Murder

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 2.—(AP)—An army sergeant with a gun-blasted spine, lying near death in a hospital here tonight, told police he was shot in a downtown hotel just before dawn by the father of a girl he once hoped to marry.

Sgt. Henry Hynds, Jr., 30-year-old Pacific veteran of White Deer, Texas, near Amarillo, told Deputy Inspector Larry Fox his assailant was Ivadean Chessher, 52, of Atlanta.

Chessher is charged with assault to murder.

His daughter, Mrs. Betty Jean Ortega, 25, of Memphis, was booked on a charge of accessory before and after the fact of assault to murder.

Hynds was found in the hotel corridor by a man checking in to the room next to Chessher's.

The gun, a .32-caliber pistol, was found behind the radiator in Chessher's room, Inspector Pete Wiebenga said. It was covered with blood.

Chessher denied the shooting. Mrs. Ortega said her back was turned when the pistol fired and she had no idea why Hynds was shot.

She told police she and Sgt. Hynds had been thwarted in several marriage attempts. She said they met in 1941, but were unable to marry because a former husband refused to give her a divorce.

Mrs. Ortega said when she finally obtained the divorce, Sgt. Hynds was overseas. She remarried before his return. Her husband, Juan Ortega, is stationed at the Millington Naval Base, near Memphis.

The sergeant married two years ago. His wife, Mrs. Sadie Hynds, flew here from Birmingham, Ala., shortly after the shooting. She was at his bedside throughout the day.

Inspector Wiebenga said police believe the shooting was a follow-up to Sergeant Hynd's discussing with Chessher the possibility of his adopting Mrs. Ortega's six-year-old daughter by a former marriage.

He said the sergeant came here Friday to discuss the possibility with Mrs. Ortega. She refused to discuss the matter with newsmen.

BRITISH EXPECTING MORE HIGH TAXING

LONDON, April 2.—(AP)—Despite a $1,412,000,000 treasury surplus, Britons figure to keep on paying heavy taxes under a new budget to be unveiled in parliament Wednesday.

Public demands for tax relief may draw some concessions, but these are almost certain to be balanced by increases in other levies.

Sir Stafford Cripps, Britain's austere economics boss, already has said he will keep on battling inflation "with all the weapons used successivcly in 1947 and 1948."

That means stiff taxes, price controls, subsidies for essential foods and farm products, and voluntary limitation of wages, profits and dividends. An announced object of the tax program is to drain off enough money to keep incomes in line with available goods.

For weeks prospective customers have been staying out of stores in the hope Cripps will cut purchase taxes. They range now from 33 1/3 per cent on such things as tailor made suits up to 100 per cent on luxuries such as fur coats, fine silverware and jewelry.

The powerful trades union congress, backbone of the labor government, demands that Cripps cut some of these taxes and increase the list of exempt items.

Smokers and tobacco dealers alike want him to knock a little off cigarettes, too. Present taxes run the price up to 70 cents for a pack of 20.

Brewers and pub keepers, noting a considerable drop in business recently, want beer taxes cut. Weak draft beer now is taxed so a pint costs 30 cents.

Business and financiers are crying for a cut in the 45 per cent tax on undistributed profits and an increase in exemptions for depreciation, or upkeep, of their plants.

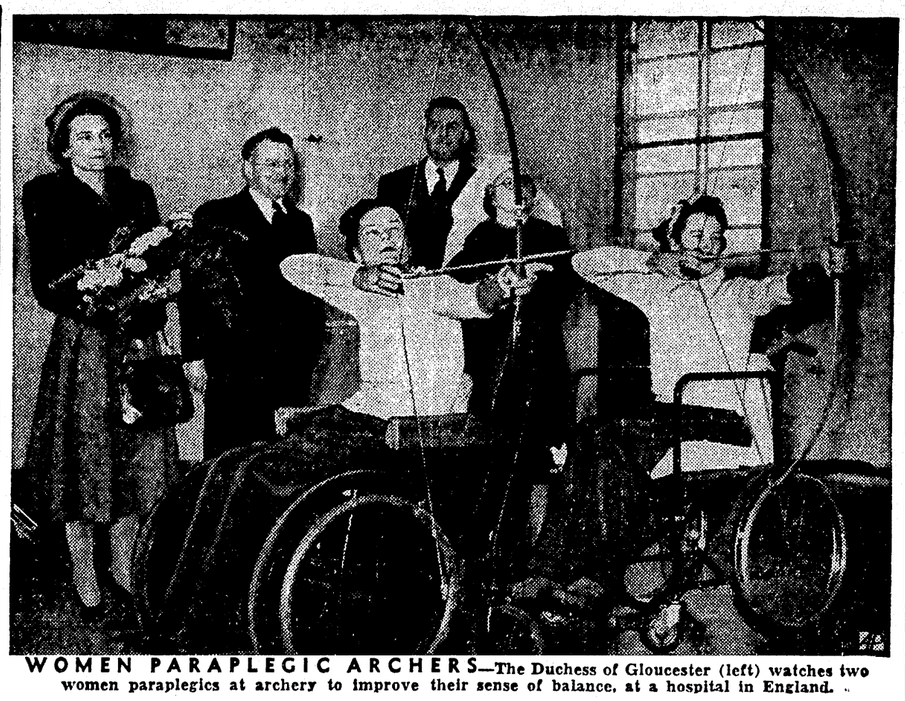

Cripps may have mild relief in store for all of them.

But it won't be much, if anything.

Johnson Says British Sent Jet Engines To Russians

Secretary Of Defense Says Practice Discontinued In Late 1947

By Marvin L. Arrowsmith

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—Great Britain shipped some jet airplane engines to Russia after the war but halted deliveries late in 1947, Secretary of Defense Johnson informed the senate today.

Further requests for more such engines, which are used to power the fastest combat planes, have been rejected by the British, Johnson said.

The secretary's report was read to the senate as it debated legislation authorizing $5,580,000,000 to carry on the Marshall plan of European aid. Approval of the full amount appeared assured. Two attempts to slash it were beaten last night.

At an unusual Saturday session, the senate waded into a pile of more than 25 amendments to the bill. Action on the big majority of them and the bill itself was not expected before next week.

It was the eve of the first birthday of the gigantic European recovery effort to stop communism. And Paul Hoffman, Marshall plan director, in an anniversary report struck a blow for continuing the effort at full speed.

"The emergency is not over," he said, and we mustn't be complacent now—"It isn't smart to let down in the middle of a fight." His report showed that western Europe's output is up, exports expanded, trade deficits lowered and inflation slowed. He stressed peace hopes through unity of the 19 nations benefiting.

Johnson outlined the jet engine situation in a letter to Senator McCarran (D.-Nev.), chairman of the senate-house "watchdog" committee on European aid. McCarran, who sought the information, had the letter read to the senate.

Referring to McCarran's inquiry "regarding the reported shipments of British jet engines to Soviet Russia," Johnson said he could supply this information:

"Some jet engines were sold and delivered to U. S. S. R. after the end of the war, but no deliveries have been made since December 1947 and additional requests have been rejected.

"We have been in touch with the British on this subject over a period of time and have been informed that it is the present policy of the British government to make no further deliveries of the jet engines to the Soviet Union and the satellites."

McCarran told the senate Johnson's letter amounted to a "complete refutation" of reports that Britain and other countries getting Marshall plan aid have at the same time been selling jet engines to Russia and her satellite nations.

However, Senator Hickenlooper (R.Iowa) differed with McCarran. Hickenlooper said the Johnson letter was not a complete refutation and that on the contrary it indicated some "manipulations" in Anglo-Russian relations. The Iowa senator told his colleagues he would have more to say on the subject later.

Meanwhile, Senator Ellender urged the senate to force European countries receiving American aid to increase their purchase of war materials for the United States.

He called for adoption of his amendment requiring that 25 per cent of funds realized by European countries through their sale of American supplies to their own people be used to purchase strategic materials for this country.

Another Ellender amendment would prohibit use of American dollars to pay off foreign national debts.

Ellender remarked that if this country "continues to dish out as we are now doing, we are more than likely to place ourselves on the same level of the countries we are trying to assist." Then he said: "If that ever happens, God help us."

Senator Jenner (R.-Ind.) asserted that when the four-year Marshall plan ends European countries still will have "a two or three billion dollar deficit in their trade balances."

"I suppose," said Ellender, "that they are just setting the stage for the Marshall plan to go on—"

"Forever and ever," Jenner interrupted.

Senator Brewster (R.-Me.) told reporters he thinks the administration leaders are delaying a vote on his proposal to bar Marshall plan funds to the Dutch so long as they do not comply with United Nations orders concerning Indonesia.

This amendment is opposed by Senators Connally (D.-Tex.) and Vandenberg (R.-Mich.), who contend that it short circuits United Nations procedures.

The two foreign relations leaders were said to believe it might be much more effective to warn the Dutch that if they don't follow the security council's decision in forthcoming negotiations on the Indonesian situation that aid funds may be cut off.

TOMBIGBEE RIVER FALLS AFTER SUDDEN CLIMBING

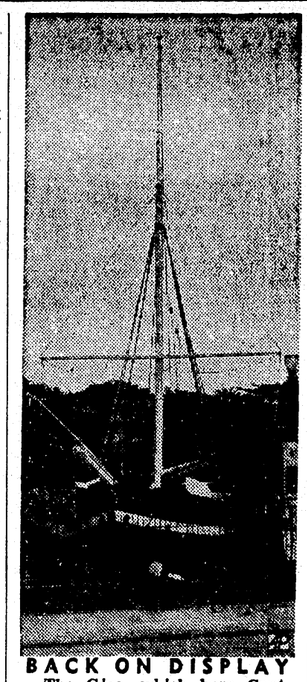

MOBILE, Ala., April 2.—(AP)—The Tombigbee river today was falling in Northeast Mississippi after a sudden rise to flood stages.

Today's reading at Aberdeen, Miss., was 36.9 feet, about three feet over the flood level. The reading at Columbus, Miss., was just above flood stage of 29 feet.

Both the Tombigbee and Warrior rivers were affected by heavy spring rains. Little damage was expected from the rise, because farmers had not planted the lowlands which were covered by the flood waters.

The Warrior gauge stood at 45.6 feet at Tuscaloosa, Ala., where flood stage is 47 feet.

The reading at Demopolis, Ala., where the two rivers meet, was 54.2 feet, or 15.2 feet over flood stage. The Mobile weather bureau said the Tombigbee will continue to rise slowly below Demopolis.

CRIPPLED CHILDREN QUOTA IS LAGGING

The $10,000 quota set for the local unit of the Louisiana Crippled Children's Society was reported last night to be lagging behind. Local Chairman Fran J. Brennan urged that more interest be focused toward raising this quota.

Brennan pointed out that in order to meet the future demands of the local chapter the goal would have to be collected. "I am sure" stated the local chairman, "that most people of the Ouachita parish area realize the importance of having a sufficient amount in reserve to meet the coming disasters of crippled children and adults alike." He added, "no one knows who might be striken and need aid from the chapter."

He pointed out that this is the only time in the year when the crippled children's society would appeal to the public for donations and as much response as possible should be given the current drive.

In addition to helping crippled children, Brennan said, the organization is organized to assist adult cripples as well. "Some persons think the society is designed to accommodate children only," he stated. Anyone who needs assistance is welcome to apply at the local unit's headquarters.

Persons receiving Easter seals by mail are asked to reply by mailing a contribution by enclosing whatever amount they desire in the addressed envelope. Brennan said that if all persons who received the seals would respond the goal would be reached.

Erskine Johnson:

IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD—(NEA)—Just as I suspected (and predicted here) Rita Hayworth's road show romance with Aly Khan has studio auditors clapping their hands in glee and yelling for more black ink.

Columbia's executives figure Rita's headlines have added $1,000,000 extra to the gross of her currently showing movie, "The Loves of Carmen." (Think what "The Loves of Rita" would do at the box office.) The picture is getting rental fees as high as $3,000 in theaters where it normally would get only $1,200.

Immediately following her wedding, the studio hopes to hit another Fort Knox by reissuing "Gilda" and "Cover Girl."

Hmmmm. While Bud Abbott was denying my story of a professional divorce from Lou Costello, maybe this year, Lou was guesting minus Abbott on Milton Berle's television show.

No Box-Office

A couple of fellows who own a small neighborhood theater in Los Angeles have been thinking about selling out because of poor business. Now they know they will.

As an added attraction to their double bill, newsreel, travelog and popcorn, they recently hired a couple of acts for a special Sunday afternoon stage show. Along about 10 p. m. they discovered a horrible mistake. Their marquee sign putter-upper had left out one letter and all afternoon and evening the lights had blinked out: "Stag Show."

"But," they moaned, "we still didn't do any business."

RKO will reissue "The Pride of the Yankees" early in April to coincide with the 10th anniversary of Lou Gehrigs's last baseball appearance. . . . Mary Pickford is trying to buy out her co-partner, Charles Chaplin, in United Artists. . . . Gene Kelly and Judy Garland will be announced as the co-stars of M.-G.-M.'s film version of "Brigadoon."

Gale Storm will star in another Allied Artists musical, "Sweet Molly Malone," before moving to U. I. . . . Stanley "Stash" Clements, the ex-Dead End kid, turns crooner in "Bad Boy" and will go on a singing tour to help exploit the picture.

I guess it was bound to happen sooner or later. The Houston, Texas, Dental Association gave Spike (All I Want for Christmas Is My Two Front Teeth) Jones cuff links decorated with somebody's two front teeth.

Deanna's Future?

There's still a good deal of speculation over Deanna Durbin's future at U. I. She'll be working in Italy on a film being partially financed by U. I. when her contract expires in August. I doubt whether it will be renewed, but there's a slim chance the studio will hold on to her for maybe one picture a year—all she needs to come back.

Dan Dailey is still blushing. He was having lunch with Les Clark, an assistant dance director, in the Fox studio cafe. While engrossed in a story Les was telling, he didn't notice the interruption of a quiet little man who waited patiently behind him to say hello.

Finally the quiet little man broke in: "Mr. Dailey," he said, "I just saw your newest picture and I think you're going to be one of the biggest stars on the lot."

Dan gave him a dirty look and a perfunctory thanks and told Les to go ahead. But Les, who had been around Fox longer than Dan, took the situation—which it was—quickly in hand.

He stood up, nudged Daily and said as casually as he could: "Dan I don't think you've met Mr. SWOURAS." (Head man of the Fox empire).

Mental Connections

In all the times I've watched Danny Kaye on and off the screen, I've never thought of an oboe. I've thought of how funny Danny is, but how beautiful Virginia Mayo is, but I've never thought of an oboe.

But that's the way composer Johnny Green sees Danny.

"When I see Danny, I immediately think of an oboe, Johnny said. Johnny is doing the musical score for Danny's new movie, "Happy Times," and he ought to know. He explained:

"After all, facial expressions are the result of certain emotions and these emotions suggest particular sounds made by musical instruments. There is, for example, a pantomime bit in this picture that just insists on a bassoon. But when I'm scoring a Kaye picture and I'm stuck for a particular sound, there's always the oboe. That's Danny Kaye—in music."

Fox and director Robert Wise are paging Bob Mitchum for a film when he completes "Sixty Days Behind Bars." . . . Aside to Jack Benny. NBC now has a free auto parking lot for its stars. You left at the wrong time.

Burt Lancaster is planning "William Tell" in Italy after "Rope of Sand" . . Errol Flynn's daughter visited him on the set of "The Forsyte Saga." "Come over here and watch me act," he suggested.

"No, thanks," said the girl, "I'm going to the back lot to see some elephants."

Tahiti Bound

M-G-M will send a company to Hawaii and Tahiti this summer to film "Tahiti Landfall," a tropical musical based on "Pagan Love Song."

Bob Taylor will go completely zany for that comedy role opposite Lana Turner in "The Reformer and the Redhead." One of the funniest scenes has him taking a lion for an auto ride.

Promised and hoped for: Frank Morgan as Buffalo Bill and Edward Arnold as Pawnee Bill in "Annie Get Your Gun."

Mama Is Back

Lauren Bacall reports back to Warner Brothers March 15 for her first movie since becoming a mama . . . World premiere of "Chicken Every Sunday" was staged in Tucson, Ariz. One of the local bobby soxers mistook Hugh Marlowe for Dan Dailey. "No," said Marlow, "I'm not Dan Dailey, I'm Twice Weekly."

It was bound to happen department: Andy Russell just recored a new song, "You'd Be a Vision in Television."

SOLDIER IS SHOT IN MEMPHIS HOTEL

Father Of Woman Sergeant Wanted To Marry Held For Assault To Murder

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 2.—(AP)—An army sergeant with a gun-blasted spine, lying near death in a hospital here tonight, told police he was shot in a downtown hotel just before dawn by the father of a girl he once hoped to marry.

Sgt. Henry Hynds, Jr., 30-year-old Pacific veteran of White Deer, Texas, near Amarillo, told Deputy Inspector Larry Fox his assailant was Ivadean Chessher, 52, of Atlanta.

Chessher is charged with assault to murder.

His daughter, Mrs. Betty Jean Ortega, 25, of Memphis, was booked on a charge of accessory before and after the fact of assault to murder.

Hynds was found in the hotel corridor by a man checking in to the room next to Chessher's.

The gun, a .32-caliber pistol, was found behind the radiator in Chessher's room, Inspector Pete Wiebenga said. It was covered with blood.

Chessher denied the shooting. Mrs. Ortega said her back was turned when the pistol fired and she had no idea why Hynds was shot.

She told police she and Sgt. Hynds had been thwarted in several marriage attempts. She said they met in 1941, but were unable to marry because a former husband refused to give her a divorce.

Mrs. Ortega said when she finally obtained the divorce, Sgt. Hynds was overseas. She remarried before his return. Her husband, Juan Ortega, is stationed at the Millington Naval Base, near Memphis.

The sergeant married two years ago. His wife, Mrs. Sadie Hynds, flew here from Birmingham, Ala., shortly after the shooting. She was at his bedside throughout the day.

Inspector Wiebenga said police believe the shooting was a follow-up to Sergeant Hynd's discussing with Chessher the possibility of his adopting Mrs. Ortega's six-year-old daughter by a former marriage.

He said the sergeant came here Friday to discuss the possibility with Mrs. Ortega. She refused to discuss the matter with newsmen.

Secretary Of Defense Says Practice Discontinued In Late 1947

By Marvin L. Arrowsmith

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—Great Britain shipped some jet airplane engines to Russia after the war but halted deliveries late in 1947, Secretary of Defense Johnson informed the senate today.

Further requests for more such engines, which are used to power the fastest combat planes, have been rejected by the British, Johnson said.

The secretary's report was read to the senate as it debated legislation authorizing $5,580,000,000 to carry on the Marshall plan of European aid. Approval of the full amount appeared assured. Two attempts to slash it were beaten last night.

At an unusual Saturday session, the senate waded into a pile of more than 25 amendments to the bill. Action on the big majority of them and the bill itself was not expected before next week.

It was the eve of the first birthday of the gigantic European recovery effort to stop communism. And Paul Hoffman, Marshall plan director, in an anniversary report struck a blow for continuing the effort at full speed.

"The emergency is not over," he said, and we mustn't be complacent now—"It isn't smart to let down in the middle of a fight." His report showed that western Europe's output is up, exports expanded, trade deficits lowered and inflation slowed. He stressed peace hopes through unity of the 19 nations benefiting.

Johnson outlined the jet engine situation in a letter to Senator McCarran (D.-Nev.), chairman of the senate-house "watchdog" committee on European aid. McCarran, who sought the information, had the letter read to the senate.

Referring to McCarran's inquiry "regarding the reported shipments of British jet engines to Soviet Russia," Johnson said he could supply this information:

"Some jet engines were sold and delivered to U. S. S. R. after the end of the war, but no deliveries have been made since December 1947 and additional requests have been rejected.

"We have been in touch with the British on this subject over a period of time and have been informed that it is the present policy of the British government to make no further deliveries of the jet engines to the Soviet Union and the satellites."

McCarran told the senate Johnson's letter amounted to a "complete refutation" of reports that Britain and other countries getting Marshall plan aid have at the same time been selling jet engines to Russia and her satellite nations.

However, Senator Hickenlooper (R.Iowa) differed with McCarran. Hickenlooper said the Johnson letter was not a complete refutation and that on the contrary it indicated some "manipulations" in Anglo-Russian relations. The Iowa senator told his colleagues he would have more to say on the subject later.

Meanwhile, Senator Ellender urged the senate to force European countries receiving American aid to increase their purchase of war materials for the United States.

He called for adoption of his amendment requiring that 25 per cent of funds realized by European countries through their sale of American supplies to their own people be used to purchase strategic materials for this country.

Another Ellender amendment would prohibit use of American dollars to pay off foreign national debts.

Ellender remarked that if this country "continues to dish out as we are now doing, we are more than likely to place ourselves on the same level of the countries we are trying to assist." Then he said: "If that ever happens, God help us."

Senator Jenner (R.-Ind.) asserted that when the four-year Marshall plan ends European countries still will have "a two or three billion dollar deficit in their trade balances."

"I suppose," said Ellender, "that they are just setting the stage for the Marshall plan to go on—"

"Forever and ever," Jenner interrupted.

Senator Brewster (R.-Me.) told reporters he thinks the administration leaders are delaying a vote on his proposal to bar Marshall plan funds to the Dutch so long as they do not comply with United Nations orders concerning Indonesia.

This amendment is opposed by Senators Connally (D.-Tex.) and Vandenberg (R.-Mich.), who contend that it short circuits United Nations procedures.

The two foreign relations leaders were said to believe it might be much more effective to warn the Dutch that if they don't follow the security council's decision in forthcoming negotiations on the Indonesian situation that aid funds may be cut off.

TOMBIGBEE RIVER FALLS AFTER SUDDEN CLIMBING

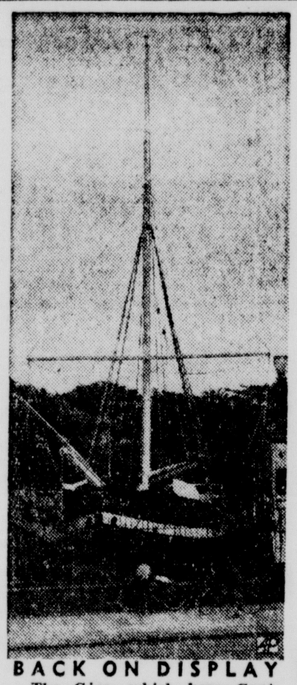

MOBILE, Ala., April 2.—(AP)—The Tombigbee river today was falling in Northeast Mississippi after a sudden rise to flood stages.

Today's reading at Aberdeen, Miss., was 36.9 feet, about three feet over the flood level. The reading at Columbus, Miss., was just above flood stage of 29 feet.

Both the Tombigbee and Warrior rivers were affected by heavy spring rains. Little damage was expected from the rise, because farmers had not planted the lowlands which were covered by the flood waters.

The Warrior gauge stood at 45.6 feet at Tuscaloosa, Ala., where flood stage is 47 feet.

The reading at Demopolis, Ala., where the two rivers meet, was 54.2 feet, or 15.2 feet over flood stage. The Mobile weather bureau said the Tombigbee will continue to rise slowly below Demopolis.

CRIPPLED CHILDREN QUOTA IS LAGGING

The $10,000 quota set for the local unit of the Louisiana Crippled Children's Society was reported last night to be lagging behind. Local Chairman Fran J. Brennan urged that more interest be focused toward raising this quota.

Brennan pointed out that in order to meet the future demands of the local chapter the goal would have to be collected. "I am sure" stated the local chairman, "that most people of the Ouachita parish area realize the importance of having a sufficient amount in reserve to meet the coming disasters of crippled children and adults alike." He added, "no one knows who might be striken and need aid from the chapter."

He pointed out that this is the only time in the year when the crippled children's society would appeal to the public for donations and as much response as possible should be given the current drive.

In addition to helping crippled children, Brennan said, the organization is organized to assist adult cripples as well. "Some persons think the society is designed to accommodate children only," he stated. Anyone who needs assistance is welcome to apply at the local unit's headquarters.

Persons receiving Easter seals by mail are asked to reply by mailing a contribution by enclosing whatever amount they desire in the addressed envelope. Brennan said that if all persons who received the seals would respond the goal would be reached.

Erskine Johnson:

IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD—(NEA)—Just as I suspected (and predicted here) Rita Hayworth's road show romance with Aly Khan has studio auditors clapping their hands in glee and yelling for more black ink.

Columbia's executives figure Rita's headlines have added $1,000,000 extra to the gross of her currently showing movie, "The Loves of Carmen." (Think what "The Loves of Rita" would do at the box office.) The picture is getting rental fees as high as $3,000 in theaters where it normally would get only $1,200.

Immediately following her wedding, the studio hopes to hit another Fort Knox by reissuing "Gilda" and "Cover Girl."

Hmmmm. While Bud Abbott was denying my story of a professional divorce from Lou Costello, maybe this year, Lou was guesting minus Abbott on Milton Berle's television show.

No Box-Office

A couple of fellows who own a small neighborhood theater in Los Angeles have been thinking about selling out because of poor business. Now they know they will.

As an added attraction to their double bill, newsreel, travelog and popcorn, they recently hired a couple of acts for a special Sunday afternoon stage show. Along about 10 p. m. they discovered a horrible mistake. Their marquee sign putter-upper had left out one letter and all afternoon and evening the lights had blinked out: "Stag Show."

"But," they moaned, "we still didn't do any business."

RKO will reissue "The Pride of the Yankees" early in April to coincide with the 10th anniversary of Lou Gehrigs's last baseball appearance. . . . Mary Pickford is trying to buy out her co-partner, Charles Chaplin, in United Artists. . . . Gene Kelly and Judy Garland will be announced as the co-stars of M.-G.-M.'s film version of "Brigadoon."

Gale Storm will star in another Allied Artists musical, "Sweet Molly Malone," before moving to U. I. . . . Stanley "Stash" Clements, the ex-Dead End kid, turns crooner in "Bad Boy" and will go on a singing tour to help exploit the picture.

I guess it was bound to happen sooner or later. The Houston, Texas, Dental Association gave Spike (All I Want for Christmas Is My Two Front Teeth) Jones cuff links decorated with somebody's two front teeth.

Deanna's Future?

There's still a good deal of speculation over Deanna Durbin's future at U. I. She'll be working in Italy on a film being partially financed by U. I. when her contract expires in August. I doubt whether it will be renewed, but there's a slim chance the studio will hold on to her for maybe one picture a year—all she needs to come back.

Dan Dailey is still blushing. He was having lunch with Les Clark, an assistant dance director, in the Fox studio cafe. While engrossed in a story Les was telling, he didn't notice the interruption of a quiet little man who waited patiently behind him to say hello.

Finally the quiet little man broke in: "Mr. Dailey," he said, "I just saw your newest picture and I think you're going to be one of the biggest stars on the lot."

Dan gave him a dirty look and a perfunctory thanks and told Les to go ahead. But Les, who had been around Fox longer than Dan, took the situation—which it was—quickly in hand.

He stood up, nudged Daily and said as casually as he could: "Dan I don't think you've met Mr. SWOURAS." (Head man of the Fox empire).

Mental Connections

In all the times I've watched Danny Kaye on and off the screen, I've never thought of an oboe. I've thought of how funny Danny is, but how beautiful Virginia Mayo is, but I've never thought of an oboe.

But that's the way composer Johnny Green sees Danny.

"When I see Danny, I immediately think of an oboe, Johnny said. Johnny is doing the musical score for Danny's new movie, "Happy Times," and he ought to know. He explained:

"After all, facial expressions are the result of certain emotions and these emotions suggest particular sounds made by musical instruments. There is, for example, a pantomime bit in this picture that just insists on a bassoon. But when I'm scoring a Kaye picture and I'm stuck for a particular sound, there's always the oboe. That's Danny Kaye—in music."

Fox and director Robert Wise are paging Bob Mitchum for a film when he completes "Sixty Days Behind Bars." . . . Aside to Jack Benny. NBC now has a free auto parking lot for its stars. You left at the wrong time.

Burt Lancaster is planning "William Tell" in Italy after "Rope of Sand" . . . Errol Flynn's daughter visited him on the set of "The Forsyte Saga." "Come over here and watch me act," he suggested.

"No, thanks," said the girl, "I'm going to the back lot to see some elephants."

Tahiti Bound

M-G-M will send a company to Hawaii and Tahiti this summer to film "Tahiti Landfall," a tropical musical based on "Pagan Love Song."

Bob Taylor will go completely zany for that comedy role opposite Lana Turner in "The Reformer and the Redhead." One of the funniest scenes has him taking a lion for an auto ride.

Promised and hoped for: Frank Morgan as Buffalo Bill and Edward Arnold as Pawnee Bill in "Annie Get Your Gun."

Mama Is Back

Lauren Bacall reports back to Warner Brothers March 15 for her first movie since becoming a mama . . . World premiere of "Chicken Every Sunday" was staged in Tucson, Ariz. One of the local bobby soxers mistook Hugh Marlowe for Dan Dailey. "No," said Marlow, "I'm not Dan Dailey, I'm Twice Weekly."

It was bound to happen department: Andy Russell just recored a new song. "You'd Be a Vision in Television."

Carburetor Too Rich Makes Motorists Too Poor

Car owners who are wasting money and not getting proper gas mileage due to over-rich mixtures will be pleased to learn of a Wisconsin inventor who has developed a very clever unit that helps save gasoline by "Vacu-mating." It is automatic and operates on the supercharge principle. Easily installed in a few minutes. Fits all cars, trucks, tractors. The manufacturers, the Vacu-matic Carburetor Co., 7617-362-D State Street, Wauwatosa, Wis., are offering a Vacumatic to anyone who will install it on his car and help introduce it to others. They will gladly send full free particulars if you write them or just send your name and address on a penny post card today.

Ceremony Takes Place At High Noon In Madison Heights Methodist Church

Mrs. Gordon de France Surguine of this city became the bride of Major Samuel Kennedy Brown, of Delafield, Wisconsin, in an impressive ceremony which took place at the Madison Heights Methodist Church in Memphis, Tennessee at high noon on Tuesday.

Teen-Ager Is Advised To Prove Maturity For Bestowal Of Responsibility

By Alicia Hart
(NEA Staff Writer)

The teen-ager who complains that her parents treat her like a child usually has only herself to blame. Better than sulking or moping about supposed injustices is to prove by your actions that you are mature enough to be entrusted with responsibility.

For example, if you want to pick out your own spring clothes, present your case convincingly. Before you ask for a spring clothes allowance, go window shopping and make inquiries as to quality of fabric and price of garments. Compare prices of the best-liked candidates for your wardrobe. Base your choice of possible purchases on styles that are good fashion and which will offer you more usefulness than one season's wear.

That done, you can sit down with your parents and explain as convincingly as any grownup what you need and why, and how much it will cost. You can also explain how you can stretch your dollars by buying a few new things that will give fresh style appeal to last year's clothes.

With the facts on prices and fashions at your fingertips, you'll find that Mom and Dad will be more amenable to a personal allowance. You are apt to be greeted with a much better response than if you voiced wistful desires for fashions which are unsuitable for a young girl or too far out of reach of a limited allowance.

Woman With Flat Tummy Deserves Praise She Gets For Effort On Her Figure

By Alicia Hart
(NEA Staff Writer)

The woman over 40 whose tummy is as a girl's of 20 deserves the praise she usually reaps for keeping her figure youthful.

If that's the kind of figure work you have on your mind for spring, try two kinds of exercise.

Let one kind be the exercise of will power used at the table. Say "no" to those second helpings of fattening food.

The other kind of exercise needed to keep a tummy from bulging or sagging should be aimed at building up a strong girdle of abdominal muscles. The best for that purpose is a simple sitting-up exercise; one for which you lie down flat on your back and pull yourself up to a sitting-up position with no help from arms or hands.

Such an exercise, taken after a fortieth birthday, needs to be begun cautiously with the idea of gradually conditioning muscles to a new routine.

When the first exercise becomes easy, here is more resistance for abdominal muscles, offered by these variations, which can be rung in on the basic routine. (1) Extend arms over your head; (2) fold arms over chest before pulling up to a sitting position.

Approximately 1,000 U. S. colleges and schools have courses in salesmanship.

FRENCH CAREERIST UNRAVELS PERFUME MYSTERY FOR WOMEN

By Kay Sherwood
(NEA Staff Writer)

NEW YORK—(NEA)—How much do you know about the perfume you dab behind your ear?

Do you know, for example, that your newest bottle of come-hither may be more than two years old? Or that an ounce of the divine stuff which weaves a heavenly aura may be a blend of 100 different ingredients, some of which are shudderingly repelling to smell?

Continuing our quiz, do you know that the most expensive perfumes are not necessarily the best? Or that your favorite floral odor may not contain an atom's worth of oil from natural blossoms?

For unraveling these sweet mysteries and others shrouding the art of making perfume, a charming and outspoken Frenchwoman from Grasse can take bows. Madame Jeanne Noel of Laboratory Noel, Grasse, one of the few women to crash the highly specialized basic perfume industry of France, combines business acumen with warm maternal expansiveness. She will need no introduction to thousands of officers and ex-GI's who during and after the war visited the laboratory which she and her chemist-husband operate for the production of raw materials.

Because of Madame Noel's generous gifts and warm hospitality the GI's "had a picnic of picking perfumes for wives and sweethearts," according to letters of thanks written her which she still likes to re-read.

Now back in New York to build up her export trade with this country, Madame Noel's "brief-case" is a fascinating array of bottles containing perfume's aromatic essentials.

Interviewed at her Gramercy Park Hotel apartment, she said, tapping vial after vial like a conductor pulling musicians into a symphony, "a good perfume must contain the best raw materials and be blended by an expert."

"Perfumerie in France," explains Madame Noel, "is in some leading firms a family profession with guarded secrets handed down from father to son. Like wine, a perfume must be aged. To give it the final touch the perfumer adds infusions of musk, ambergris, civette, etc., which are aged from six months to three years or more."

Citing the complexity of mixing ingredients, she explains the need to blend 20 or 100 before a pleasing fragrance is developed. Ingredients range from civette, an evil-smelling oil from the gland of an animal less socially acceptable than our skunk to the sweetest-scented oil extracted from the jasmine or the rose.

Sometimes only one drop of an ingredient, such as Italian orris root, is used to give "subtle" finish to a quart of de luxe perfume. Although most perfumes contain both natural and synthetic oils, some favorite florals come right out of the test tube, according to Madame Noel. By stirring up 60 different oils, she can give you a perfume which smells exactly like freshly saddle-soaped leather.

In Grasse the harvest season from which come the natural flower oils is beginning with the picking of orange flowers which yield "neroli," an oil used in most fine colognes. Spared the blight of war, Grasse, which is caressed the year round by a warm southern sun and bathed by the sea spray of a not-too-distant Mediterranean continues to yield tons of carefully cultivated blossoms. Carpeting these fields of southern France like a hooked rug solidly patterned with florals are thousands of acres of roses, jasmine, mimosas, carnation, violet, orange blossoms and other fragrant flowers.

To demonstrate how many wagon loads of jasmine flowers are first smeared with pork fat to absorb flower fragrance and then treated to produce the finished essential oil, Madame Noel enacts a little drama. Holding up a kilo of jasmine oil—a little more than a quart—she tilts the container of precious essence and says "There is more than a ton of blossoms in this jug."

The price of it? This amount of oil which sold for $3,000 and more during the war now goes for $1,000 per kilo. Prices for other raw materials used in perfumes range from one dollar to $1,000 and up per kilo.

"And yet," insists Madame Noel, "a good perfume need not be too expensive. A woman should be able to buy a fine perfume for $10 an ounce. Of course, the fancier the dress she wears, the more the perfume is going to cost her."

Another point made by this frank careerist is that "women are too apt to have a cocktail of perfumes on the mirrored tray of a dressing table." Madame Noel believes that one fine perfume, cast to play the starring role and an understudy cologne of matching scent, are all the "come-hither" a woman needs for a hit show.

MRS. SWIFT TELLS OF FROZEN FOODS

A number of housewives will be preparing strawberries for the freezer locker in a few days. Here are the instructions: Carefully sort and cap berries. Do not use berries that are green, crushed or over ripe. Wash, drain, mix whole or sliced berries with sugar, using 1 cup sugar with 5 to 8 cups of berries. Turn over and over until all sugar is dissolved. Fill containers to within one inch from top. Cover berries with juice. If necessary press berries down with a spoon until the juice covers them. Wipe inside edges of liner clean and dry. Press out air and seal edges together with warm iron-label. For rapid freezing, place boxes of berries against walls of freezing compartment, allowing space for air to circulate between package.

Quite a little research work is being done on frozen plates. That is—dinners cooked and then served and frozen on individual plates. All you have to do is heat the plate and ring the dinner bell. Some cooked foods lose quality in frozen storage sooner than others.

If you care for bulletins on "Freezing Meat and Poultry Products" and "Home Freezing of Fruits and Vegetables" call 3228 and make your request. We also have leaflets on "Home-Frozen Plates" and "Freezing Poultry." All of these are free services from your agricultural extension department.

Commercial houses handling freezer lockers should keep a supply of these bulletins to give to each purchaser. Notify me the number you will need, before the season gets off to a fast "freezing" start, then we will be ready with this educational service.

"How do they do it?" You'll ask yourself this question over and over — as we did — when you once see these handsome steel chairs — The answer is: The greatest thing "steel" has ever done — with the aid of designers who knew style, who understood color.

Books Of Non-Fiction Available At Library Offer Reading Variety

Books of non-fiction, which are available at the parish library, continue to grow more appealing. "The Wisdom of Laotse" edited by Lin Yutang will appeal to the scholar. "The Lure of Adventure" by M. C. Scoggin is a collection of true adventure stories. It is concerned with everything from deep sea diving to mountain climbing.

"Logging," by Nelson Brown should be of great interest to persons engaged in the timber business. "Off My Sea Chest" by Lewis Conarroe is an account of life in the United States navy, written in a humorous manner. "Little World Hello" by Jimmy Savo is an account of a vacation spent in the Umbrian hills around Rome in the days before the war, while "Western Flower Arrangement" by Carl Starker will appeal to flower lovers. The library has an extensive collection of books on flower arrangements.

Photography enthusiasts will be interested in the "Popular Mechanics Photo Handbook." It contains a practical advice for the development of pictures. "The Rape of Poland" by Stanislaw Mikolajczyk is an account of the Russian occupation of the country.

"Arctic Mood" by Mrs. Eva Richards is an account of the experiences of American school teachers in the Arctic regions of Alaska.

Woman With Flat Tummy Deserves Praise She Gets For Effort On Her Figure

By Alicia Hart
(NEA Staff Writer)

The woman over 40 whose tummy is as a girl's of 20 deserves the praise she usually reaps for keeping her figure youthful.

If that's the kind of figure work you have on your mind for spring, try two kinds of exercise.

Let one kind be the exercise of will power used at the table. Say "no" to those second helpings of fattening food.

The other kind of exercise needed to keep a tummy from bulging or sagging should be aimed at building up a strong girdle of abdominal muscles. The best for that purpose is a simple sitting-up exercise; one for which you lie down flat on your back and pull yourself up to a sitting-up position with no help from arms or hands.

Such an exercise, taken after a fortieth birthday, needs to be begun cautiously with the idea of gradually conditioning muscles to a new routine.

When the first exercise becomes easy, here is more resistance for abdominal muscles, offered by these variations, which can be rung in on the basic routine. (1) Extend arms over your head; (2) fold arms over chest before pulling up to a sitting position.

Approximately 1,000 U. S. colleges and schools have courses in salesmanship.

FRENCH CAREERIST UNRAVELS PERFUME MYSTERY FOR WOMEN

By Kay Sherwood
(NEA Staff Writer)

NEW YORK—(NEA)—How much do you know about the perfume you dab behind your ear?

Do you know, for example, that your newest bottle of come-hither may be more than two years old? Or that an ounce of the divine stuff which weaves a heavenly aura may be a blend of 100 different ingredients, some of which are shudderingly repelling to smell?

Continuing our quiz, do you know that the most expensive perfumes are not necessarily the best? Or that your favorite floral odor may not contain an atom's worth of oil from natural blossoms?

For unraveling these sweet mysteries and others shrouding the art of making perfume, a charming and outspoken Frenchwoman from Grasse can take bows. Madame Jeanne Noel of Laboratory Noel, Grasse, one of the few women to crash the highly specialized basic perfume industry of France, combines business acumen with warm maternal expansiveness. She will need no introduction to thousands of officers and ex-GI's who during and after the war visited the laboratory which she and her chemist-husband operate for the production of raw materials.

Because of Madame Noel's generous gifts and warm hospitality the GI's "had a picnic of picking perfumes for wives and sweethearts," according to letters of thanks written her which she still likes to re-read.

Now back in New York to build up her export trade with this country, Madame Noel's "brief-case" is a fascinating array of bottles containing perfume's aromatic essentials.

Interviewed at her Gramercy Park Hotel apartment, she said, tapping vial after vial like a conductor pulling musicians into a symphony, "a good perfume must contain the best raw materials and be blended by an expert."

"Perfumerie in France," explains Madame Noel, "is in some leading firms a family profession with guarded secrets handed down from father to son. Like wine, a perfume must be aged. To give it the final touch the perfumer adds infusions of musk, ambergris, civette, etc., which are aged from six months to three years or more."

Citing the complexity of mixing ingredients, she explains the need to blend 20 or 100 before a pleasing fragrance is developed. Ingredients range from civette, an evil-smelling oil from the gland of an animal less socially acceptable than our skunk to the sweetest-scented oil extracted from the jasmine or the rose.

Sometimes only one drop of an ingredient, such as Italian orris root, is used to give "subtle" finish to a quart of de luxe perfume. Although most perfumes contain both natural and synthetic oils, some favorite florals come right out of the test tube, according to Madame Noel. By stirring up 60 different oils, she can give you a perfume which smells exactly like freshly saddle-soaped leather.

In Grasse the harvest season from which come the natural flower oils is beginning with the picking of orange flowers which yield "neroli," an oil used in most fine colognes. Spared the blight of war, Grasse, which is caressed the year round by a warm southern sun and bathed by the sea spray of a not-too-distant Mediterranean continues to yield tons of carefully cultivated blossoms. Carpeting these fields of southern France like a hooked rug solidly patterned with florals are thousands of acres of roses, jasmine, mimosas, carnation, violet, orange blossoms and other fragrant flowers.

To demonstrate how many wagon loads of jasmine flowers are first smeared with pork fat to absorb flower fragrance and then treated to produce the finished essential oil, Madame Noel enacts a little drama. Holding up a kilo of jasmine oil—a little more than a quart—she tilts the container of precious essence and says "There is more than a ton of blossoms in this jug."

The price of it? This amount of oil which sold for $3,000 and more during the war now goes for $1,000 per kilo. Prices for other raw materials used in perfumes range from one dollar to $1,000 and up per kilo.

"And yet," insists Madame Noel, "a good perfume need not be too expensive. A woman should be able to buy a fine perfume for $10 an ounce. Of course, the fancier the dress she wears, the more the perfume is going to cost her."

Another point made by this frank careerist is that "women are too apt to have a cocktail of perfumes on the mirrored tray of a dressing table." Madame Noel believes that one fine perfume, cast to play the starring role and an understudy cologne of matching scent, are all the "come-hither" a woman needs for a hit show.

MRS. SWIFT TELLS OF FROZEN FOODS

A number of housewives will be preparing strawberries for the freezer locker in a few days. Here are the instructions: Carefully sort and cap berries. Do not use berries that are green, crushed or over ripe. Wash, drain, mix whole or sliced berries with sugar, using 1 cup sugar with 5 to 8 cups of berries. Turn over and over until all sugar is dissolved. Fill containers to within one inch from top. Cover berries with juice. If necessary press berries down with a spoon until the juice covers them. Wipe inside edges of liner clean and dry. Press out air and seal edges together with warm iron-label. For rapid freezing, place boxes of berries against walls of freezing compartment, allowing space for air to circulate between package.

Wednesday April 6th Is ARMY DAY

The American army is guided by American principles. It never attacks wantonly. It fights when necessary to protect and extend freedom. That has been the glorious history of the U. S. Army, recorded since the days of the American Revolution.

"O Eternal God, Who art a shield and buckler to all who put their trust in Thee, bless us, Thy servants, and the army in which we serve: lead us and guide us by Thy spirit, strengthen and defend us by Thy might, that we may be to our land a sure defense against every enemy: support us in the day of battle, and in the time of peace keep us safe from all evil: endow us with courage and loyalty, and grant that in all things we may serve Thee and our country without reproach: let the light of Thy countenance, O God, shine upon our comrades departed, that they may go on from strength to strength in Thy Heavenly Kingdom: strengthen us in our resolve to keep faith with all patriots and comrades-in-arms by fearlessly maintaining our liberties so nobly won: grant us Thy help, O God, that we, the members of the United States Army, may valiantly fulfill our role in the Armed Forces of our country as a sure, strong arm for national defense and a power for the establishment of a just and lasting peace. Amen."

DOROTHY DIX

Man Needs Backbone To Rid Home Of Parasites

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Please tell me what is the obligation of a man to his in-laws. My wife's sister and brother have been living in my home for the last eight years and I am fed up with both of them. The brother is lazy and drinks and the sister never thinks about anything but playing bridge. Neither of them pays a nickel for the upkeep of the home.

Now I am far from a rich man and I have growing children who must be educated, and would like to come home from work just one day and be able to sit down with my own family and not have Brother and Sister right under my nose. Do you think I am selfish in wanting this?

DICK T.

DOROTHY DIX

ANSWER: I don't think a man is selfish because he wants his home to himself without its being cluttered up by his wife's relatives. That is what he married for, and it is no more than he has a right to expect.

But how to attain this domestic Elysium is a problem that not even Solomon himself could solve. For the parasitic relative is always with us. He, she and they infest almost every home, and how to get rid of the pests nobody knows. Or, if he does, he hasn't the nerve and the backbone to apply the remedy.

ASSERT SELF

I think you should assert yourself and refuse to be victimized any further by your wife's brother and sister who have camped in your home. As they are perfectly healthy, they should get out and support themselves. When you allow them to sponge on you, you do them more harm than good because you weaken their morale, and they will never make any effort in their own behalf until they are forced into it.

So, in my opinion, if you will button up your pockets and put "Keep Out" instead of "Welcome" on the doormat for your wife's relatives, you will do yourself and them a good turn. After all, when a man marries a girl, it is not incumbent on him to support all of her family.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Two years ago I married a man whom I loved very dearly. I still do, but it is hard to take because every time we have a quarrel he runs to his mother, and naturally she takes his side and very often suggests that he stay with her for a while. This burns me up, but I love him so much that I always forgive him and take him back.

What do you think of a husband like mine?

FORGIVING WIFE

ANSWER: Well, I think your husband is a poor, childish creature if when you quarrel he runs home to Mother and pours into her ears all of his woes. I should think you would tell him to stay with Mother and let her baby him.

And if Mother had a grain of sense, she wouldn't sympathize with him and "poor boy" him. She would tell him that if he had a bit of manliness about him, he wouldn't tell even his mother about his wife's faults, and instead of running away from the responsibilities of marriage he would brace himself up to meet them with courage and dignity, instead of sniveling over them like a little boy.

But if you really love your husband, why don't you stop quarreling with him? It takes two to make a family fight, you know. So, instead of disputing with him, agree with him the next time he starts something, and it will leave him flat with nothing to say.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: My husband and I have been married for 15 years and have always gotten along fine together. However, a few months ago he decided he was getting young again and craved the bright lights, so he ups and leaves me. However, last week he returned and said that it was a mistake and that wild parties didn't satisfy him and that he wants to come back to home and Mother.

Would you advise me to take him back?

A LONELY WIFE

ANSWER: Surely. He has had his lesson and he will be the most housebroken husband in the world when once he gets back to his own fireside. A lot of men who think they have gotten too young for their wives find out their mistake when they try stepping out with teen-agers, and they are glad enough to come back to their old wives.

HEALTH CENTER IN JONESVILLE ASKED

JONESVILLE, April 2.—(Special)—Possibilities for the construction of a Catahoula health center will be discussed Monday morning at a meeting of the parish police jury.

Meeting with the jury will be Dr. J. A. Coleman, director of the Catahoula and Concordia health units and C. Scott Yeager, Alexandria architect. Representatives of civic clubs in the parish will also attend.

JONESVILLE AGAIN SUFFERS FLOODS

JONESVILLE, April 2.—(Special)—With a rainfall of 13 and one-half inches in the past 11 days, Catahoula parish has again gone under water in the lower areas, and a crest of 53 feet is predicted for Black river at Jonesville by Easter Sunday.

Army engineers at Monroe, in making the prediction, pointed out that additional rains would change the figure. From its recent high of 51.75, the Black had dropped 18 inches before rising again.

Many persons who had returned to their homes were forced to leave again, and Red Cross disaster crews are remaining in Jonesville.

Red Cross expenditures in Catahoula were $14,084.75 from the beginning of high water on February 21 through March 28.

Of this amount, a summary showed, $10,030.89 had gone for stock feed, $3,178 for food, $9.50 for medical attention and $866.36 for miscellaneous items, including sanitary toilets and wells, as well as transportation of tents.

W. C. Brown of Jonesville, Catahoula member of the Tensas basin levee board, said that Jonesville could take the expected 53 feet without additional filling in of gaps on the ring levee.

WILLYS-OVERLAND LOWEST IN FIELD

Price reductions announced by Willys-Overland put the company's vehicles at the lowest price level in their field, according to Roy E. Lee of Lee Motor Sales, Willys-Overland dealer.

The price reductions range from $25 to $270. In the passenger car field, Willys-Overland now has the lowest-priced full-size station wagon, station sedan, and sports car, Mr. Lee declared. The new prices of the Willys-Overland three-quarter ton truck, four-wheel-drive truck, panel delivery, and universal jeep are also in the lowest range of their respective fields, he said.

"These new low prices represent a double saving," Mr. Lee pointed out. "They provide a low initial cost in addition to the well-known thrift of Willys-Overland vehicles in operation and maintenance. They are now America's most economical as well as most useful vehicles. I am proud that our company took the lead in bringing prices down."

In announcing the price reductions, James D. Mooney, president and board chairman of Willys-Overland, said four major factors have made the move possible at this time.

Little Theatre Curtain Call

Are you one of the many who have said to themselves at one time or another, I'd like to try acting just to see what it is like? Just to see if I could do it the way I think others should. Are you one of the fellows who say, "Little Theatre has always fascinated me and I think one of these days I'll go down and find out what it is all about." Well, if you are, then you are just the one we are looking for.

"The Philadelphia Story" by author Phillip Barrie is rated at an all-time high in comedy and offers a variety of characterizations in the 15 roles that make up the cast. Director Elizabeth Whitfield, true to her interest in real drama, hopes to choose her cast on suitability to type as well as the ability to act. The ability to act doesn't always mean those who have already been tried on the stage. A brand new find who has real acting ability is a thrill for the director and a pride to the organization.

So it is to you, John and Jane Public, we address our invitation to come out and join the friendly atmosphere of readings and try-outs for "The Philadelphia Story" to be held Sunday afternoon at 3 p.m. in the reading room of the Red Cross building on South Grand street. A second reading will be held Monday evening in the reading room at 7:30 p.m.

IDLE CHATTER . . . The very clever and artistic cover for "Red Skins on Parade" program book was designed and executed by our Little Theatre member, Margaret Watson, who is majoring in art down at L. S. U. . . . Helen and Durwood Griffin, Dick and Louise Bradley motored to Shreveport for the Ice Follies there Saturday night . . . Irene Reid took time off and flew over for the Thursday night performance of the Ice Show and was back at her desk Friday morning . . . Talented 15,-year-old Mary Lou Johnston, from the team of four from the Roane School of Dance gave a performance of tap dancing at the "Cooties" dance on board the AMVET boat Friday night. Mary Lou also teaches a class in dance at Wisner, La. . . . We have heard of lots of different kinds of parties in our lives but always there is something new under the sun, so this week up pops a "Clipping Party" and it isn't what you'd think right off hand. Friday night the Jaycee Janes got together for a "clipping party" to clip out of newspapers for a whole year back all the activities of the Jaycee's to be compiled in a scrap book and entered in state-wide competition. We'll venture to say, I'll betcha these energetic Monroyans capture first place . . . Passing on to you a comment by an outstanding business man of the twin cities, he said, and we quote "The populace of Monroe and West Monroe have shown more participating spirit in things this year than they ever have before. Every outstanding event has drawn good crowds." He pointed out Hall, Civic Music, Little Theatre, Sigmund Romberg, Wayne King and other events.

VISITORS OF THE WEEK . . . Mr. and Mrs. Prentiss Cox, of the Lafayette Pictorial staff, Lafayette, La., were spectators at the Friday night performance of "Red Skins on Parade" at N. J. C. Bob Curtin, master of ceremonies, announced the presence of the visitors who were enthusiastic over the show. Prentiss directed the 1943 edition of "Red Skins" and his wife, then Babs Schuster, did a bang-up job as business manager. Both are former editors of the Pow Wow, N. J. C. college paper.

Top Tunes In Army Is Song Search Contest Announced

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—The army wants a son it can call its own and conducted a world-wide contest to find it. Today it picked out five to try on the public.

The navy has "Anchors Aweigh," the air force "The Wild Blue Yonder" and the marines "From the Halls of Montezuma."

The army wants something similar, and offered prizes to members of the armed forces and civilians in this country and overseas for suggestions and songs.

Winning songs will be tried out on the army and the public. If one "takes" after a period of time, it may be adopted as the official army song. If none clicks, the search will continue.

The contest drew 1,050 entries. A total of 112 reached the finals. And today Maj. Gen. Russell B. Reynolds, chief of army special services, announced five prize winners, selected by nine nationally known musicians.

First prize went to Vaughn Monroe, orchestra leader, for his entry "Men of the Army." He won a $1,000 U. S. savings bond.

Other winners, the songs they submitted, and prizes:

Second, Thomas J. Files, Chicago, musician-composer, "It's the Army," $500 bond; third, Jimmy Highsmith, New York, musician, "March Along," $100 bond; Fourth, Mrs. Iola Nancy Warren, Chicago, housewife-songwriter, "Three Cheers For The Army," $50 bond; fifth, Mrs. Lillian Fawcette, Los Angeles, music supervisor and singer, now with recreation branch of First Cavalry special services, 8th Army in Japan, "We're in the Army," $25 bond.

Law Enforcement Officers Get Two-Weeks Of 'School'

Northeast Louisiana law enforcement officers, who thought their "good old school days" were just memories of the past, will tuck books beneath their arms in preparation for classes in the Police Identification School slated to get underway at the Central Grammar School tomorrow morning.

Many of the officers, who no doubt have grown considerably since they last went to school, will probably have a little difficulty sliding in and out of student desks, Monroe Police Chief H. T. Ward said.

Approximately thirty of the officers in northeast Louisiana are expected to attend the school.

Chief Ward said the "school is being sponsored by the Monroe police department through the courtesty of Percy Wyly II, in charge of the F. B. I. bureau in New Orleans, Harry Roberts, local federal agent, and J. Edgar Hoover, in charge of the nation's Federal Bureau of Investigation."

Police and sheriff departments, who are expected to attend the classes, will come from Rayville, Ruston, Lake Providence, St. Joseph, Winnsboro, Jonesboro, Tallulah, Bastrop, Monroe and West Monroe, the police chief said.

"The instructor at the classes," Chief Ward said, "will be Martin W. Clift, special F. B. I. agent from New Orleans and former instructor at the National Police Academy in Washington, D. C."

According to Chief Ward, the school will last two weeks and classes, which will begin at 9 a.m. and adjourn at 4:30 p.m. with a lunch period from noon until 1:30 p.m., will be conducted daily Mondays through Fridays.

Officers are requested to report at the city hall at 9 a.m. tomorrow morning for the purpose of arranging classes.

"Invitations," the police chief said, "have been extended to all law enforcement officers in northeast Louisiana, and that the area should be well represented at the school."

MINSTREL SHOW IS PLANNED BY LIONS

Black faced comedians are expected to bring hilarious laughter Monday night, April 11, when West Monroe Lions present their minstrel at the Neville High School auditorium.

A total of 60 West Monroe Lions will be featured in the cast. This group is believed to have perfected one of the best minstrel acts in North Louisiana. Interlocutor Joe Preddy will lead the end men in their display of intentional nonsense.

Tom Howell, program director, arrived here Thursday at which time he met with prospective end men. Rehearsals will be held by the group during the coming week in preparation for the show.

Proceeds from the minstrel will be used in the purchase of projector book machines. The machines will be turned over to the public library which will distribute them among persons who are hospitalized or physically unable to read a book in the normal manner.

Tickets are reported to be selling fast. Persons interested in seeing the minstrel are urged to purchase tickets as soon as possible in order to insure a seat.

OLD LAUNDRY BILL CAUSES CONFUSION

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—How is your laundry bill? Paid it recently?

Willie May Thomas, 36-year-old laundress, is being held for grand jury action under $1,000 bond a charge she scalded David M. Hawkins with boiling water because he owed her money.

Hawkins, 51, is in Providence hospital being treated for third-degree burns.

CITY ASKS FLOWER REMOVAL AT ONCE

Officials at the city hall state that work on widening North Third street will be initiated on Monday and first operations will be limited at that time to the block on North Third street between Louisville avenue and Arkansas avenue, on the west side of the street.

All who have shrubs or plants on the neutral zone on the west side of North Third street in the block named are asked by the city to make their removal so that property owners will not sustain loss or damages because of the work being done.

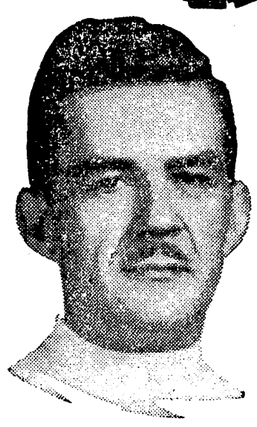

"Parsley potatoes," often called for on menus, are made by boiling small new potatoes in salted water, in their skins. When the potatoes are cooked they should be peeled and mixed with melted butter and finely minced parsley.

When planning a color scheme for the exterior of your house, remember that clashing colors in the immediate surroundings can detract greatly from the attractive effect you wish to achieve.

Little Theatre Curtain Call

Are you one of the many who have said to themselves at one time or another, I'd like to try acting just to see what it is like? Just to see if I could do it the way I think others should. Are you one of the fellows who say, "Little Theatre has always fascinated me and I think one of these days I'll go down and find out what it is all about." Well, if you are, then you are just the one we are looking for.

"The Philadelphia Story" by author Phillip Barrie is rated at an all-time high in comedy and offers a variety of characterizations in the 15 roles that make up the cast. Director Elizabeth Whitfield, true to her interest in real drama, hopes to choose her cast on suitability to type as well as the ability to act. The ability to act doesn't always mean those who have already been tried on the stage. A brand new find who has real acting ability is a thrill for the director and a pride to the organization.

So it is to you, John and Jane Public, we address our invitation to come out and join the friendly atmosphere of readings and try-outs for "The Philadelphia Story" to be held Sunday afternoon at 3 p.m. in the reading room of the Red Cross building on South Grand street. A second reading will be held Monday evening in the reading room at 7:30 p.m.

IDLE CHATTER . . . The very clever and artistic cover for "Red Skins on Parade" program book was designed and executed by our Little Theatre member, Margaret Watson, who is majoring in art down at L. S. U. . . . Helen and Durwood Griffin, Dick and Louise Bradley motored to Shreveport for the Ice Follies there Saturday night . . . Irene Reid took time off and flew over for the Thursday night performance of the Ice Show and was back at her desk Friday morning . . . Talented 15,-year-old Mary Lou Johnston, from the team of four from the Roane School of Dance gave a performance of tap dancing at the "Cooties" dance on board the AMVET boat Friday night. Mary Lou also teaches a class in dance at Wisner, La. . . . We have heard of lots of different kinds of parties in our lives but always there is something new under the sun, so this week up pops a "Clipping Party" and it isn't what you'd think right off hand. Friday night the Jaycee Janes got together for a "clipping party" to clip out of newspapers for a whole year back all the activities of the Jaycee's to be compiled in a scrap book and entered in state-wide competition. We'll venture to say, I'll betcha these energetic Monroyans capture first place . . . Passing on to you a comment by an outstanding business man of the twin cities, he said, and we quote "The populace of Monroe and West Monroe have shown more participating spirit in things this year than they ever have before. Every outstanding event has drawn good crowds." He pointed out Hall, Civic Music, Little Theatre, Sigmund Romberg, Wayne King and other events.

VISITORS OF THE WEEK . . . Mr. and Mrs. Prentiss Cox, of the Lafayette Pictorial staff, Lafayette, La., were spectators at the Friday night performance of "Red Skins on Parade" at N. J. C. Bob Curtin, master of ceremonies, announced the presence of the visitors who were enthusiastic over the show. Prentiss directed the 1943 edition of "Red Skins" and his wife, then Babs Schuster, did a bang-up job as business manager. Both are former editors of the Pow Wow, N. J. C. college paper.

Top Tunes In Army Is Song Search Contest Announced

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—The army wants a son it can call its own and conducted a world-wide contest to find it. Today it picked out five to try on the public.

The navy has "Anchors Aweigh," the air force "The Wild Blue Yonder" and the marines "From the Halls of Montezuma."

The army wants something similar, and offered prizes to members of the armed forces and civilians in this country and overseas for suggestions and songs.

Winning songs will be tried out on the army and the public. If one "takes" after a period of time, it may be adopted as the official army song. If none clicks, the search will continue.

The contest drew 1,050 entries. A total of 112 reached the finals. And today Maj. Gen. Russell B. Reynolds, chief of army special services, announced five prize winners, selected by nine nationally known musicians.

First prize went to Vaughn Monroe, orchestra leader, for his entry "Men of the Army." He won a $1,000 U. S. savings bond.

Other winners, the songs they submitted, and prizes:

Second, Thomas J. Files, Chicago, musician-composer, "It's the Army," $500 bond; third, Jimmy Highsmith, New York, musician, "March Along," $100 bond; Fourth, Mrs. Iola Nancy Warren, Chicago, housewife-songwriter, "Three Cheers For The Army," $50 bond; fifth, Mrs. Lillian Fawcette, Los Angeles, music supervisor and singer, now with recreation branch of First Cavalry special services, 8th Army in Japan, "We're in the Army," $25 bond.

Law Enforcement Officers Get Two-Weeks Of 'School'

Northeast Louisiana law enforcement officers, who thought their "good old school days" were just memories of the past, will tuck books beneath their arms in preparation for classes in the Police Identification School slated to get underway at the Central Grammar School tomorrow morning.

Many of the officers, who no doubt have grown considerably since they last went to school, will probably have a little difficulty sliding in and out of student desks, Monroe Police Chief H. T. Ward said.

Approximately thirty of the officers in northeast Louisiana are expected to attend the school.

Chief Ward said the "school is being sponsored by the Monroe police department through the courtesty of Percy Wyly II, in charge of the F. B. I. bureau in New Orleans, Harry Roberts, local federal agent, and J. Edgar Hoover, in charge of the nation's Federal Bureau of Investigation."

Police and sheriff departments, who are expected to attend the classes, will come from Rayville, Ruston, Lake Providence, St. Joseph, Winnsboro, Jonesboro, Tallulah, Bastrop, Monroe and West Monroe, the police chief said.

"The instructor at the classes," Chief Ward said, "will be Martin W. Clift, special F. B. I. agent from New Orleans and former instructor at the National Police Academy in Washington, D. C."

According to Chief Ward, the school will last two weeks and classes, which will begin at 9 a.m. and adjourn at 4:30 p.m. with a lunch period from noon until 1:30 p.m., will be conducted daily Mondays through Fridays.

Officers are requested to report at the city hall at 9 a.m. tomorrow morning for the purpose of arranging classes.

"Invitations," the police chief said, "have been extended to all law enforcement officers in northeast Louisiana, and that the area should be well represented at the school."

MINSTREL SHOW IS PLANNED BY LIONS

Black faced comedians are expected to bring hilarious laughter Monday night, April 11, when West Monroe Lions present their minstrel at the Neville High School auditorium.

A total of 60 West Monroe Lions will be featured in the cast. This group is believed to have perfected one of the best minstrel acts in North Louisiana. Interlocutor Joe Preddy will lead the end men in their display of intentional nonsense.

Tom Howell, program director, arrived here Thursday at which time he met with prospective end men. Rehearsals will be held by the group during the coming week in preparation for the show.

Proceeds from the minstrel will be used in the purchase of projector book machines. The machines will be turned over to the public library which will distribute them among persons who are hospitalized or physically unable to read a book in the normal manner.

Tickets are reported to be selling fast. Persons interested in seeing the minstrel are urged to purchase tickets as soon as possible in order to insure a seat.

OLD LAUNDRY BILL CAUSES CONFUSION

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—How is your laundry bill? Paid it recently?

Willie May Thomas, 36-year-old laundress, is being held for grand jury action under $1,000 bond a charge she scalded David M. Hawkins with boiling water because he owed her money.

Hawkins, 51, is in Providence hospital being treated for third-degree burns.

CITY ASKS FLOWER REMOVAL AT ONCE

Officials at the city hall state that work on widening North Third street will be initiated on Monday and first operations will be limited at that time to the block on North Third street between Louisville avenue and Arkansas avenue, on the west side of the street.

All who have shrubs or plants on the neutral zone on the west side of North Third street in the block named are asked by the city to make their removal so that property owners will not sustain loss or damages because of the work being done.

"Parsley potatoes," often called for on menus, are made by boiling small new potatoes in salted water, in their skins. When the potatoes are cooked they should be peeled and mixed with melted butter and finely minced parsley.

When planning a color scheme for the exterior of your house, remember that clashing colors in the immediate surroundings can detract greatly from the attractive effect you wish to achieve.

Guests usually enjoy buffet suppers more if individual tables, or card tables are provided so that they can sit comfortably after they have served themselves. If the main buffet table is not a large one the silver for the dessert need not be placed until the dessert itself is brought in.

IN MOVIELAND

By Bob Thomas

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP)—Newspapers here and all over the country have been full of news about the motion picture academy this week. It's time for serious talk about the future of the academy.

The issue arose when Academy President Jean Hersholt resigned with a blast against producers who opposed the annual awards. The producers replied with a few mortar shells aimed at "Dr. Christian." Irked at the way Oscars are handed out, the big boys pulled the financial support out from under the academy.

Let's face it—the academy is an imperfect organization. Its original purpose is often clouded or ignored. It was founded 21 years ago to reward artistic and scientific achievements in the movies. This was important, since the industry was then almost devoid of prestige.

Academy awards have added stature to the much-maligned industry. But they have often been handed out because of politics and sentiment, no matter how strongly the academy denies it.

The academy is a costly operation. It maintains a library, theater, a sizeable staff and a publicity office. Its annual affair is done in the Hollywood manner—expensively. It has no endowments, as the Nobel and Pulitzer awards do. Someone has to foot the bill and so far it has been the major studios.

With the studios cutting costs wherever they can, the academy is one of the casualties.

However, the academy says it will carry on and find some way of financing the awards.

But if no other support comes forth, the academy will have to slice its expenses to the bone or die. It seems doubtful that the long and rich tradition of the awards will be ended. Perhaps a cheaper and more accurate means can be found to reward movie bests.

The idea of a select committee of 10 or 15 top craftsmen has been suggested instead of the present electorate—the shapeless and indefinable mass of academy members.

The academy will probably survive, in some form at least. After 21 years of being shot at, Oscar is a tough guy to kill.

CONGRESS BANS ANY SOUVENIR COMMERCE

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—Congress took another step to block any street corner souvenir sales of wood and other materials taken from the White House while it is being repaired.

The senate public works committee approved a bill which would ban "commercial exploitation" of the materials A house committee approved a similar bill yesterday.

The legislation sets up a six-member commission to oversee the repair work.

The commission will be responsible for seeing that all materials of historic importance are preserved. And it will direct the "sale, donation, destruction or other disposition of the remainder of such material in the manner most consistent with its symbolical value and without commercial exploitation."

JOHNSON ABOLISHES 9 ARMY COMMITTEES

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—Defense Secretary Johnson tonight followed up his assertion that "there are too damn many committees" by abolishing nine armed forces committees. He said they were "useless."

The new defense chief made the comment at a recent press conference in telling about the existence of approximately 800 boards and committees in the military establishment. Johnson said he had discovered that some temporary committees he had set up when he was assistant secretary of the army a decade ago still exist.

The nine committees and boards he ordered scrapped were found either to have completed their jobs or to be duplicating functions performed by other groups, he said.

Johnson also directed the army, navy and air securities, the joint chiefs, research board and other agencies to review other committees to see whether they are essential.

The navy's new 65,000-ton supercarrier is 1,090 feet long.

TWO-THIRDS OF GOAL REACHED

Still Lacks Large Sum To Complete Budget Of Red Cross

The Red Cross campaign must be continued because to date only two-thirds of the amount required has been subscribed, stated E. C. Gibson, campaign director.

"The drive will proceed until the solicitors have given every citizen an opportunity to contribute," he said. Mr. Gibson expressed the belief that everyone who is asked will donate for all know that the Red Cross is of vital importance.

"At this time no less than 138 cities are over their goal and we know that Monroe will never be content to lag behind the great army of supporters of Red Cross," Mr. Gibson said.

Wright Bryan, ex-service man, is quoted as follows in regard to the Red Cross:

If you believe in the Red Cross, why not inquire how the campaign is doing in your community? If it has achieved its goal, or is approaching it, you will be pleased and happy. If it is not, perhaps you can help.

Your gift—if you have not already made it—will help. Your encouragement and support will stimulate response among your friends.

I feel about the Red Cross as Pierce Harris does about his church. Pierce says that every member should be contributing to the church or receiving help from it. He does not recognize any middle ground.

I feel that every American who does not need the help of the Red Cross should be doing what his means permit to support its work.

None of us knows when we will need the Red Cross. Its disaster relief work goes on continuously. In many parts of the South victims of tornadoes and floods are receiving the ministry of the Red Cross now.

If disaster should strike your home tonight, the Red Cross would be ready to help.

Disaster work is only a part of Red Cross activity. The Red Cross is the link, officially recognized by the government and generally accepted by the people, between men and women of our armed forces and their relatives at home. We think of this phase of Red Cross work mostly in terms of war; but world conditions force us to keep hundreds of thousands of men and women in uniform today.

They need the Red Cross, and veterans in hospitals, for whom the war may never be over, need it.

HOUR CAN SAVE ONE FROM CANCER

No More Time Than That Required For Head-To-Toe Checkup

By Alton L. Blakeslee
(Associated Press Science Reporter)

NEW YORK, April 2. —(AP)— One hour can save your life at a cancer detection clinic.

The hour is the time it takes you to get a complete head-to-toe cancer checkup. The examination can spot most of the common types of cancer. And facts show that these cancers, when found early, can be cured 75 to 95 per cent of the time.

The detection clinic idea is spreading rapidly. Two years ago there were only 18.

There are now 240 of them, the American Cancer Society reports.

The clinics examined some 250,000 persons a year. Only about one out of every 100 persons going to them is found to have cancer. But this means 50 persons a week or 2,500 a year who learn they have cancer. In most cases the cancers are found early.

Another significant thing is that the visitors are apparently healthy people who don't suspect cancer.

Cost of an examination ranges from $2 to $10.

One of the first centers, the Kate Depew Strang Cancer Prevention clinic at Memorial Hospital here, was established in November, 1940. It has been a pioneer in methods adopted at many of the 240 clinics.

An examination starts with the usual personal and family history, and listing of any particular complaints. The visitors gets a chest X-ray, blood count, urinalysis and serological test to spot symptoms that might indicate cancer or other diseases.

A doctor makes a careful physical checkup. The skin is examined for growths or changes that might be cancer, or might turn into it. Eyes, nose, mouth, abdomen and rectum are examined.

Cancer of the womb or uterus is one of the main types in women. To spot it early, this clinic and many others use the papanicolaou or smear test. This means collecting some of the cells that are constantly being discarded from various regions and examining them to see if any show the changes that cancer causes in normal cells.

The test is not infallible but is pretty accurate. If it points to a suspicion of cancer, a bit of tissue is taken to make a positive check. The value of the smear test is that it is simple for the patient, and that it can often indicate cancer when the growth is too tiny to be seen.

Internal cancers, starting in the stomach, liver or other organs, are extremely hard to find early. The smear technique, by getting samples of stomach or lung fluids, sometimes helps and may be used if cancer of that kind is suspected.

At the Strang clinic, people over 45 get flouroscope examinations of the stomach each year. Cancer of the stomach is more common after that age.

People over 45 are urged to have semi-annual complete checkups. Once-a-year visits are urged for persons under that age.

Last year, this clinic examined 24,456 persons, of whom 5,561 came for the first time, said Dr. Elise S. L. Esperance, director and co-founder with her sister, Miss May Strang, of the clinic started as a memorial to their mother. In its first 14 months, it had only 150 patients. By 1946, it had 4,372. The present 25,000 a year is about all that it can handle. Visits have to be booked seven months ahead.

Other clinics are growing almost as rapidly, with new ones starting up. Their findings tally pretty closely with those at Strang.

One finding is that between one and two per cent of the visitors do have cancer. The figure is about one per cent for men and slightly higher for women.

About 18 per cent have conditions, like lumps, that could turn into cancer. About 20 per cent have benign tumors—growths that are not cancer but which can cause trouble by crowding vital organs. Forty per cent are found to have other ailments that should be treated by physicians or surgeons.

The clinics do not treat the patients. They are referred to their own physicians, or to specialists. The clinics do not accept people who know they have some disease and are seeking treatment for it.

Cancer experts hope that ultimately there may be 2,000 such clinics. More and more physicians are studying cancer so they can spot it in their own patients coming to their offices for treatment of other diseases, or for regular health checkups.

Clinics have the advantage of expensive facilities, like X-rays, fluoroscopes, and laboratories for diagnostic tests. State and city health departments can set up such laboratories, like those for smear tests, so family doctors could send material to them. The Strang clinic is helping find and perfect tests that can be used in other clinics and by family doctors.

The detection clinics are just one phase of cancer control.

"Figures show that one in every eight Americans may die of cancer unless something is done to prevent it," cancer experts say. "As yet, we can't prevent cancer from starting. But we can cut the deaths from cancer by finding it early."

Men Say Women Can't Tell Expensive Perfume By Odor

By Frank Carey
Associated Press Science Reporter

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—Can a woman tell an expensive perfume from an inexpensive one just by smelling it?

Can the love of your life identify such common floral odors as rose, carnation, lilac and gardenia without peeking at the label?

A couple of male psychologists, nosing into such questions scientifically, have come up with evidence that at least a group of female college students taking advanced psychology weren't too nifty with the snifter.

Testing 69 such students — whose ages ranged from 19 to 50 and who had been using perfume anywhere from one to 25 years—the profs came up with such conclusions as these:

1. The ability to recognize the difference between perfume compounds of different cost "was only slightly better than chance, the mean percentage of correct responses being 55 per cent."

2. What's more, the gals as a group had a smelling average of less than 25 per cent accuracy when it came to identifying eight common floral odors.

Only 17 of the 69 subjects knew a rose odor when they whiffed it—and among those who muffed the test, guesses ranged from "cold cream" to "lemon verbena."

Only one of them could tell jasmine when she smelled it—and they all drew a blank on geranium. They were sharpest on spotting the odor of pine.

"While it is somewhat surprising that so much difficulty was evidenced in identifying the various odors," declared psychologists Bernard Locke and Charles H. Grimm of Brooklyn, "it is particularly interesting that the rose, which is so common and popular to our culture, caused so much difficulty in recognition with only one out of every four subjects being able to identify it correctly."

Concerning these and other findings of their smelling test, the psychologists said in an article in the Journal of Applied Psychology:

"The results obtained are not intended to indicate universal trends, since a select group was used, but they do point to the need for further investigation in this area."

At another point they remarked:

"In the light of the fact that many millions of dollars are spent annually in the purchase of aromatic products it is extremely surprising that so little work has been done in any systematic fashion to evaluate some of the factors which lead an individual to select a particular aromatic compound for purchase."

PASCAGOULA SEEKING TUNA FISH FACTORY

PASCAGOULA, Miss., April 2.—(AP)—Pascagoula is out to grab part of the Pacific coast's multi-million dollar tuna canning industry.

County crews are constructing roads to the site of the first proposed cannery here on the west bank of the Pascagoula river.

Canning industry and railroad officials met with Governor Fielding Wright here Wednesday to study the proposed industry.

Mississippi at present is engaged in a campaign to attract outside industries.

Tuna Fleet Operator Harvey M. Petrich of Tacoma, Wash., attended the conference. The Pascagoula Chronicle-Star said he originated the proposed project 10 years ago.

Petrich said Pascagoula is 800 miles closer to the rich tuna fishing area off the coast of Panama than the closest tuna canning center at San Diego, Calif.

Pascagoula plans to use a 2,000-feet strip along the river's west bank here for cannery sites.

The city also claims freight rates on canned tuna shipments would be cheaper than from west coast ports.

TOMMY DORSEY TO PAY VISIT

Noted Band Leader Will Be Presented Under N. Monroe Club Sponsorship

Not merely a popular band-leading maestro content to rest on his laurels, Tommy Dorsey, the beloved T. D. of the jitterbugs, who opens, under the sponsorship of the North Monroe Lions Club, at Neville High School auditorium on April 29, is also a highly respected musical artist, who has made classical recordings, had a special concerto written for him and is looked up to by countless people in the music field for his keen judgment of talent and shrewd ability to build new stars.

Tommy's multitudinous fans appreciate his mastery of the trombone for few realize that Dorsey is even more than a top-flight swingman with the sliphorn. Victor records gave an indication of the maestro s mastery of his instrument by issuing a Red Seal record heretofore reserved only for Toscanini, Heifetz, Kreisler and others of that ilk—featuring Thomas Dorsey's solo trombone in Eric Coates' famous "By The Sleepy Lagoon" and Charles Dawes' "Melody. This Mr. Dawes, incidentally, is the very same gentleman who was vice-president of the United States in the lush Coolidge era.

Concert music critics of the big newspapers were amazed at the color, richness and variety of trombone tone produced by Dorsey, who was entirely educated in his instrument by his father and never so much as set foot in a conservatory of music. Following the release of the Red Seal recordings, Tommy made two appearances as trombone soloist with the Janssen Symphony of Los Angeles, performing the "Concerto for Trombone" written especially for him by Nathaniel Shilkret.

These and a subsequent appearance with Dr. Fritz Reiner's Pittsburgh Symphony inspired Dorsey to schedule a concert tour the spring of '44—the first time a sweet and hot orchestra married long-hair with swing.

Its success was predicted several years ago in Hollywood when Stokowski ventured into the palladium to catch Dorsey in action and after complimenting the sentimental gentleman on his particular brand of music and talent, became one of his most enthusiastic fans—and urged him to make such a tour.

Advanced ticket sale is now being conducted by the members of the North Monroe Lions Club. The proceeds from this concert will be used to sponsor the community Christmas tree.

Job Chance Book Out For Junior's Guide

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—Suppose, just for argument, that junior won't become president of the United States. What then?

The government, which has a fixed policy against more than one president at a time, published a 454-page book today on other employment opportunities.

The book says it may be pretty hard during the next few years to get a job as an airplane pilot, an airline hostess, a newspaper reporter, a detective, or a diesel mechanic.

On the other hand, the outlook is much brighter for prospective bricklayers, doctors, automobile mechanics, librarians, stenographers and foundry workers.

The prospects for employment in 288 general occupations are set out in the "Occupational Outlook Handbook," which was prepared for the Veterans Administration by the labor department's bureau of labor statistics. It will be used by V. A. advisement and guidance officers and has been adopted for official use in all other government agencies which give counseling services.

It will be revised annually.

The books are available to the public at $1.75 from the superintendents, of documents, U. S. Government Printing office, Washington 25, D. C.

"While it is somewhat surprising that so much difficulty was evidenced in identifying the various odors," declared psychologists Bernard Locke and Charles H. Grimm of Brooklyn, "it is particularly interesting that the rose, which is so common and popular to our culture, caused so much difficulty in recognition with only one out of every four subjects being able to identify it correctly."

Concerning these and other findings of their smelling test, the psychologists said in an article in the Journal of Applied Psychology:

"The results obtained are not intended to indicate universal trends, since a select group was used, but they do point to the need for further investigation in this area."

At another point they remarked:

"In the light of the fact that many millions of dollars are spent annually in the purchase of aromatic products it is extremely surprising that so little work has been done in any systematic fashion to evaluate some of the factors which lead an individual to select a particular aromatic compound for purchase."

PASCAGOULA SEEKING TUNA FISH FACTORY

PASCAGOULA, Miss., April 2.—(AP)—Pascagoula is out to grab part of the Pacific coast's multi-million dollar tuna canning industry.

County crews are constructing roads to the site of the first proposed cannery here on the west bank of the Pascagoula river.

Canning industry and railroad officials met with Governor Fielding Wright here Wednesday to study the proposed industry.

Mississippi at present is engaged in a campaign to attract outside industries.

Tuna Fleet Operator Harvey M. Petrich of Tacoma, Wash., attended the conference. The Pascagoula Chronicle-Star said he originated the proposed project 10 years ago.

Petrich said Pascagoula is 800 miles closer to the rich tuna fishing area off the coast of Panama than the closest tuna canning center at San Diego, Calif.

Pascagoula plans to use a 2,000-feet strip along the river's west bank here for cannery sites.

The city also claims freight rates on canned tuna shipments would be cheaper than from west coast ports.

KEY TO LEG IRONS FOUND BY BARNETT

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 2.—(AP)—Bud Barnick found the wey to his leg irons last night in the 32,744th letter delivered to his home in less than a week.

While Barnick unwittingly mailed the key, Edwards asked listeners to send Barnick the other keys to complicate his finding the right one. He and friends opened letters and packages all week.

Barnick happily slipped out of the shackles and his pants which he had been forced to wear for six days.

TOMMY DORSEY TO PAY VISIT

Noted Band Leader Will Be Presented Under N. Monroe Club Sponsorship

Not merely a popular band-leading maestro content to rest on his laurels, Tommy Dorsey, the beloved T. D. of the jitterbugs, who opens, under the sponsorship of the North Monroe Lions Club, at Neville High School auditorium on April 29, is also a highly respected musical artist, who has made classical recordings, had a special concerto written for him and is looked up to by countless people in the music field for his keen judgment of talent and shrewd ability to build new stars.

Tommy's multitudinous fans appreciate his mastery of the trombone for few realize that Dorsey is even more than a top-flight swingman with the sliphorn. Victor records gave an indication of the maestro's mastery of his instrument by issuing a Red Seal record heretofore reserved only for Toscanini, Heifetz, Kreisler and others of that ilk—featuring Thomas Dorsey's solo trombone in Eric Coates' famous "By The Sleepy Lagoon" and Charles Dawes' "Melody. This Mr. Dawes, incidentally, is the very same gentleman who was vice-president of the United States in the lush Coolidge era.

Concert music critics of the big newspapers were amazed at the color, richness and variety of trombone tone produced by Dorsey, who was entirely educated in his instrument by his father and never so much as set foot in a conservatory of music. Following the release of the Red Seal recordings, Tommy made two appearances as trombone soloist with the Janssen Symphony of Los Angeles, performing the "Concerto for Trombone" written especially for him by Nathaniel Shilkret.

These and a subsequent appearance with Dr. Fritz Reiner's Pittsburgh Symphony inspired Dorsey to schedule a concert tour the spring of '44—the first time a sweet and hot orchestra married long-hair with swing.

Its success was predicted several years ago in Hollywood when Stokowski ventured into the palladium to catch Dorsey in action and after complimenting the sentimental gentleman on his particular brand of music and talent, became one of his most enthusiastic fans—and urged him to make such a tour.

Advanced ticket sale is now being conducted by the members of the North Monroe Lions Club. The proceeds from this concert will be used to sponsor the community Christmas tree.

Job Chance Book Out For Junior's Guide

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—Suppose, just for argument, that junior won't become president of the United States. What then?

The government, which has a fixed policy against more than one president at a time, published a 454-page book today on other employment opportunities.

The book says it may be pretty hard during the next few years to get a job as an airplane pilot, an airline hostess, a newspaper reporter, a detective, or a diesel mechanic.

On the other hand, the outlook is much brighter for prospective bricklayers, doctors, automobile mechanics, librarians, stenographers and foundry workers.

The prospects for employment in 288 general occupations are set out in the "Occupational Outlook Handbook," which was prepared for the Veterans Administration by the labor department's bureau of labor statistics. It will be used by V. A. advisement and guidance officers and has been adopted for official use in all other government agencies which give counseling services.

It will be revised annually.

The books are available to the public at $1.75 from the superintendents of documents, U. S. Government Printing office, Washington 25, D. C.

NEWFOUNDLAND JOINS CANADA

Oldest British Colony In America Takes Status As Tenth Province

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., April 2.—(AP)—Newfoundlanders became Canadians Friday, but many of them were displeased at the change.

Some wore black neckties as a silent expression of their disapproval. Only a few flags fluttered here in honor of the occasion, and some were at half staff.

Newfoundland became the 10th province of Canada last midnight. The merger made Canada larger than Europe in total area.

In Ottawa, Canada's governor-general, Field Marshal Viscount Alexander read a message from King George VI which said:

"May the union that is now complete continue, under God's guidance, to grow in strength, prosperity, happiness, and may it bring new benefits to its people from sea to sea.

A feature of the ceremony in the Canadian capital was the carving of Newfoundland's coat of arms on the arch of the peace tower. The space had been left by the architects on the supposition that Newfoundland one day would merge with Canada. The coat of arms pictures two archers holding a shield. It is topped by a caribou.

In St. Johns, Colin Gibson, Canada's secretary of state, presented a certificate of Canadian citizenship to Sir Albert J. Walsh, Newfoundland's lieutenant governor. In accepting the certificate, Walsh made all Newfoundlanders citizens of Canada.

Gibson is to be succeeded as secretary of state by a Newfoundland lawyer, F. Gordon Bradley, 61, who was a leader of the union movement.

Canadian Prime Minister Louis Stephen St. Laurent announced the appointment in Ottawa. It is understood Gibson will take over another cabinet post.

Newfoundland was Britain's oldest colony. In the four centuries since its first settlement, the fog-shrouded island on the Gulf of St. Lawrence had been a colony, then a dominion and then a colony again. Newfoundland held aloof when other British colonies in North America formed a united Canada in 1867.

After a bitter campaign Newfoundlanders voted last July 22 to join Canada. The count was 78,323 for union to 71,334 for self government.

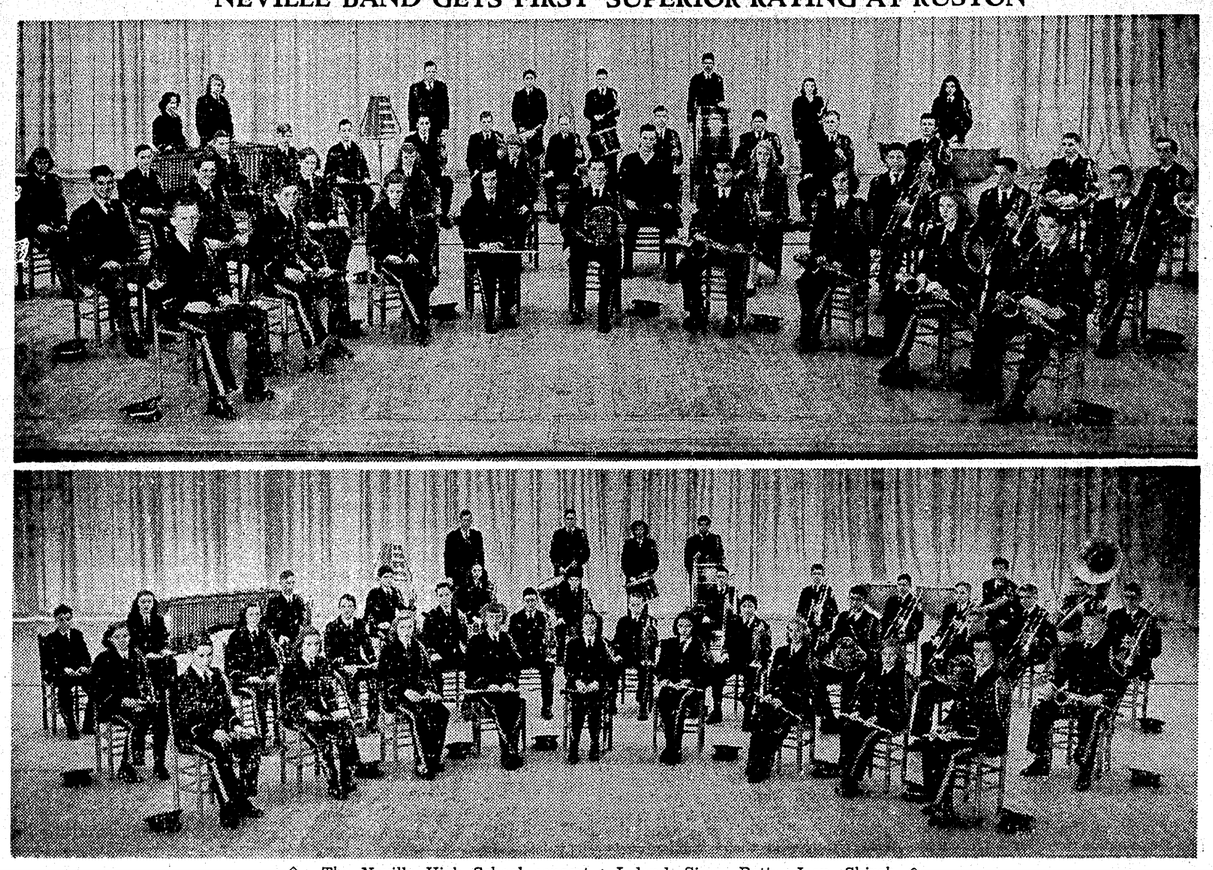

The merger added a total of 320,000 people and 152,000 square miles of territory to Canada. Labrador, a dependency of Newfoundland, also became a part of Canada.

Newfoundland now will have seven seats in the Canadian house of commons and six in the senate. The Canadian government will assume $63,000,000 of Newfoundland's $72,000,000 public debt. The amount assumed represents the value of Newfoundland assets to be taken over by the Canadian government, including the Newfoundland Railway.

Speaking at the Ottawa ceremony, Prime Minister St. Laurent said:

"Newfoundland is in the very center of the North Atlantic community. Nations of that whole area will be more secure in the new North Atlantic Association. And, in the same way, Canada and Newfoundland will have greater security in being bound together in a federal union. From today, all Canadians, old and new, will work as one to preserve peace and win security."

GRAND JURY TAKES NO ACTION ON TRIO

OPELOUSAS, La., April 2.—(AP)—The St. Landry parish grand jury made its final report with no action regarding three white men charged with kindnaping a Negro from a jail cell.

District Attorney J. Y. Fontenot said the lack of a report left the case "in status quo," and would not affect the possibility of action by a subsequent grand jury.

The Negro, Edward Honeycutt, was charged with aggravated rape of a white woman. The grand jury indicted him on the charge today.

He was taken from jail last month by three men who forced an aged jailer to release him. He was found the next day in the Atchafalaya river, clinging to a tree.

Honeycutt said he escaped from the men while they were tossing a coin to see which would shoot him. He had been hiding in the water several hours, he said.

Charged with the kidnaping were Ariel Ledoux, Maxile Savoy and Edward Miller. They are at liberty on $5,000 bond apiece.

Fontenot said the charges against them will still stand.

EXPERT SAYS EMOTIONAL TENSION IS CONTAGIOUS

CHICAGO, April 2.—(AP)—Emotional tension is something we can catch, like measles, from other people, a psychiatrist said today.

And, an emotional epidemic could lead to war.

Dr. Benjamin Karpman, Washington, D. C., gave as an example of a man who can spread emotional illness the "iniquitous boss with unexpurgated sadistic trends" who "creates veritable panics in his subordinates who must suffer in silence."

"Many are driven into anxieties, depressions and other unbearable states of tension," he said.

"But the emotions do more than merely disturb the even tenor of our routine life. Before war reaches its motor expression, it is preceded and generated by emotional disturbances which have been developing in the individual citizen for years. That is why we so readily succumb to war propaganda."

Dr. Karpman's remarks were made in discussing a three-day meeting of the American Orthopsychiatric Association which opens Monday.

He said the sessions will center on "the training of our younger generations from infancy to adolescence for more healthy impersonal relationships and better citizenship."

HELD FOR DRUNK DRIVING

Dell Orr, 23, of 215 Seventh street, Monroe, was arrested by Monroe police Friday night and charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor and without a driver's license. He was locked in the city jail in lieu of $300 bond and will be tried in city court Monday afternoon.

FIRE ENGINES WILL NOT HELP SISTER'S STOMACH

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—Calling out eight fire engines isn't the way to take care of a sick sister, Judge Thomas D. Quinn told 18-year-old Paul L. Marshall.

Judge Quinn sentenced the youth to $50 fine or 30 days in jail for turning in a false alarm to which eight pieces of apparatus responded. Marshall said he did it because his sister was suffering from stomach cramps.

If Stomach Gas or Sour Food Taste Robs You of Sleep

Here's How You May Help, Whether You Eat 500 Pounds or 2000 Pounds of Food In a Year

You can't feel cheerful, be happy and sleep well, if your stomach is always upset. As age advances the "old stomach" needs more help. The reason is this: Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.

To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains very special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

Avoid punishing yourself with overdoses of soda and other alkalizers to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people SSS Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

The merger added a total of 320,000 people and 152,000 square miles of territory to Canada. Labrador, a dependency of Newfoundland, also became a part of Canada.

Newfoundland now will have seven seats in the Canadian house of commons and six in the senate. The Canadian government will assume $63,000,000 of Newfoundland's $72,000,000 public debt. The amount assumed represents the value of Newfoundland assets to be taken over by the Canadian government, including the Newfoundland Railway.

Speaking at the Ottawa ceremony, Prime Minister St. Laurent said:

"Newfoundland is in the very center of the North Atlantic community. Nations of that whole area will be more secure in the new North Atlantic Association. And, in the same way, Canada and Newfoundland will have greater security in being bound together in a federal union. From today, all Canadians, old and new, will work as one to preserve peace and win security."

GRAND JURY TAKES NO ACTION ON TRIO

OPELOUSAS, La., April 2.—(AP)—The St. Landry parish grand jury made its final report with no action regarding three white men charged with kindnaping a Negro from a jail cell.

District Attorney J. Y. Fontenot said the lack of a report left the case "in status quo," and would not affect the possibility of action by a subsequent grand jury.

The Negro, Edward Honeycutt, was charged with aggravated rape of a white woman. The grand jury indicted him on the charge today.

He was taken from jail last month by three men who forced an aged jailer to release him. He was found the next day in the Atchafalaya river, clinging to a tree.

Honeycutt said he escaped from the men while they were tossing a coin to see which would shoot him. He had been hiding in the water several hours, he said.

Charged with the kidnaping were Ariel Ledoux, Maxile Savoy and Edward Miller. They are at liberty on $5,000 bond apiece.

Fontenot said the charges against them will still stand.

EXPERT SAYS EMOTIONAL TENSION IS CONTAGIOUS

CHICAGO, April 2.—(AP)—Emotional tension is something we can catch, like measles, from other people, a psychiatrist said today.

And, an emotional epidemic could lead to war.

Dr. Benjamin Karpman, Washington, D. C., gave as an example of a man who can spread emotional illness the "iniquitous boss with unexpurgated sadistic trends" who "creates veritable panics in his subordinates who must suffer in silence."

"Many are driven into anxieties, depressions and other unbearable states of tension," he said.

"But the emotions do more than merely disturb the even tenor of our routine life. Before war reaches its motor expression, it is preceded and generated by emotional disturbances which have been developing in the individual citizen for years. That is why we so readily succumb to war propaganda."

Dr. Karpman's remarks were made in discussing a three-day meeting of the American Orthopsychiatric Association which opens Monday.

He said the sessions will center on "the training of our younger generations from infancy to adolescence for more healthy impersonal relationships and better citizenship."

If Stomach Gas or Sour Food Taste Robs You of Sleep

Here's How You May Help, Whether You Eat 500 Pounds or 2000 Pounds of Food In a Year

You can't feel cheerful, be happy and sleep well, if your stomach is always upset. As age advances the "old stomach" needs more help. The reason is this:

Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.

To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains very special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

Avoid punishing yourself with overdoses of soda and other alkalizers to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people SSS Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Navy Veteran Demands U. S. Allow 'Red' Bride To Enter

Says Although Wife Is British Communist She Has No Aim Against America

By Edward Curtis

LONDON, April 2.—(AP)- A U. S. Navy veteran demanded tonight that his English Communist bride be admitted to the United States.

The state department has said "No."

"I won't go home without her," John A. Wolfard, 38-year-old former University of Utah professor, told a reporter.

He challenged the state department's right to refuse a visa for his wife, the former Mary Yeates, 30. He said it is true that she is a member of the British Communist party.

"But I claim there is a reasonable doubt whether the Communist party in England advocates the overthrow of the United States government," Wolfard added.

Wolfard married his brown-haired, dark-eyed bride here last New Year's eve.

He threw up his job as associate professor of economics at the University of Utah, Salt Lake City, to come to England for the wedding after the state department denied Mary a visa to go to America under the G. I. brides law.

Wolfard said his wife has not made a second application for a visa, since the marriage. He said he had asked reconsideration of the original application but that a consular official told him: "Mr. Wolfard, the only way you can get your wife into the United States is to have the law changed."

Wolfard said the U. S. consulate in London "gave no definite reasons for refusing the visa." Inquiries at the consulate today brought the reply that officials dealing with the case were away until Monday and there would be no comment until then.

"If I can't take her back, then I'll have to become an expatriate," he declared.

Wolfard, who served as a U. S. navy lieutenant in the Pacific during the war, met his bride at a party here last summer. He was in England on a vacation and doing some research work.

"She was to have come to the United States under the G. I. brides law," he said. "That was last October. I had set the wedding date.

"She went down to the consulate here and filled out all the forms and was told to come back the next day. When she went back she was told she never would be given a visa to the United States.

"I cancelled our wedding in the states and came over here. We got married. But I haven't got a job, and it's difficult over here for a member of the teaching profession."

Mrs. Wolfard works in the subscription department of a London book store.

Wolfard said he joined the University of Utah faculty last fall. Previously he taught at the University of Montana at Missoula.

He is the son of Howard Wolfard of Tacoma, Wash., and Mrs. Edith Zilske of Los Angeles, Calif.

SOFT COAL MINERS IDLE OVER WEEK END

PITTSBURGH, April 2.—(AP)—Most of the nation's 400,000 soft coal miners were idle today, enjoying a long weekend stretched by their annual holiday yesterday, John M'tchell day.

In the anthracite fields, however, miners were busy for the first Saturday in several years. The recent two-week shutdown provided the extra work. Hard coal miners honor the late union leader with a holiday in the fall.

Pittsburgh area captive mines—owned and operated by steel companies—were, for the most part, idle like their commercially-operated brothers.

John P. Busarello, president of United Mine Workers District Five, estimated every mine in his district was closed today, "except maybe one or two."

Captive mines have been enjoying full six-day work weeks of late, while about four days a week has been the average for commercial mines.

Local District To Meet In Rayville Wednesday; Leaders To Speak

The Rev. Alfred W. Wasson, Ph.D., LL.D., associate secretary of the board of missions and church extension of the Methodist Church, and in charge of the activities of the church in Latin American countries, will be the guest speaker at the Monroe district missionary institute to be held at the Rayville Methodist Church, Rayville, La., on Wednesday, April 6, at 7:30 p.m.

Early last year Dr. Wasson visited Brazil, Argentina and Chile.

He will speak on "The Advance For Christ in Brazil Through Louisiana Missions Specials," emphasizing social, economic and religious conditions there.

Dr. Wasson has had wide experience as missionary, college professor, and administrator of mission work. He first went to Korea as a missionary in 1905, upon graduation from college, and served in educational and evangelistic work in that land for twenty years. For some years he was principal of the Anglo-Korean School, of the former Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at Songdo, Korea, and later president of the Union Theological Seminary, Seoul, training young men for the ministry of most Protestant denominations in Korea.

Returning to the United States in 1926, Dr. Wasson was for eight years professor of missions and comparative religion at the school of theology of Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Tex., and then was elected foreign secretary of the board of missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, with headquarters in Nashville, Tenn. With the unification of the Methodist Church he became a member of the board staff in New York City.

Dr. Wasson is the author of a number of books, including "Church Growth in Korea." "The Invincible Advance," and "On the Frontiers of the Kingdom."

Dr. Wasson has visited South America several times and has served as chairman of the interdenominational committee on cooperation in Latin America, and as vice-chairman of the Foreign Missions Conference of North America. He was a delegate to the International Missionary Council at Madras, India, in 1938, and to several general conferences of the Methodist Church.

A native of Arkansas, Dr. Wasson was educated at the University of Arkansas, and holds graduate degrees from Vanderbilt University, Union Theological Seminary, and the University of Chicago.

Rev. B. A. Galloway, conference missionary secretary, will participate in the discussion of "missionary specials" for the churches of the Monroe district. Rev. Galloway is pastor of the Franklinton, La., Methodist Church. Rev. D. B. Boddie, pastor of the Delhi Church is district missionary secretary.

Deafened People May Now Hear Clearly

Science has now made it possible for the deafened to hear faint sounds. It is a hearing device so small that it fits in the hand and enables thousands to enjoy sermons, music and friendly companionship. Accepted by the Council on Physical Medicine of the American Medical Association. This device does not require separate battery pack, battery wire, case or garment to bulge or weigh you down. The tone is clear and powerful. So made that you can adjust it yourself to suit your hearing as your hearing changes. The makers of Beltone, Dept. 6, 1450 West 19th St., Chicago 8, Ill., are so proud of their achievement that they will gladly send free descriptive booklet and explain how you may get a full demonstration of this remarkable hearing device in your own home without risking a penny. Write Beltone today.—Adv.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES

by GEORGE WUNDER

WHAT? NO HAPPY BOYISH LAUGHTER, SMALL FRY? YOU DON'T EVEN LOOK PLEASED THAT TERRY KICKED THIS KITE UPSTAIRS JUST BEFORE THE FLOOD WASHED OUT THE AIRSTRIP.

AH—PHOOEY!

AIR CATHAY

AFTER ALL, CHUM FUN, YOU THOUGHT IT WAS FUN TO HOP ABOARD THE RAFT WE NEEDED TO CROSS THE FLOODED AREA AROUND THE RUNWAY... OF COURSE, YOU FORGOT THE ANGLE THAT YOU WOULDN'T BE ABLE TO GET BACK BY YOURSELF...

LAY OFF, TUBBY. I'VE GOT A PROBLEM.

...AND OLD MAN CHUM SEEMED SORT OF HAPPY WHEN WE CONTACTED HIM BY RADIO AND TOLD HIM WE'D TAKE YOU ALONG — HE JUST SUGGESTED THAT SINCE YOU'D COME THIS FAR, WE COULD SEND YOU ALONG TO YOUR SCHOOL IN THE STATES!

I BEEN SABOTAGED!

AND UP FORWARD...

CONSIDERING, FRIEND TERRY, THAT CONDITIONS DOWNSTAIRS MIGHT BE A BIT UPSET, MAYBE THIS IS NO TIME TO DROP IN.

CHECK, CHAZZ. IF OUR GAS SUPPLY HOLDS OUT, WE'LL MAKE FOR HONG KONG.

LATER

SORRY, CHAPS. FOG'S JUST LIFTED HERE AND WE HAVE TRAFFIC STACKED UP LIKE WEEK-END DISHES. ALL SCHEDULED FLIGHTS, TOO. WON'T BE ABLE TO BRING YOU IN FOR SOME TIME.

NO DICE. FUEL SUPPLY'S RUNNING LOW. AIR CATHAY WILL TAKE ITS BUSINESS NEXT DOOR.

HEY! THAT PILOT MENTIONED "AIR CATHAY"! THAT'S THE CROWD SPRAY O'HARA DISAPPEARED WITH. OH, LUCKY DAY!

FRIEND OF YOURS, EH?... WELL, I GATHER THEY'LL BE LANDING ACROSS THE BAY AT MACAO.

AND A SHORT TIME LATER...

DICK TRACY

LUCKILY, THE GORILLA, WITH WHICH SLEET FINDS HERSELF PRISONER, IS NOT VICIOUS, BUT HE ROUGHS HER CONSIDERABLY AND FRIGHTENS HER TO THE POINT OF HYSTERIA.

CHESTER GOULD

YES, DICK TRACY AND SAM CATCHEM HAVE A PLAN AFOOT THAT IS BEGINNING TO WORK.

I'M FREE! I'VE BROKEN AWAY FROM HIM.

THE REASON SLEET HAS BROKEN AWAY IS PLAIN. HAVING FASTENED ANOTHER CHAIN TO THE OUTSIDE END OF THE RING-BOLT, THEY HAVE JERKED THE GORILLA OFF BALANCE AND ARE SNUBBING HIM TOWARD THE WALL.

ONCE MORE, SAM. IF WE GET HIM AGAINST THE WALL, WE CAN CHOKE HIM AND HE'LL HAVE TO RELEASE SLEET.

FLAG POLE

HE'S ALREADY RELEASED HER! I CAN SEE HER NOW!

THAT DOOR UNLOCKS FROM THE INSIDE!

SHE'S OUT! SHE'S RUNNING TOWARD THE REAR OF THE BUILDING.

WE CAN'T DROP THE CHAIN. LET'S SNUB IT TIGHT—TO THE POLE.

SLEET'S DREAM OF ESCAPING ACROSS THE ADJOINING ROOF TOPS GETS A SEVERE JOLT.

IT'S TOO FAR TO JUMP. I—I'LL HAVE TO LEAP TO THE TOP OF THE WATER TANK AND USE THE LADDER.

SHE JUMPS! THERE'S A SPLINTERING OF WOOD AS THE TANK'S ROOF SUPPORTS GIVE WAY.

CRASH!

WELL, WHAT DO YOU KNOW, SAM! SHE MUST HAVE STOPPED TO WASH HER FEET! THAT GAUGE SHOWS THERE'S ABOUT 12 FEET OF WATER IN THAT TANK.

4-3-49

GO TO THE SQUAD CAR, SAM. THERE'S A 50-FOOT PIECE OF ROPE IN THE TRUNK.

H'M? IT'S APRIL 3RD. SPRING IS HERE AT LAST.—AND SPRING MEANS THE LAST OF SLEET.
